O'NEIL URGES CAUTION IN CASH BONUS DEMAND

But Insists It's Up to Convention.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, tonight made public his views as whether the Legion should press for immediate further loans to the veterans' bonus.

Commander O'Neil did not place himself definitely or against additional loans, but the tenor of his remarks were taken as an effort to influence the Legionnaires, opening their convention here tomorrow, toward accepting a delay.

The report of the commander is to be delivered at the opening session of the convention, and will immediately precede the address of President Hoover, which will be broadcast at noon. The President is expected to point out that the financial condition of the government, faced with a national debt reported to have grown in excess of a quarter billions, cannot stand the load of an additional bonus payment at this time.

A Sympathetic Reception!

Commander O'Neil's action in releasing his report tonight in advance of the President's message to the convention is believed a strategic maneuver, aimed for the procuring of a sympathetic reception to the President's request.

"I have an abiding confidence," the commander states in his report, addressed to the legionnaires, that the members of the Legion will never forget that the welfare of the veteran is inseparably wrapped up with the welfare of our country, and that each of you will remember that the power that is ours carries with it a responsibility that is ours."

More directly to the point, the report reads as follows:

"The American Legion has become the greatest and most powerful organization that our country has ever known. The influence of our far flung membership, exerted through its local posts and the departments, is tremendous. We can secure the enactment of any fair and reasonable legislation necessary to carry out our objects. This power will be ours only so long as we use it wisely.

Predicts Legion Will Be Fair.

"Our prestige and influence in the years to come will be determined largely by our actions of today. The Legion has always been fair and reasonable in every program presented to the American people; I am satisfied the Legion will be fair and reasonable in the future.

"The legislation which caused the greatest public interest and controversy during the last winter was the law providing that the loan benefits of the adjusted compensation certificates be increased to 50 per cent of the face values thereof.

"Many misstatements have been made concerning the same, and the Legion has been subjected to much unjust criticism. The crux of the criticism is that the legislation has placed an additional financial burden on the taxpayers of this country in this time of depression and deficits.

Profit in Transaction.

"The short answer is, the statement is not true. The legislation simply authorized the veteran to borrow against the reserve value of his policy at the rate of interest which is considerably higher than the present rate which the government pays for the use of the money. Instead of a loss, there is an actual profit in the transaction, in that the veteran is borrowing his own money at the rate of interest which is profitable to the government.

"Some of the objections to the recent law are due to a misunderstanding of the law; other objections are based upon misstatements, evidently made for the purpose of defeating any future legislation which may have many sponsor. I think the overwhelming majority of the citizens of this country believes this legislation is just.

"The Legion has made a survey and knows that the economic conditions in almost every community have been improved because of these loans to the

Jobs, Pay Rolls Show 1st Gain in Two Years

An increase of 0.1 per cent in industrial employment and of 0.3 per cent in pay rolls was reported by 499 Chicago factories for August, as shown in figures made public yesterday by the division of statistics and research of the Illinois department of labor. August is the first month that has shown a gain in pay rolls since February and the first to show an increase in employment since last December.

The last previous simultaneous gain in both pay rolls and employment was in August, 1929, when pay rolls increased 1.6 per cent and employment 1.0 per cent. In the two years since there has been a drop of 32.7 per cent in employment and of 49.1 per cent in pay rolls.

Figures Deal with Factories.

The figures relate only to factories and cover the period from the middle of July to the middle of August. Data from commerce bodies throughout the state are compiled by the labor department. A cut in working hours, while marking a decrease in pay rolls, does not make a change in employment. For this reason the two are calculated individually.

As compared with Chicago, practically all other sections of the state showed an unseasonal curtailment of factory operations, evidenced by a decrease of 0.5 per cent in numbers employed and a 1.3 per cent drop in pay rolls. Of fifteen cities for which figures are tabulated separately, five reported larger factory pay rolls and of these four reported increased employment.

Other Cities Report.

Eleven cities registered losses in employment ranging from 0.8 per cent to 22.4 per cent, and ten showed pay roll losses ranging from 1.6 per cent to 21.3 per cent. All other cities, considered as a group, showed an increase in employment of 0.9 per cent, but a decrease of 2.7 per cent in pay rolls.

The free employment offices reported 244.3 registrations to every 100 jobs available during August. This compares with ratios of 249.7 to each 100 for the previous month and of 233.5 in August, 1930.

According to the department report the demand for farm labor was low in August, due to the completion of harvesting and a slowness in starting fall work. Coal mines laid off a considerable volume of workers and a great deal of pipe line work was completed, increasing unemployment. Labor disputes have held up road work.

DEMOCRATS DISCUSS SUMMERALL AS NEXT FLORIDA GOVERNOR

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 20.—(AP)—The Tampa Tribune says a movement is under way in Florida to bring out Gen. Charles P. Summerall, former chief of the United States army, as a Democratic candidate for governor next year.

There is no intimation as to whether the general, now president of the Citadel, a military college at Charleston, S. C., has been approached by party leaders who want him to seek the nomination. It is understood here that he agreed to remain at the Citadel for a year only.

After his retirement as chief of staff Gen. Summerall announced he would make his home in Lake county, Fla.

Quake Wrecks Town in Ohio; Rocks Indiana

Sidney, O., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Two churches, the high school, and virtually every house in the village of Anna, Shelby county, were damaged badly by the earthquake that rumbled through western Ohio and eastern Indiana late today.

An outside wall of the Methodist Episcopal church was cracked and the cornerstones of the Lutheran church were jarred loose. The interiors of both structures were damaged.

Plastering was shaken from the walls of every room in the high school, while chimneys were toppled from village houses. All merchandise was shaken from the shelves of the general store.

Many Flee Into Streets.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Earthquake shocks of several seconds duration and of sufficient intensity to sway buildings and cause dishes to rattle were experienced in suburbs of this city and at other points in Ohio, Indiana, and northern Kentucky.

The earth movements were reported most severe here and in Springfield and Lima, Ohio. Buildings trembled, windows and dishes rattled, many persons were so frightened they ran from their homes, and many alarmed citizens telephoned police headquarters and newspaper offices inquiring whether there had been an explosion.

Tremors also were reported at Indianapolis, Richmond, Connersville and Liberty, Ind.

Slipping of Strata.

Weather bureau geologists attributed the temblors to the slipping of strata under the earth's surface. Such movements have occurred at intervals for a long time, but there has been no serious damage in the last century, weather bureau officials said.

Indianapolis reported the earth shock there occurred shortly after 5 p. m. Floors shook slightly and dishes rattled. From Anderson, Ind., came reports that pictures and mirrors had been shaken from walls and that nurses had difficulty in quieting patients in a hospital when their beds shook.

Tokio Rocked by Quake.

TOKIO, Sept. 21, Monday.—(AP)—A severe earthquake struck Tokio at 11:20 a. m. today [9:20 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time] and it is feared that considerable damage was done by the shocks.

Experts of Tokio Central observatory said the quake was the heaviest felt here this year. They feared great damage was done in Saitama prefectures, north of Tokio, where the quake apparently centered. Ceilings and walls of some buildings fell here and chinaware shops suffered considerable damage.

A few fires that broke out in Tokio immediately following the quake were quickly controlled.

LONDON ACTS TO END DEPRESSION; ANNOUNCES "BUSINESS AS USUAL"

New York Board to Open; Bankers Declare U. S. Little Hurt.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—"United States business as usual" was the slogan adopted here tonight by financiers as they discussed Great Britain's action in abandoning the gold standard.

American security markets will not follow the lead of the London stock exchange, but will be open for business as usual tomorrow. No emergency has developed here to warrant any action similar to that in the foreign centers, it was stated authoritatively.

New York bankers were called to a conference at the home of Thomas W. Lamont, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Morgan is in London. There were also other informal conferences of financiers at which the new London crisis was discussed, but no concerted action seemed to them to be called for, it was said.

Governors May Meet Today.

There was no meeting of the board of governors of the stock exchange today. It was considered likely, however, that the governors would meet befors the opening tomorrow morning, as that is the custom when such important events are breaking. They had made no formal announcement late tonight. The stock market will open, however, unless events unforeseen tonight occur, members said. Local bankers were of the opinion trading would be carried on in an orderly manner.

According to a competent authority, the short term balances of American banks in London do not exceed $50,000,000, while Great Britain's external obligations in this country, exclusive of the 125 million credit recently granted by the federal reserve banks to the Bank of England and the 200 million private banking credit to the British treasury, do not exceed 500 million.

No further supporting measures will be taken to defend the pound sterling at this time, it was stated. The private banking credit, which was opened on Aug. 28, last, while not yet actually used up will be exhausted shortly with the taking up of forward commitments made by the British banking authorities in their recent attempts to bolster the pound.

Chiefly Working Balances.

No precise figures are available as to the extent of American holdings of sterling securities and leading bankers said tonight that it would be impossible to make any accurate estimate. According to a leading authority, American short term investments in England consist chiefly of working balances, held in banks there, which do not amount to more than 100 million. American long term investments, repayable in sterling, this authority stated, are only moderate in amount.

The principal holdings of the American public in British government bonds are in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland external 5½ per cent loan of Feb. 1, 1917, issued during the war to finance the purchase of war supplies here. This loan is outstanding in the amount of $143,584,000, all of which, presumably, is held in this country. The loan is payable in gold dollars and is therefore not affected by the fluctuations of sterling.

In addition Great Britain owes a principal amount of 4 billion, 600 mil-

HERE'S OFFICIAL STATEMENT ON CRISIS ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Following is the official statement issued from 10 Downing street tonight, announcing Great Britain's suspension of the gold standard:

"His majesty's government has decided after consultation with the Bank of England that it has become necessary to suspend for the time being operation of the sub-section of the gold standard act of 1925, which required the bank to sell gold at a fixed price.

"A bill for this purpose will be introduced immediately and it is the intention of his majesty's government to ask parliament to pass it through all its stages on Monday, the 21st of September. In the meantime, the Bank of England has been authorized to proceed accordingly in anticipation of the action of parliament.

Blames Heavy Gold Withdrawals.

"The reasons which led to this decision are as follows:

"Since the middle of July funds amounting to more than £700,000,000 [approximately $1,000,000,000] have been withdrawn from the London market. The withdrawals have been met partly from gold and foreign currency held by the Bank of England, partly from proceeds of a credit of £50,000,000 [$250,000,000] which shortly matures, secured by the Bank of England from New York and Paris, and partly from proceeds of French and American credits amounting to £80,000,000 [$400,000,000] recently obtained by the government.

"During the last few days withdrawals of foreign balances have accelerated so sharply that his majesty's government felt it was bound to take the decision mentioned above.

Protects Bank's Reserves.

"This decision will, of course, not affect obligations of his majesty's government or of the Bank of England which are payable in foreign currencies.

"Gold holdings of the Bank of England amount to some £130,000,000 [$650,000,000] and, having regard to contingencies which may have to be met, it is inadvisable to allow this reserve to be further reduced.

"There will be no interruption of ordinary banking business. Banks will be open as usual for the convenience of their customers and there is no reason why sterling transactions should be affected in any way.

Stock Exchange Closed for Day.

"It has been arranged that the stock exchange shall not be opened on Monday, the day on which parliament is passing necessary legislation. This will not, however, interfere with business or the current settlement on the stock exchange, which will be carried on as usual.

"His majesty's government have no reason to believe that the present difficulties are due to any substantial extent to the export of capital by British nationals. Undoubtedly the bulk of withdrawals has been for foreign accounts.

"They desire, however, to repeat emphatically the warning given by the chancellor of the exchequer that any British citizen who increases the strain on exchanges by purchasing foreign securities himself or assists others to do so is deliberately adding to the country's difficulties.

Restrict Foreign Exchange Purchases.

"The banks have undertaken to cooperate in restricting the purchase by British citizens of foreign exchanges except those required for actual needs of trade or for meeting existing contracts, and should further measures prove to be advisable his majesty's government will not hesitate to take them.

"His majesty's government have arrived at their decision with the greatest reluctance. But during the last ten days the international financial markets have become demoralized and have been liquidating their sterling assets regardless of their intrinsic worth. In the circumstances there was no alternative but to protect the financial position of this country by the only means at our disposal.

"His majesty's government are securing a balanced budget and the internal position of this country is sound. This position must be maintained. It is one thing to go off the gold standard with an unbalanced budget and uncontrolled inflation. It is quite another thing to take this measure, not because of internal financial difficulties but because of excessive withdrawals of borrow capital.

"The ultimate resources of this country are enormous and there is no doubt that the present exchange difficulties will prove only temporary."

English Exchanges Will Close as Parliament Enacts New Law.

The Situation

As a move to turn depression into prosperity Great Britain has suspended the gold standard, dependent upon the action of parliament today.

While British stock exchanges will be closed as well as those of several other European countries, the New York and other exchanges of the United States will remain open.

British banks and all other business will remain open. United States business, in the opinion of leading financiers, will be slightly affected owing to the smallness of American investments in London and Europe generally.

The feeling was expressed last night that the selling on the New York and Chicago exchanges in the last few days already has discounted the British cabinet's action.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The gravest crisis in the financial and economic history of Great Britain reached a climax tonight with the government's decision to suspend the gold standard act.

This step, unprecedented except for the days of panic following the war, unquestionably indicates that the situation is even worse than was revealed by the formation of the emergency national government to save England from bankruptcy. So, tonight England is sleeping under the fear that world confidence in the massive pillars of the Bank of England will be shattered in the morning and will send the sturdy pound sterling sliding down to hitherto unknown depths.

Will Rush Legislation.

The announcement of the government's decision to halt at any cost what is probably the most rapid depletion of England's gold supply in history—more than $1,000,000,000 has been withdrawn from London since July 15—came with dramatic suddenness after an emergency cabinet meeting tonight. Tomorrow parliament will be asked to smash all speed records for legislation to rush the necessary bill through in one day.

Pending action by parliament, the London Stock exchange will remain closed tomorrow. All the provincial exchanges in England have also been advised to remain closed.

The Bank of England announced late tonight that it had raised its discount rate from 4½ to 6 per cent. Again the extreme gravity of the situation was reflected in the fact that this is the first time, except during the war, when the Bank of England has raised its rate except at the regular Thursday meeting of the board of governors. Not even during the near panic of some weeks ago, after the first gold raids, did the bank resort to such precipitate action, and never before was such action taken on Sunday.

Banks to Remain Open.

Banks throughout the country will be open as usual Monday and the government advised all Britons to adopt a "business as usual" policy.

A government statement revealed that gold withdrawals by foreign countries, which started some time before the Hoover war debt and reparations moratorium was declared, suddenly had increased in speed and volume, leaving the Bank of England with only $650,000,000 in gold, an amount dangerously low in view of the large credits England had obtained from France and the United States recently. It is impossible to overestimate how critical the situation has become and with the closing of the stock exchange tomorrow anything may happen.

The bill to be presented to parliament tomorow is likely to include a provision to empower the government to control the exchange as well as to suspend the gold standard, although it is predicted in authoritative quarters that it will not be necessary to employ the full power that the government is assuming.

Seek to Stop Flow of Gold.

Suspension of the gold standard act is designed simply to arrest the flow of gold. At present the Bank of England is obliged to sell gold to anybody who asks for it at between 77 shillings 9 pence and 77 shillings

Britain's Suspension of Gold Standard Climax of Battle to Hold Pound Value

New York, Sept. 20. — [Special.] — The suspension of the gold standard in England, announced today by Prime Minister MacDonald, marks the failure of a gallant six year struggle by Great Britain to stabilize the pound sterling at its pre-war parity. What will be the ultimate effects of this failure on the British economy, banking authorities here could not determine tonight. The logical outcome is that, after the inevitable period of falling quotations for sterling in foreign exchange markets of the world, the pound will be revalorized and restored to the gold standard on a depreciated level.

The breakdown of Great Britain's struggle to restore the pound to its pre-war gold value was described by bankers as another of the series of international financial misfortunes growing out of the world wide depression. Even under normal conditions Great Britain would have faced a period of prolonged and difficult readjustments, but the depression rendered these readjustments doubly difficult.

Crisis Long Impending.

The crisis in Great Britain has been gathering headway for months but it was brought to an acute stage by the central European breakdown in June and July. The freezing of large amounts of credit in Germany and other central European countries precipitated a run on the London market, weakening the gold reserves of the Bank of England and driving sterling down in all the principal money markets of the world.

London, as the world's banker, was called upon to repay one billion dollars of short term credits lodged there when the crisis in Germany spread fear throughout the continent and forced European bankers to call home their foreign balances. The strain of meeting this enormous demand at a time when London itself had huge amounts of money tied up in central Europe was met partly by a heavy outflow of gold from the Bank of England and partly by the 750 millions of foreign credits secured by Great Britain from central banks and private bankers here and in France.

Reserve Now 650 Millions.

The Bank of England has paid out all the gold it can wisely lose, reducing its gold reserves to about 650 millions; the credit of 250 millions supplied on Aug. 1 by the federal reserve banks here and the Bank of France jointly has been exhausted, and the credit of 400 millions opened on Aug. 28 by bankers here and in Paris has been so heavily drawn upon, without avail, as to render future support for the pound useless.

In undertaking to restore the pound sterling to its pre-war parity, after it had sunk to $3.18 in February, 1920, Great Britain set herself a task that few other countries were willing to face. The fact that France, Germany, Belgium, Italy and other European countries had allowed their currencies to fall to levels far below their pre-war value and had stabilized them at a fraction of their old values only added to the difficulties of the English attempt.

Stabilization Drive Blamed.

In the opinion of a number of important economists here and abroad a large part of Great Britain's economic difficulties in recent years has been traceable entirely to the attempt to restore the pound to its old value. The recent McMillan report prepared by a group of distinguished British bankers went so far as to admit that the stabilization of the pound at $4.86⅔ might have been a mistake, although the report also said that to go backward now and revalorize the pound at a lower level was unthinkable.

Using Flat Money.

Great Britain, in effect, will be using "flat" money, which, Dr. Eugene E. Agger, Rutgers university economist, explains is money that has no metallic value. It is money, he points out, that bears no value except the authority of the government that issues it. Under these circumstances, paper money becomes no longer a symbol of gold lying in vaults. Its value is based entirely on the force of the government behind it.

In the light of today's announcement suspending the gold redemption clause of the gold standard act of 1925, bankers here concluded that Britain might be faced, despite her efforts to avoid it, with the necessity of following the post-war example of other European countries by revalorizing her currency on a basis below pre-war parity.

The suspension of the gold redemption clause has the effect of removing the pound sterling from the gold standard. The clause in question reads as follows:

"The Bank of England shall be bound to sell to any person who makes demand in that behalf at the head office of the bank during office hours of the bank and pays the purchase price in any legal tender, gold bullion at the price of 3 pounds, 17 shillings, 10½ pence per ounce troy of gold of the standard of fineness prescribed for gold coin by the coinage act of 1870, but only in the form of bars containing approximately 400 ounces troy of fine gold."

The operation of this clause placed the pound sterling on what economists called the "gold bullion standard." The Bank of England was not obligated to pay out gold to every holder of a bank note as the federal reserve banks here are obligated to pay gold to every holder of American gold currency; but it was bound to make possible the settling of international balances by gold through redeeming legal tender in moderately large amounts in gold bars.

Suspended During War.

This law came into effect in April, 1925, when Great Britain resumed gold payments, after having suspended the gold standard during the war. At that time credits aggregating 300 million dollars were opened in this market to be used in defense of sterling exchange. Of these credits, 200 million was supplied by the federal reserve banks under an agreement to sell gold to the Bank of England, if required, and 100 million was supplied by a syndicate of American bankers under the leadership of J. P. Morgan & Co. None of the credits was ever used, an experience in sharp contrast to the heavy use made of the credits opened this year.

The current depression has been particularly hard upon Great Britain because it has involved such great difficulties for raw material producing countries in which a large part of Great Britain's foreign investments are lodged. In addition, the country has been burdened with heavy expenditures for social services to support its unemployed and was consequently unable to balance its budget until the new national government introduced drastic economies for that purpose a few days ago.

The Monday to Tell the Story.

The suspension of the gold standard, it is generally agreed, will perform the task of arresting the flow of gold perfectly, but the effect on the pound sterling in foreign exchanges remains to be seen, and there is no telling what shattered confidence in Britain might bring tomorrow in New York, Paris, and Amsterdam exchanges.

Although nothing has been said about it, there exists a possibility that arrangements have been made to peg the pound in foreign exchanges artificially during the period of the suspension of the act. In fact, this is the only way to keep the pound from taking the worst tumble in its career.

It is believed that yesterday's flurry on the Amsterdam bourse did as much as anything to precipitate the government's drastic action, although it was undoubtedly coming for the last few days. The Amsterdam bourse is regarded as the soundest and steadiest stock exchange in Europe, and when it joined the rat's of the hair-trigger exchanges the confidence in world finance got one of the worst shakings in months.

MacDonald Plunges Into Work.

While London was enjoying the rarest of treats in the shape of a fair week-end, Prime Minister MacDonald was suddenly plunged into a sea of nerve-racking work comparable to the days preceding the formation of the emergency government. It was reported yesterday that Mr. MacDonald hurriedly returned to London from his country house at Chequers early in the day, but it is now revealed that he rushed back secretly Friday night and has been in consultation almost constantly since.

During the events of the past few days he has maintained the closest contact with his principal advisers, and he left for Chequers Friday noon under the belief that everything was running normally. But within less than an hour after his arrival at Chequers he returned to launch a series of consultations with financial advisers and ministers. At 4 o'clock this afternoon an emergency meeting of the cabinet was attended by all members at 10 Downing street and Mr. MacDonald placed the facts before them.

All the details of the almost frantic consultations are not revealed yet, but tomorrow night Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, is scheduled to broadcast an explanation of the government's position over the radio.

Not a Dying Gasp.

The line the government is going to take—if tomorrow's activities in the financial world do not upset its plans in reference to the pound sterling—is that the action is not to be regarded as the last gasp of Britain's life as a financial power, because it is being taken with a balanced budget. The government statement declares that suspending the gold standard with a balanced budget is quite a different thing from grasping at this straw were the exchequer already half drowned.

The statement makes a half hearted attempt to vindicate the British subjects from blame for the flight of gold from England by declaring that foreigners undoubtedly are responsible, but it adds significantly that if British subjects do anything to aggravate the country's financial situation, "should further measures prove to be advisable the government will not hesitate to take them."

According to present plans, parliament will have the busiest day of its history tomorrow, for it is to be called upon to enact legislation of the most vital kind in almost less time than it would ordinarily consume to pass the most obscure local bill for Scotland. The house of lords has been specially summoned to lend an approving voice, and the royal commission is to meet early tomorrow evening to give royal assent to the measure.

Wales Lunches with Premier.

It is learned that the prince of Wales, who has just returned from a vacation in France, had lunch this morning with Mr. MacDonald, who explained the situation to him. After luncheon the prince of Wales decided to cancel a projected trip to the northlands in order to remain in London. He returned from a vacation on the Riviera Saturday.

It is ironic that when the ministers of the cabinet, with drawn faces, filed out of the little door of Mr. MacDonald's official residence tonight they came upon a huge throng who were admiring the illuminated government buildings at Whitehall, oblivious of the fact that a few feet away probably the gravest decision in the country's financial history was made.

Later in the evening, however, although the news of the closing of the stock exchange was supposed to be kept in the strictest secrecy from the public until morning, the crowds got wind of it somehow and now Fleet street is dotted with small groups gravely expressing fear as to what may happen to the pound in the morning.

The first crop of comments on the crisis tonight took the form of a pep talk, with financial authorities trying to minimize the gravity of the situation and predicting that at least internal conditions will not be altered. No time was lost in recalling recent opinions of leading British economists that a slight inflation of the pound, such as the suspension of the gold standard is certain to cause, under the most favorable conditions, is a good thing.

It is pointed out that a reduction of the present exchange rate of the pound from $4.86 before commodity prices fell would also penalize speculators who are converting money from sterling into United States money. At the same time financial circles cannot help but deprecate the situation, to say the least. They bitterly blame the shock on rumors, among other things, saying that reports in the foreign press on the trouble among sailors in the Atlantic fleet trouble did infinite damage.

Lloyd George Makes Plea.

Before the smoke cleared tonight, David Lloyd George, Liberal party leader, made a significant statement from his armchair at his Churt, Surrey, residence, where he is recuperating from illness. He hinted strongly that if England is going to add an election to her bulging bag of troubles it would better be an election along national party lines and not a party clash.

"If the nation remains steady and united we shall pull through all right," the veteran politician stated. "Our resources are quite adequate to meet the situation, but a faction fight among ourselves at this juncture would be unpatriotic lunacy. Mere threats precipitated this second and graver crisis. British common sense, if it is given a chance, will find a way out."

Daylight Savings Time Comes to End Next Sunday

The clock will stand still, theoretically at least, for an hour early next Sunday morning when Chicago abandons daylight saving time for the year. Officially the change takes place at 2 a. m. Sunday. Railroads will put new suburban schedules into effect Sunday morning to fit the change to standard time.

CANADA TO STAY ON GOLD BASIS, BENNETT SAYS

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 20.—(AP)—R. B. Bennett, prime minister and acting minister of finance, said tonight Canada proposed to maintain the gold standard.

"What Great Britain may do is for the government of Great Britain to determine," said Mr. Bennett. "As for Canada, we propose to maintain the gold standard."

The prime minister added that he had nothing further to say on the matter.

MAYOR LEAVES FOR CONVENTION OF THE LEGION

Mayor Cermak left early today for Detroit to attend the American Legion national convention with a large party of public officials who are war veterans. The mayor is to extend an invitation to the Legionnaires to hold their 1933 national convention in Chicago for the World's Fair and secure Legionnaires thronged the city yesterday en route to Detroit. Chicago delegates and war veterans left in parties during the day. Many of the Chicago delegates were in Detroit Saturday, two days before the opening of the convention.

lion to the United States government on account of war loans, all of which is payable in dollars. Sterling obligations in the hands of the American public, which may be affected by today's action, include about $10,000,000 of the 4 per cent funding loan of 1919 which was marketed here in 1923 by the Guaranty company and an unknown, but probably small amount of the five per cent war loan of 1917. Both of these issues are traded in on the New York Stock exchange and have recently experienced marked declines.

The credit of 250 millions extended jointly in equal parts by the federal reserve banks and the Bank of France on Aug. 1 last calls for the purchase of sterling bills, and as a result of its operations the federal reserve system has recently acquired 125 millions of prime commercial paper, payable in sterling. Provision was made in the credit contract, however, whereby the federal reserve banks were guaranteed the repayment of the loan in gold, if they required it. As a result of this provision the federal reserve does not stand to lose anything by the fall in sterling.

Loan Due in Dollars.

In the case of the private banking credit to the British treasury, of which 200 millions was supplied by bankers here [J. P. Morgan & Co.], payment is due in dollars since the proceeds of the credit have been supplied to the British government in the form of dollar balances.

American financial affairs, in the opinion of prominent bankers, are apt to be more seriously affected by the British crisis through its repercussions on world security and commodity markets than through any loans made by them to Great Britain.

All German Bourses Will Suspend Business Today in View of Crisis in Great Britain

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Sept. 21. — [Monday.]—(AP) Minister of Finance Flandin announced today that the Paris bourse would remain open as usual in spite of the emergency financial measures taken by the British government.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 20. — Germany's bourses will close down tomorrow in view of Great Britain's decision to suspend the gold standard. The duration of the closure is uncertain. Even before the news of the London developments was received, it had been urged to close the German bourses temporarily until the effects of the new emergency decrees issued last night are known.

"Germany can find no satisfaction in the London developments," Dr. Dreyse, vice president of the Reichsbank, said today. "It must be hoped there will now be an international recognition of the necessity for a political understanding. All depends upon the attitude of France."

Last night's emergency decrees call for the immediate appointment of a federal commissioner of banks with wide powers designed to counteract tendencies toward credit rises. The government thus obtains accurate information of what is going on in the nation's banks.

General Moratorium by Austria.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Sept. 20.—Communication on the decision of the Bank of England to the central banks of Europe has met with somewhat mixed reception. In nearly every case the first thing which has become clear to them is that as a precautionary measure stock exchange dealings will be suspended as well as dealings of foreign exchange. The Austrian government has decided on a general moratorium.

There is a strong body of opinion growing in favor of pegging the pound sterling in eastern Europe exchanges until it recovers from the effects of the suspension of gold payments. Whether stabilization will be agreed to at the parity of yesterday, or at probably sounder economic levels, which will be found after a few weeks' dealings on the free market which the Bank of England has determined shall be established, remains to be seen. Meanwhile all European politicians in Geneva have canceled their engagements and are making arrangements to return home to deal with what is considered to be the most serious crisis which the world has faced since August, 1914.

Flandin Speeds to Paris.

"If ever there was a time when the United States and France needed to work together it is now," was the incisive comment of a high French official. "Together we can and must support the pound sterling."

Minister of Finance Flandin went to Paris last night to confer with officers of the Bank of England. The results of the conversations were not known here, but M. Flandin was expected back here tomorrow. Whether this meant that a move through Geneva was likely none was willing to predict.

The British delegation stressed that their financial expert, Sir Arthur Salter, did not believe the situation would really turn out as tragically as laymen seemed to fear.

Fear One-Third Loss in Pound.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BASEL, Sept. 20.—Devaluation of the pound sterling by about one-third was feared in world bank circles tonight as a result of England going off the gold standard tomorrow. If so, it is calculated unofficially this would mean a loss of at least six or seven hundred million dollars each to the United States and France.

According to a Geneva source close to Finance Minister Flandin, the French now have about forty-seven million francs, or two billion dollars, in sterling in one form or another—in bills, exchange or other commercial paper in the far east, South America and other parts of the world, in addition to recent loans and other money directly invested in London.

Experts here state the United States during the past year and particularly during the past few months has withdrawn from London 25 per cent of its sterling investments of a year ago. Nevertheless, they believe the United States still has at least as much money in sterling today as the French.

It is stressed here that any decline in the value of sterling will hurt all creditor countries—Holland, Sweden and Switzerland in addition to the United States and France—while it will relatively ease the situation for all debtors, such as Germany, Austria and Hungary and probably Italy. It is believed Danzig, whose currency is founded on sterling, would be especially hard hit; also Sweden, which has not run with its gold as Holland and Switzerland have.

Copenhagen Suspends Quotations.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 20.—(AP)—[Monday.] — As a consequence of British suspension of gold redemption, the board of the Copenhagen stock exchange met after midnight at the request of leading bankers and decided to suspend quotations of all bond shares until further notice.

Tokio Exchange Opens.

TOKIO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—[Monday.]—Stock exchanges at Tokio and Nagoya delayed opening one hour today as a result of the suspension of the gold standard in Great Britain. The Osaka stock exchange is not affected.

BRITAIN IS CLARIFYING FINANCIAL SITUATION, CHICAGO BANKER SAYS

Chicago's financial leaders were unwilling last night to estimate the local effects of the action of the British government in suspending sales of gold by the Bank of England.

Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, said that he believed the British were clarifying the financial situation in their abandonment of efforts to peg the pound sterling.

"It puts the government of the British empire in a more favorable position to liquidate its internal debts," he said. "The fact that Britain will continue to pay foreign obligations in foreign currencies, as she contracted to, will lessen the disturbing effects on these currencies."

The board of governors of the Chicago Stock exchange will meet at 8:15 a. m. today to consider the situation arising out of London's action. A call for the meeting was issued last night by Paul H. Davis, president of the exchange.

EXPLODE 2D BOMB AT ROGERS PARK FLAT BUILDING

A black powder bomb was exploded late last night in the rear of the second floor apartment of Dr. Elmer D. Howe at 6701 Greenview avenue. On Sept. 10 a bomb was exploded in the rear of the apartment of Harry Marcus, at 6703 Greenview avenue in the same building.

Damage caused by last night's explosion amounted to $200 and was principally done to windows and the porch. No one was hurt. Dr. Howe, who has offices at 190 North State street, told Sergt. Thomas Leddy of the Rogers Park station he knew of no motive for the attack.

Dr. Howe added, however, that he had received several telephone threats for some unknown reason. The first of these threats came before the Marcus bombing and this led police to believe that both bombings were intended for Dr. Howe.

The bombing at the rear of the Marcus home Sept. 10 caused $500 damage. Marcus is the owner of the Chicago Garage Owners exchange, 209 South La Salle street, which supplies nonunion labor to garages.

WINS PRAISE FOR SHOOTING BANDIT BUT LOSES GUN

Stanley J. Thomas, formerly a policeman in the village of Flossmoor, who shot and wounded a robber Saturday night at 1368 Milwaukee avenue, was deprived of his pistol by Lieut. Edward Birmingham yesterday and warned to discard his Flossmoor badge and his uniform.

"Thomas did a good job in shooting one bandit and catching him and his partner," said the lieutenant. "But he hasn't the right to carry a gun or to wear a uniform. He'll have to quit it. I kept his pistol as evidence against the robbers."

KELLOGG BACK IN U. S., CONFIDENT ENGLAND WILL PULL THROUGH

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state and now one of the judges of the world court at The Hague, returned today on the Holland-America liner Rotterdam with Mrs. Kellogg. He appeared to be in much better health than when he went away, July 11.

Mr. Kellogg was optimistic about conditions in Europe and the United States despite news received in the dispatches from London concerning abandonment of the gold standard there and closing of the stock exchange.

Mr. Kellogg admitted the situation was serious, but said he believed that Great Britain would pull through.

Speaking of conditions in the United States, the former secretary of state said national, state and municipal economy is the only remedy for unemployment and the financial depression.

London Newspapers Praise Action on Gold Standard

LONDON, Sept. 21.—[Monday.]—The London Daily Mail, which has always opposed British adherence to the gold standard, welcomed its suspension this morning and said it would stimulate every trade and industry and "take a load off the nation's back." The paper expressed the belief that the suspension will lead to a great revival in the iron, coal and steel industries and in many other directions.

The Daily Herald, Labor and Socialist organ, commends the government for what it calls "a wise and salutary step which would be a distinct advantage to British export trade."

The Telegraph, which has been a strong adherent of the gold standard, regretted the step, but said that "events have been too strong for the government." It describes the suspension as a blow to British national pride "without peace time precedent."

United States Criticized.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—[Monday.]—The financial editor of the London Times, in reviewing the situation, is severely critical of the United States for what he calls its violation of the rules of the gold standard game. He will say today:

"It is necessary to emphasize the fact that the international economic crisis has played a large part in the temporary abandonment of the gold standard. The responsibility for this belongs to the countries which have hoarded gold on unprecedented scales. Creditor countries which insist on payment in gold are asking for the impossible.

"The prohibitive tariffs keep out goods, and unless the creditor nations relend the credits due to them, the debtor nations must pay gold to the extent of their resources and then default.

Takes France to Task.

"The gold standard game can only be played according to its well proven rules. It cannot be played on the new rules practiced since the war by France and the United States."

The Times, after summarizing the various factors of the situation in an editorial, will make the following allusion to the part played by Socialism:

"If the reckless use of the public purse in this country had continued the end would have been disaster. The suspension of gold payments by the Socialist government would have been one thing. But a suspension by a national government committed to retrenchment and reform is another. The Socialist government would have had to go off the gold standard with an unbalanced budget and it might never have returned to it.

"It may be said emphatically that there is no cause for alarm in the decision which the government has reached. On the contrary, in the light of proven necessity its action will inure to the benefit not only to this country but also to the whole world."

Bandits Enter Hall After Meeting and Seize $193

Two bandits entered a meeting room in St. Pancratius church, 3143 West 41st street, last night, and stole $193 from Anton Odrowski, president of the Polish National Alliance, No. 129. A few minutes earlier the meeting had disbanded, and 200 members had left. Seven members were still in the room with Odrowski when the robbery was committed. The money represented dues.

SHOUSE HEWS A DRY LAW PLANK FOR DEMOCRATS

His "Suggestions" Sure to Start Something.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The long smoldering row in the Democratic party over the prohibition and other planks to be written into the Democratic platform for the presidential election next year was fanned into flame today by publication of "some platform suggestions," by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee.

JOUETT SHOUSE.

Mr. Shouse, whose views on most of the subjects treated accord with those of the Smith-Raskob faction of the party, favors the submission to the states of a substitute for the 18th amendment whereby wet states could restore the manufacture and sale of liquor, while dry states could remain dry. Pending such action he would have light wines and beer legalized by congress as nonintoxicating in fact.

Has Farm Relief Plan.

The Shouse plank on agriculture calls for the repeal of the federal farm board legislation which he pronounces a costly failure. The farm relief plan the Democratic chairman advocates squints at a surplus control device employing the equalization fee as a means of assessing the farmers instead of the taxpayers generally for the cost of stabilization.

"With prices of all commodities at the lowest point in history, with farmers forced to sell at the demand of their creditors, the need of some form of warehouse credit on a reasonable basis at low interest rates becomes apparent," says Mr. Shouse. "This should be provided. Moreover, proper machinery can be set up by which a profitable domestic price for the staple commodities can be maintained and the exporting surplus disposed of at the expense of the crop benefited."

Published in Club Paper.

The Shouse platform suggestions were published in the current issue of the Democratic Bulletin, organ of the Woman's National Democratic club. They were given in response to a request by the editors of the publication, who state that in succeeding issues the platform views of other leading Democrats will be published.

The promotion of this discussion nine months in advance of the meeting of the national convention accords with the policy of Democratic National Chairman John J. Raskob, who is seeking to crystallize party views on prohibition and other major issues. Mr. Raskob set out to obtain a pronouncement on prohibition from the national committee at a stormy meeting in Washington last March, but in the face of protests by the southern drys, championed by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, he beat a retreat and gave notice that he would press the matter at the national committee meeting next winter.

Wants to Provoke Discussion.

Mr. Shouse says that the platform will be written by nobody but the national convention's committee on resolutions, but he believes that the submission of his personal views, arrived at "without conference with any one else," will provoke discussion and therefore serve a worthy purpose.

With all signs pointing to the nomination of a wet Democratic candidate for President, the prohibition issue in the party has narrowed down to the character of the platform declaration on the subject. The Smith-Raskob element are for bold advocacy of repeal or some such modification as the Raskob suggestion of a twentieth amendment, whereby wet states could exempt themselves from the operation of the eighteenth amendment. The southern drys are fighting any declaration smacking of modification.

Mr. Shouse has more to say on prohibition than on any other issue.

Assails Record of Prohibition.

"More than twelve years of trial of the most difficult social experiment ever attempted by a government have shown that the conditions arising under the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law are intolerable," he says. "This legislation has engendered a disrespect for all laws. It has cluttered up the courts. It has filled the prisons.

"Moreover, the conclusion has been forced that prohibition does not prohibit. On the contrary, under it a huge illicit industry has been created.

"President Hoover has shown himself wholly unwilling to assume responsibility. He appointed the Wickersham commission with at least the implied suggestion that he would be governed by its conclusions, but before its report was even given to the public the President came forward with a statement which attempted to convey the impression that no change in present conditions was favored by a majority of the commission, when the exact opposite was true."

Says Issue Must Be Wet.

The Democratic party, Mr. Shouse asserts, must meet the prohibition issue and he contends that it must be dealt with politically because it is "a political question pure and simple." His views on a platform plank he summarizes thus:

"(a) The Volstead law should be amended to do away with its ridiculous definition of intoxicating liquors and to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. This can be done by act of congress. The tax on beer alone will yield revenue which will go far toward the reduction of the mounting treasury deficit. Immediate employment would be afforded for several hundred thousand idle men.

"(b) The open saloon was an economic evil of the worst type. Its abolition was the instigation motive of prohibition legislation. It must not be allowed to return. Equally the illicit saloons which have sprung up by the tens of thousands must be closed.

Offers Substitute for Dry Law.

"[c] The Democratic party should pledge itself to submit to the people some form of referendum on the prohibition question. This can only be done by offering a substitute for the 18th amendment. A resolution embodying the suggested substitute must first be passed by congress. In voting to give the people of the states an opportunity to express themselves upon it, members of the house and senate need not voice personal endorsement of the substitute. They can merely state a willingness to offer to the people the chance to pass judgment in the knowledge that unless and until ratified by three-fourths of the states the substitute cannot be effective. A congressman who personally favors continuance of the 18th amendment unchanged might properly so vote.

"Our party is pledged to the principle of government by the people. Can any real believer in democratic doctrines refuse to place before the people for action a question upon which there is such divergent opinion that admittedly in many sections of the country the demand for a change is widespread? Can any real Democrat maintain that if an overwhelming majority of the people should, through a referendum, favor a change there is any possible excuse to deny giving it to them?

For Strict State Control.

"[d] Whatever form the suggested substitute for the 18th amendment may take assuredly in line with Jeffersonian principles of government there should be provision for state control of the liquor problem if a change is to be made, with every protection to those states which desire a continuance of prohibition within their borders."

SUNDAY MOVIE RUNS; OAK PARK LAW IS BROKEN

Police Arrest Two, but Can't Stop Show.

Motion pictures were shown last night at the Lamar theater, 120 South Marion street, Oak Park, in defiance of a village ordinance.

The exhibition was given under difficulties, however, for fifteen policemen, commanded by Capt. Thomas P. Kearin and Lieut. Harry Wilson, guarded all entrances of the theater, and tried to prevent patrons from entering. Despite their efforts, six persons who purchased tickets, and about 150 children who were admitted free, managed to break through the line, and into the theater.

CAPT. T. P. KEARIN

Two Youths Are Arrested.

Two arrests were made. Those seized were Jack O. Prohaska, 19 years old, 1020 Superior street, Oak Park, and James Royston, also 19, of 179 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park.

Prohaska was taken into custody after he had bought a ticket and insisted on entering the theater. Royston was arrested for driving an automobile with its muffler open. The car bore a sign advertising the Sunday show.

One casualty occurred when Policeman George Oliver, chasing some boys who were climbing to the roof of the theater and entering through a fire escape, fell and sprained his ankle.

Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., representing the theater, announced that the Prohaska arrest would be used as a test case in the hearing scheduled for next Friday before Justice Paul R. Wick to determine the validity of the Oak Park ordinance.

Calls Ordinance Illegal.

According to Cantwell, the ordinance is illegal. He charges that it is discriminatory because it prohibits Sunday shows while permitting miniature golf courses to operate. He said last night that he would seek an injunction today to restrain the Oak Park police from interfering with the theater.

The theater opened its doors yesterday at 1:30 o'clock to challenge the law. Hundreds of Oak Park residents gathered, and many bought tickets, but were barred from the theater.

Later the crowd increased to 1,000. Boos greeted the efforts of the police to keep out patrons. Meanwhile films were being run in the theater, and Thomas Hungerford, the manager, finally extended a free admission to everybody, plus ice cream. The rush of the children at this announcement overwhelmed the guardian policemen.

Mukden Military Hold on Chinese Cities.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Sept. 21 (Monday.)—(AP) A special dispatch from Ranan, Korea, to the newspaper Asahi said Japanese troops started from Ranan early today for Chientao, near the border, in view of a tense situation there. Press reports from Ranan said the railway station had been surveyed by Chinese last night and that bomb throwing was in progress in many parts of the city of Ranan. The police station, schoolhouses, postoffice, and other government buildings were burned.

Ranan is a city of 500,000 population, of which 300,100 are Chinese, 1,800 Japanese, and the rest Koreans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 21.—[Monday.]—Japan's military forces are strengthening their hold in Manchuria, according to dispatches received here today. Heavy movements of troops to Mukden, capital of Manchuria, now held by the Japanese army, and into the area are reported.

The Japanese government is expecting to answer China's two notes, demanding the immediate evacuation of Manchurian territory, today when the cabinet meets in special session at 11 a. m. The second note was received yesterday.

Fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops is believed to have broken out in the province of Chientao. All communications have been cut. According to reports received by the war office, the situation in the north is "critical." Great unrest is reported in the cities of Tunglao and Chengchiatun. The 20th infantry regiment left Seoul, Corea, for the north yesterday. The regiment's exact destination was not revealed.

Air Corps in Mukden.

Further messages to the war department from Heijo stated that the 78th regiment has departed for Mukden. The Japanese air corps, stationed at Heijo, arrived in the Manchurian capital last night. In view of the tense situation at Kirin and Changchun, Japanese division headquarters have been transferred to the latter city.

According to dispatches from Changchun, 350 Japanese soldiers, engineers and infantry, reached there from Hsinkheng and Tiehling last night. An improvised air port is under construction in the suburbs. Headquarters of the Japanese railway guards have been moved to Supingkai.

Reports from Nanking, the scene of fighting yesterday when Japanese troops captured the city, state that Chinese forces have retreated to the southeast. The fort controlling the city was burned to the ground by Japanese troops.

Skirmishes Near Dairen.

Minor skirmishing was reported yesterday between fleeing Chinese troops and Japanese volunteers near Dairen.

Service on the Russian owned Chinese Eastern railway has been interrupted between Changchun and Harbin.

According to reports from Mukden, foreigners dancing at the International club escaped stray bullets from machine guns fired from automobiles by Chinese who refused to stop when ordered to by Japanese soldiers. The only other violence within the city occurred when Chinese looted the international section.

Chinese Destroy Railroad.

TOKIO, Sept. 21.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A dispatch to the Rengo news agency from Changchun early today said the southern section of the Chinese Eastern railway between Kwanchengtse and Ichienpu had been destroyed by Chinese soldiers.

Word of the alleged destruction of the railroad was received shortly after receipt of a strongly worded protest from Nanking, charging the occupation by Japanese troops of Mukden and other Manchurian cities was entirely unwarranted.

Nanking demanded the immediate withdrawal of Japanese troops from the various occupied areas within Manchurian territory.

Tomorrow Tokio will answer the note, protesting against what the government considers a deliberate attempt of Chinese regulars to destroy property of the South Manchurian railway.

Russia Protests Detention.

A dispatch from Harbin to the Rengo news agency said that Soviet Consul General Oriov drew attention of Japanese Consul General Nakano today to the alleged detention of all soviet railway employés and the injury to two of them during the Japanese occupation of Kwanchengtse. Nakano promised a prompt investigation.

A spokesman for the foreign office said the government views the bombing of railway property at Peitaying as engineered chiefly by a clique of young Chinese officers. It was thought the officers took that means of indicating their feelings against the Japanese, who had been pressing Mukden for an account of the shooting of Capt. Shintaro Makamura and several Russians as spies.

Nakamura and the Russians carried certificates from Chinese authorities permitting them to travel in Manchuria and make maps.

Baron Shidehara, the foreign minister, and other officials held several conferences today on the Manchurian situation. One of the points considered was the steps to be taken in the event the matter is brought before the league of nations and what Japan's attitude would be in the event a third party proposed a peaceful settlement.

The Rengo news agency says officials made it clear that Japan would do its utmost to prevent further occupation of Manchurian territory and emphasized that every effort was being made to localize the affair.

Rengo pointed out that the military action was merely a self-defense measure to protect Japan's communication rights on the South Manchurian railway, and that the occupation of Mukden and other strategic places was only temporary and that "therefore the Japanese forces would be withdrawn from those areas as soon as the situation was stabilized."

A Rengo dispatch from Changchun army headquarters places Japanese casualties during fighting at Kwanchengtse and Nanling at 63 dead, 119 wounded and two missing. A communique from Mukden placed the total Japanese losses at Peitaying and vicinity at two dead and 18 wounded.

China Sends New Note.

NANKING, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Having failed to receive an answer to its note of protest to Japan yesterday over the occupation by Japanese troops of Manchurian territory, the Chinese foreign office dispatched a second note late tonight.

The protest, sent through the Japanese minister to China, demanded immediate evacuation by Japanese troops of all territory now occupied and restoration of conditions as they were before the clash at Peitaying last Friday. China will reserve all her rights, the note concluded.

The second note was dispatched to Japan following a statement of Foreign Minister C. T. Wang that the Nationalist government was "greatly exercised by the unwarranted action of the Japanese troops."

Will "Lay Facts Before World."

The foreign minister said his government was prepared to "lay all facts before the world, so that it could be judged which party was the aggressor." Appropriate steps will be taken, he said, to appraise the signatories of the Kellogg anti-war pact and the league of nations.

The central executive committee of the Kuomintang, the most powerful political body in China and the power behind the Nationalist régime, convened at 4 p. m. today to discuss the Chino-Japanese emergency. No word was given out as to the decisions reached in the eight hour conference.

Meanwhile, Nanking leaders awaited word from Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, president of China, aboard the cruiser Yungsui, half way between Nanking and Hankow, en route to attend a military conference called to devise a defense against the invasion of Hunan province by Cantonese insurgents.

Latest news from Manchuria and also the opinions of the central executive committee were radioed to the Yungsui and the president's reply was anxiously awaited.

Some circles in Nanking still hope the Manchurian crisis will prove to be the result of Japanese military cliques' unauthorized actions, which the Tokio government will repudiate. This hope was based partly on Tokio dispatches indicating the cabinet had ordered the cessation of all military movements.

Japanese consul Uyemura today visited the Nanking foreign office and told Dr. Hau Mo, chief of the bureau of Asiatic affairs, Tokio had ordered all troop movements in Manchuria halted. Uyemura said he hoped it would be possible to confine the trouble to a small local area.

War Lord of Manchuria Clings to Policy of Peace

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20.—While Japan continues to hold all its Manchurian gains, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchurian war lord, with the approval of Nanking, has decided upon a policy of non-resistance until the Nationalist government of China acts.

An urgent meeting of the Nanking council will probably be held tomorrow upon the return of President Chiang Kai-shek. In the meantime Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang remains at Peiping. Tonight he is awaiting the report of his military representative who conferred with the general staff of the northeastern armies.

Denounce Japan's Seizures.

Japan's additional seizures in Manchuria are being denounced by the Chinese as a flagrant violation of international law.

The Chinese also see in Japan's occupation of Kowpangtze on the Peiping-Mukden railway, not far outside the great wall, and blocking the entrance from China proper, an attempt to force the fighting upon Chinese soil, well away from the Manchurian railway zone.

Meanwhile, the Nanking executive committee is pressing its appeal for national unity for the resistance of foreign aggression, while continuing to urge the suppression of communism, the government is making strong efforts to bring the Canton rebels back into the fold. Already the Cantonese have announced that their army will make no effort to invade Hunan province. The Cantonese are also urging the Kwangsi troops to retire to their own province. Similarly Nanking is asking the opposing factions to forget their differences in order to obtain unity and solidarity in the present crisis.

Acts to Settle Situation.

In the meantime Japan asserts that she is merely trying to localize the Manchurian clash, so that it will not affect China proper or Corea. The Japanese minister to China, Manoru Shigemitsu, stated today that he will begin negotiations towards a settlement.

A circular telegram from the Nanking executive committee denounces Japan's action and states:

"For many years Japan has been harboring its ambition to occupy the three eastern provinces in Manchuria, thereby paving the way for a conquest of the entire country."

Nanking also announced that Japan's military force ordered into Manchuria totals 12 divisions.

"An Act of War."

PEIPING, China, Sept. 20.—(AP)—China will refuse to be drawn into armed conflict with Japan, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, governor of Manchuria, said tonight.

"The surprise attack on Mukden on Friday night and the subsequent occupation of that and other places in Manchuria by Japanese army units constitutes an act of war, and was as unwarranted as it was unprecedented," he said in his room at the Rockefeller hospital here.

"It comes after weeks of agitation in Japan to inflame the minds of the Japanese people, and is launched at a time when China is in the throes of calamity caused by floods, communism and civil war.

Arms Placed in Depots.

"The world has been afforded the spectacle for some time past of war being manufactured. It now has been launched so far as Japan is concerned, but China has no intention of being an armed party to it. China is content to allow public opinion throughout the world form its own judgment and hopes and expects justice to be done in this case."

Two Japanese gunboats appeared off Huluato and Lienshanwan in Liaotung gulf yesterday, said an official report by Manchurian headquarters here today, and Yenchih, on the Kirin-Corean border, was reported occupied by Japanese troops. The report said that numerous Chinese officials in Manchuria had been arrested by the Japanese.

veterans, which have been a God-send to those financially disabled and to their families.

"Whenever I have given an interview as to what this convention may or may not ask regarding the adjusted compensation certificates; whether they should be paid in full at this time or whether the loan values should be again increased, I have stated that this was a subject that would be before this convention and a prediction by any one is guess work. This is a controversial subject and it would have been obviously out of place for me to make any prediction. I do think, however, that unquestionably legislation should be requested which will permit the government to make these loans to the veterans without making a profit from those veterans who are in such dire need of financial assistance that they must hypothecate their certificates.

"It is my hope that there will be relief in the employment situation during the coming months to such an extent that any immediate need for further liberalization will have passed. These certificates are valuable assets, a protection to the veteran and his family, and I am sure all veterans want to hold them as such, except when the need of funds is more urgent and pressing.

"If it develops that such further liberalizing legislation with reference to the adjusted compensation certificates will be detrimental to our country's welfare, or place an unfair burden on our fellow citizens, I am confident that this convention, with that knowledge, will not seek such further liberalizing legislation.

Resists Pauper Clauses.

"Our legislative committee should not only be instructed to sponsor certain legislation, but should be further instructed to oppose anything which might stop payments or curtail privileges to which world war veterans are now entitled by law. There is a powerful effort now being made to enact a general needs or pauper clause in connection with payments for death or disability or other legislation affecting disabled veterans, and this should be resisted to the limit of our united strength. Additional legislative matters are referred to in other sections of this report."

Commander O'Neil's charges that the government is profiting at the expense of the veterans who have borrowed funds on their adjusted compensation certificates is based, it was explained, on the fact that while the government is charging the veterans interest at the rate of 4½ per cent, the government is borrowing funds for the purpose at 2 per cent, profiting to the extent of 2½ per cent.

This is said to be earning the government an estimated $10,000,000 annually, and this money, the Legionnaires argue, should be saved to the veterans.

Does Not Touch Prohibition.

Commander O'Neil in his report does not touch on prohibition, and he is not expected to take any stand on that issue. But whereas in past legion conventions the wet and dry problem has always been side tracked on the ground that it is a political issue, it is now considered certain that prohibition will be thrashed out in some manner on the convention floor.

At a meeting of the rules committee today a resolution by Commander O'Neil that partial cloture be established over debate on the convention floor was adopted over protests by Edward Lindell of Minnesota, past department commander. The committee, by a vote of 16 to 12, voted to limit debate on any one subject to two hours. Lindell protested two hours was insufficient time in which to discuss the prohibition question.

"We are going to get this subject out in the open and discuss it freely if it requires three or four days," he declared. "It is too important to be hastily dealt with. What does it matter if we stay in session until Sunday provided the right answer is returned to our members on this subject."

Minority Report Expected.

When the rule was passed by the committee, Lindell insisted he would draft a minority report, thereby taking the fight directly before the convention. However, it was learned tonight that in an executive session of the resolutions steering committee, resolutions from three state departments calling for the Legion to take a stand on prohibition had been referred to the resolutions committee with a recommendation that they not be submitted to the convention.

If the resolutions committee upholds this recommendation it is difficult to state just what means the frustrated departments will take to get the matter before the convention.

At the same meeting the resolutions steering committee referred resolutions on the proposals for additional bonus legislation to the legislative committee with a resolution that the time is now "propitious" for further loans to be made.

Detroit today is fully under the sway of the Legionnaires. Sixty thousand members of the Legion had registered when a count was taken this afternoon and others are arriving at the rate of 6,00 or 8,000 every hour.

Booze flows freely all over the city. In virtually all the hotels bootleggers established in rooms piled high with cases of liquor are doing a heavy business. Some of the bolder purveyors hawked the stuff on the streets.

PRESIDENT EN ROUTE FOR DETROIT; TALKS BEFORE LEGION TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—President Hoover left his Rapidan camp late this afternoon for Detroit where he will address the members of the American Legion tomorrow. He was driven from his camp to Martinsburg, W. Va., where he entrained.

The speech is said to be directed mainly to heading off the threatened vote of the Legion in favor of asking congress for legislation authorizing loans up to full value on their bonus certificates, which will not mature till 1945. To make full pyament of the certificates now would require the government to borrow about two billion 300 million dollars.

With a billion and a half deficit for this fiscal year in prospect, on top of a 900 million deficit last year, the President is of the opinion that the necessity of cashing bonus certificates now would deal the nation a staggering financial blow.

MOYLE, ALLEN HOP TO NOME FROM SIBERIA

Tokio to U. S. Flight Foiled by Storms.

BULLETIN.

NANKING, China, Sept. 21.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Volunteering their services to the Chinese government for flood relief work, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off here at 7:45 a. m. today [6:45 p. m. Sunday, Chicago daylight saving time], for a survey flight over the inundated section of northern Kiangsu province, some 500 miles from Nanking.

NOME, Alaska, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, California aviators who were unsuccessful in an attempt to make a nonstop flight from Japan to the United States, landed here at 9 p. m. tonight from the coast of Siberia.

The flyers left Samushiro beach, Japan, Sept. 7, on a proposed nonstop flight to Seattle. After they had traveled 110 miles nothing was heard of the men until Moyle sent a wireless message to his fiancée, Miss Frances Bresson of Riverside, Cal., nine days later saying they had landed on an island on the Siberian coast. They reported that storms forced them off their course.

A wireless message today from the aviators, relayed via the St. Paul island radio station in the Bering sea, said they were leaving Miano Pilgino, Siberia, at noon [3 p. m. Chicago daylight time].

Lindys Go on Picnic.

NANKING, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Favored by fine weather, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh spent a happy Sunday on a picnic and sightseeing. Accompanied by American Consul General and Mrs. Peck, they drove to Sun Yat-sen Memorial park and lunched in the open air, undisturbed by the visitors.

Later the party drove around the beautiful Purple mountain on the sides of which is located the impressive Sun Yat-sen mausoleum, erected in 1928 in honor of the founder of the Chinese republic. The party also visited the tombs of the Ming emperors, returning to Nanking late this afternoon.

The Lindberghs arrived here yesterday after an 800 mile airplane flight from Fukuoka, Japan, in continuance of a vacation flight.

Col. Lindbergh visited Lotus lake today and refueled his plane to have it ready should it be needed by the flood relief commission in accordance with an offer of the flyer to use it in such activity.

THRONG CELEBRATES SWEDISH DAY; NEEDY WILL GET PROCEEDS

Approximately 20,000 persons attended the celebration of National Swedish day in Soldiers' field yesterday. Speeches, folk dances, music, and athletic events constituted the program. The proceeds will be used to assist unemployed citizens of Swedish descent in Chicago.

Estelle Taylor, movie actress, and the Great Lakes Naval Training Station band led a parade, composed of representatives of nearly 400 Swedish societies in Chicago. The Chicago Viking band, conducted by Gustav Carlson, and adult and children's choruses gave a program of Swedish songs.

Attorney General Carlstrom gave the principal address. Other speakers were State's Attorney Swanson and United States Attorney Johnson. A soccer game between Swedish and German teams and an exhibition drill by Swedish teams of the American Legion ended the program.

Building Commmissioner John R. Ericcson was chairman of the celebration.

Wilkins' Arctic Submarine Arrives at Bergen, Norway

BERGEN, Norway, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins' Arctic submarine Nautilus arrived here at 9 p. m. today. Most of the Nautilus' crew were paid off and will leave for Newcastle, England, tomorrow. It generally was believed the submarine would remain at Bergen for the winter. Sir Hubert is staying here for the present.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

POWERS RUSHED TO PRISON AFTER REPULSE OF MOB

Terrorized by Threat of Lynching.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 20.—A shambling, cowering figure slumped on a bunk in the death house of the West Virginia state penitentiary at Moundsville tonight, fearful that fellow prisoners would recognize in him the once swaggering Harry F. Powers, confessed slayer of two widows and three small children, rescued from a mob which stormed the jail here last night.

For the first time since his arrest, twenty-five days ago, the West Virginia Bluebeard lost his nerve. The howling, hooting mob of nearly 1,000 persons that swarmed over the jail house yard and streets in front of the Harrison county jail from before midnight until 2:30 o'clock this morning and cried for his life, broke through his mask of cold blooded indifference.

So fearful of the wrath of penitentiary inmates was Warden Scroggins that he had Powers placed in the death house.

No Trouble on Trip.

The trip to the penitentiary from Clarksburg was made without interruption. Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning when the crowd had thinned out to barely fifty curiosity seekers, Sheriff Wilford B. Grimm and Capt. Hobart Brown, commanding company A West Virginia state police, led the trembling Powers from the Harrison county jail. Fifteen state policemen, armed with machine guns and tear gas bombs, followed in their wake.

No one but officials was aware that he was being taken from the jail and Powers, visibly broken, glanced anxiously about as he left the jail doors that were stormed ten times by a mob within three and a half hours in unsuccessful attempts to take the slayer from the safety of the jail.

Fear Overcomes Prisoner.

When the mob, shortly before midnight last night, started its hooting and cries of "Let's get Powers," the noise was plainly audible within the jail corridors.

As the reports from the tear gas bombs grew louder accompanied by more frequent and menacing calls from the mob, Powers, handkerchief in hand, started pacing in his cell.

Eight members of the mob who were arrested during the onslaughts on the jail doors will face charges in Magistrate court Monday.

In one assault on the jail, a stocky coatless man led 100 men fifty feet past the deadline maintained by the guards, who were hurled back. Several fights took place as the police counter charged. This assault coming two hours after the mob first formed, was perhaps the most serious threat. Leaders of the mob were within twenty feet of the jail doors when three tear gas bombs and six pistol shots in the air drove them back.

Saved by Excavation.

A deep excavation has been made in the courthouse yard directly in front of the jail entrance, and only narrow passageways along the sidewalks, barred by felled trees, prevented the crowd from concentrating its attack. The sticky clay in the excavation caused the mob to form on the east and west sides of the jail, fifty yards from the jail door. Several thousand persons lined Main street, which is 150 feet from the jail entrance.

Mrs. Powers and her sister are still residing in their home in the Broad Oaks section of this city and have not been molested by the angry manifestations of the mob.

Michigan Avenue Raised 3 Feet at Randolph Street

Motorists in Michigan avenue this morning will encounter an elevation of three feet in the street level at Randolph street. By the use of a 3 per cent grade, both Michigan avenue and Randolph street have been brought up to the level of the new Randolph street viaduct. Through the use of a quick drying cement, which in 24 hours reaches the hardness attained by ordinary concrete in 28 days, the street intersection, closed by workmen yesterday, was reopened to traffic early this morning.

HUNT FUGITIVE CONVICTED FOR DIPLOMA MILL

W. H. H. Miller Missing from Champaign Home.

W. H. H. Miller, former head of the state department of registration and education, is a fugitive, it was announced yesterday by James Gabriel, chief of the sheriff's staff at the Criminal court. Gabriel said that his assistants have been searching for Miller for several days, but that he apparently had left his home in Champaign and gone into hiding.

Miller, who uses the title of colonel but does not say by what authority he obtained the title, was convicted in December, 1929, of being the head of a diploma mill ring which sold state medical and dental licenses to unqualified persons. At the time he was in charge of the state department which issued the licenses.

Sentenced to Jail.

Miller was sentenced to seven months in the county jail for conspiracy and fined $2,000. His case is now up on appeal in the Appellate court and it was recently discovered by the Chicago Crime commission that he had not put up a bond pending the reviewing court's decision.

As a result of the failure of officials to insure the posting of a bond Assistant State's Attorney A. C. DeWitt, in charge of the prosecutor's bond department, announced that he would instruct his assistants to watch such proceedings in the future.

Miller gave bond for his trial in the Criminal court. This bond was allowed to stand pending the perfection of his appeal. When the case reached the Appellate court Miller or his attorneys, according to the prosecutors, should have applied for a supersedeas bond to stay the execution of the capias pending the appeal.

Because of failure to take this action Miller, although convicted, is at liberty without a bond. Not until the crime commission made the discovery did the Criminal court officials investigate the records, although it is nearly two years since Miller was convicted.

Debate Over Responsibility.

The blame for the error was passed back and forth between the office of Clerk George Self and that of the sheriff. The clerk's office said that the mittimus was issued and turned over to the sheriff's office. The latter department said that inasmuch as Miller had perfected his appeal it was assumed that he had given an appeal bond.

Bailiff Gabriel said that he has asked the sheriff of Sangamon county to see if Miller is in Springfield, where he made his home while a member of the staff of Len Small when the latter was governor.

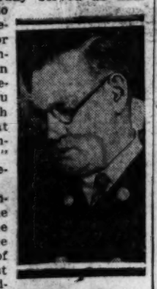
GAMBLING RAIDS ADD PUNCH TO CLEANUP ORDER

Raids made by police all over the city early yesterday served as additional notice to the lawless element that Mayor Cermak's cleanup order was in earnest. The detective bureau was filled with prisoners and at the regular Sunday "showup" gamblers predominated.



LIEUT. MARTIN McCORMICK.

The most important of the raids was at the Vanity Fair, one of the gayest of the city's night clubs at Broadway and Grace street. There, where merriment was the order on the lower floors, a well equipped gambling hall was in full blast on the third floor until the arrival of Lieut. Martin McCormick and his squad.

The roulette wheels were spinning, the dice were rolling and chuckaluck games were in full operation when Lieut. McCormick appeared on the scene. Efforts to bar the entrance of the police were futile, due to the brawn of the raiders whose shoulders burst locked doors apart, and in a few moments dozens of women were pleading not to be locked up. They were not, as the police were interested only in closing up the place.

GANDHI'S CREED IS TO CONQUER MAN WITH LOVE

Defines Nonviolence Policy; Calls It Success.

Mahatma Gandhi, who is attending the sessions of the federal structure committee in London which is formulating a mode liberal constitution for India, today wrote for the Associated Pres san explanation of the doctrine of nonviolence which he has followed in India as a means of securing nationalist demands.

BY MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND [MAHATMA] GANDHI.

LONDON,, Sept. 20. — (AP) — Consciously or unconsciously, we are acting nonviolently toward one another in every day life. All well constructed societies are based upon the law of nonviolence.

I have found that life persists in the midst of destruction. Therefore, there must be a higher law than that of destruction. Only under that law would well ordered society be intelligible and life worth living.

"Conquer Foe with Love."

If that is the law of life we must work it out in daily existence. Wherever there are jars, wherever you are confronted with an opponent, conquer him with love. I have found that the law of love has answered in my own life as the law of destruction has never done.

In India we have had an ocular demonstration of the operation of this law on the widest scale possible. I don't claim that nonviolence necessarily has penetrated the 360,000,000 people in India, but I do claim it has penetrated deeper than any other doctrine in an incredibly short time.

It takes a fairly strenuous course of training to attain a mental state of nonviolence. It is a disciplined life, like the life of a soldier. The perfect state is reached only when the mind, body, and speech are in proper coördination. Every problem would lend itself to solution if we determined to make the law of truth and nonviolence the law of life.

Truth and Nonviolence.

To me, truth and nonviolence are faces of the same coin. Whether mankind will consciously follow the law of love I do not know, but that need not perturb us. That law will work just as the law of gravitation will work, whether we accept it or not. Just as a scientist will work wonders out of various applications of the laws of nature, a man who applies the laws of love with scientific precision can work greater wonders.

For nonviolence is infinitely more wonderful and subtle than forces of nature like, for instance, electricity. The man who gave us the law of love was a far greater scientist than any of our modern scientists. The more I work out the law of love the more I feel delighted with life and the scheme of this universe. It gives me a peace and a meaning of the mysteries of nature that I have no power to describe.

MAYOR 'BOSSY' GILLIS FREED FROM JAIL FOR CONVENTION

Newburyport, Mass., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Mayor Andrew J. [Bossy] Gillis was released from police custody today in time to catch a train for Detroit and the national convention of the American Legion. He will return Sept. 28 to appear in the district court.

The mayor and the president of the city council, Eugene Twomey, engaged in a scuffle on the street last night and were arrested by state police.

Prior to the encounter the mayor had delivered a speech at a city council meeting at which he called some of the councillors "rats" and "yes, yes" men.

GANDHI SPENDS DAY IN FOREST WITH HIS FRIENDS

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi went picnicking today. It was the most peaceful day he has spent since he arrived in London a week ago to plead the cause of Nationalist India at the second round table conference.

After early morning prayers the mahatma, accompanied by his English woman disciple, Madeline Slade, his secretary, and about a dozen friends, went by motor from Kingley Hall to the historic Epping forest, a few miles from London, in Essex. The forest is a remnant of the original one which once blanketed most of England.

There the scantily clad Indian leader walked and talked with friends in haunts where royalty once hunted. He ate his customary frugal lunch. After a day spent in the fresh air and sunshine he returned to the hall late in the afternoon much refreshed. After evening prayers he retired, taking no part in any public program today.

FORGET
every stoker proposition until you see the quietest and simplest job on the market.

FREE
10 tons of coal

Quietness of operation is the unfailing yardstick by which we measure the efficiency of mechanical things. Stokers are no exception. Here is the quietest job on the market. That speaks volumes for the advanced engineering of the Holcomb and Hoke stoker.

Whatever stoker propositions have been submitted, by all means see the H&H before you decide. Its price is in line with any good stoker. It can be installed with any heating equipment—with hot water or steam plants of any industry or building.

We're offering FREE, 10 tons of stoker coal on all commercial installations and five tons with household installations. For two reasons. First, to bring ourselves quickly to your attention. Second, because there are several kinds of good stoker coal in Chicago and we want to be sure that you start with one of them.

1. Coal control—no clutch to throw
2. Hopper gas eliminated
3. More free space with tilting hopper
4. The simplest gearing

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SWOPE PLAN.

Mr. Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, has outlined a plan for the protection of wage earners and their dependents against the hazards of death, disability, old age and unemployment. Needless to say, it took a good deal of courage to propose such a plan in detail. The easier course would have been to speak, if at all, in hopeful generalities of what ought to be done without attempting to suggest how it should be done, and particularly without suggesting who is to pay the cost. It was refusal to face that problem which led the British government, by degrees, into assuming the enormous load of dole payments when the funds paid in by the workers and the employers proved insufficient.

As was inevitable, the sections of Mr. Swope's paper dealing with unemployment monopolized attention. That is unfortunate, because they cannot be understood without some knowledge of his preliminary thinking. Mr. Swope has come to the conclusion that the industrial employer must and should bear a part of the cost of insuring his employés against various hazards; but he has recognized that in a competitive world many employers will hesitate to undertake such expenditures unless all competitors join in the movement. Accordingly he proposes giving general supervision of insurance and similar matters to trade associations with authority to maintain standards within the association's membership. As we read his proposals, membership in these associations, once formed, would be compulsory for all employers with more than fifty wage earners on their pay rolls.

In Mr. Swope's plan neither the federal nor the state treasuries would be called upon to lend support. The financial responsibility would be shared equally by the employer and the employé. Through the machinery of the trade associations a workman's interest in an insurance fund would be maintained if he changed his employer or even if he changed from one industry to another. The government would enter the scheme only through a general supervision of trade associations by the federal trade commission or another similar agency. If this is an unwise use of governmental power, it is, at least, not as unsound as placing the administration of the funds in the hands of the government. To the extent that the Swope plan would result in a modification of the anti-trust act it can even be regarded as a step in the direction of individual as opposed to government initiative in business.

Industry, we believe, will be disposed to give Mr. Swope's proposals friendly consideration. Without any outside pressure, many employers in recent years have been insuring the lives of their employés and providing them with old age pensions as well as the disability payments which are required by law in most states. There is unquestionably a sound sentiment in this regard in the leaders of industry, and if few of them have provided some form of unemployment insurance as well it is only because of the difficulties inherent in the problem.

Old age, death, and disability are hazards which can be predicted statistically. It is possible, therefore, to insure against them and the cost is not unduly large. Insurance funds can be invested in the knowledge that there will be no sudden call upon them which will force the selling of all the securities held, and in a depressed market at that. Unemployment is not statistically predictable in the same way. When a period of industrial stagnation comes, it is as if, within a few weeks, a third of the employés of a company were to be incapacitated by accident. It is difficult and perhaps even impossible to set up insurance funds to meet such hazards and the cost must be heavy. The experience of the British unemployment fund is a measure of the difficulty.

Mr. Swope proposes to collect unemployment insurance funds from employers and employés, but he does not stake his plan solely upon these premiums and he does not propose to continue unemployment benefits indefinitely. He believes that through the information on sales, inventories and other industrial conditions which the trade associations will assemble that industry can be somewhat stabilized and the peaks and valleys flattened out, thereby lessening the chances of unemployment. He also proposes what is, in effect, a premium to the corporation which stabilizes its employment conditions.

No one, and Mr. Swope, we suspect, least of all, regards this plan as final and complete. Unquestionably, however, it is an important contribution to the solution of one of the most difficult problems which the world faces today. American industry may well take pride in the fact that its leaders have accepted responsibility for providing greater security to employés and in doing so have not turned to the goverment for help, financial or otherwise.

WHAT SHALL BE TAUGHT IN THE SCHOOLS?

The failure of the school board to put its affairs in order, to pay its teachers and to bring its expenses within its income derives in part from the fact that the holdover majority is intent upon using the schools for political advantage.

For the rest, the school board's failure is to be attributed largely to ignorance. If the board really wanted to cut its expenses to fit its income it wouldn't know how to go about it. That is because there is not, in the minds of the majority, any clear cut concept of what the schools are expected to accomplish for the pupils. Without an objective to serve as a guide to appropriations the board inevitably will work serious injustices to the pupils.

The board's income has been greatly reduced by nonpayment of taxes and its expenditures for some years to come must be on a scale considerably below that of recent budgets. Substantial retrenchments are unavoidable. These retrenchments should be made where they will work the least injury to the pupils. Fortunately, there is little doubt that many of the present activities in the schools can be curtailed or eliminated without seriously impairing the usefulness of the schools in equipping children with essential intellectual tools.

Mr. Kinsley's recent articles on the curriculum are to the point. Much time and money is being spent to teach table manners and how to carve a roast to children in the schools. The theoretical considerations which have led to the introduction of these subjects in the curriculum need not detain us. If there is not enough money to teach both arithmetic and table manners it should be fairly clear which of the two should be sacrificed. It is perhaps not unreasonable to expect that in some few homes in the city children will be taught how to behave at table and that the children from these homes, at least, will not suffer greatly if the subject is eliminated from the school curriculum.

The contrast between arithmetic and table manners is, no doubt, an extreme one. In between there are many shadings and gradations. What should be kept and what should be discarded can be determined only with a view to what is the grand objective of public school education. Only with the goal in view can there be any intelligent decision as to what must be kept at any price and what may be eliminated no matter how little it costs.

As the board of education is obviously incapable of making any such determination the question should be passed on to others who can. We suggest the appointment of a committee of educators to survey the present situation and set a new course for the Chicago public schools. On this committee should be the presidents or their deputies of the University of Chicago, Northwestern university and Loyola. The University of Illinois should be similarly represented. In addition, a few other strong minded men and women, educators and laymen, who are alive to current thought in educational circles, should be included, and among them, certainly, should be Prof. Henry C. Morrison of the department of education of the University of Chicago. Such a commission is needed to recommend a revision of the curriculum as much in the interest of the pupils as of the taxpayers. If the taxpayers are suffering from the mismanagement of our schools they, at least, are victimized only financially. The pupils are the principal sufferers and their loss, if it cannot easily be measured in dollars, is far heavier.

Editorials of the Day

[The Sun, Baltimore.]

The "experts" who deal with first-flight tennis are so generous in their use of superlatives that it is very difficult for the mere layman to tell just how capable any new champion is. It appears, for example, that Mr. George Lott Jr. of Chicago played "perfect" and "faultless" tennis in the national finals at Forest Hills, but that Mr. H. Ellsworth Vines Jr. of Pasadena, Cal., who admittedly played quite badly at times, beat him decisively and became the new champion. This would make it seem that Mr. Vines, at times, rose to what are commonly described as "superhuman heights" and thus overbalanced those periods when his feet were of clay with a performance for which a supply of accurate adjectives is lacking.

Failing, because of prior appropriation of adjectives, to deal with Mr. Vines' performance in the finals, we limit ourselves to the statistical notation that, in the final set, he spotted Mr. Lott three games at two points, leaving the Chicago player only two points from winning the set, and then ran out five straight games to the title. That, so far as we are concerned, indicates clearly enough that Mr. Vines, who is still some days short of twenty years of age, is a grand tennis player and a worthy champion.

Whether he is "another Tilden" we are willing to wait for some time to decide, since Mr. Tilden is approximately twice his age, and was a major campaigner when the new champion was in swaddling clothes. We hope he will prove to be, for while it may be better for the sport to have the championship circulated freely among a lot of fine players, the presence of a bench mark of perfection by which to gauge tennis performances is very helpful. In the meantime we hail the new champion and his victim. For to play perfectly and still get licked is no mean performance itself.

FARM BOARD FINANCE.

[New York Sun.]

Of the pending sale by the farm board of wheat which it should not own to Germany, this brief passage in a special cable message to the Times from Berlin is illuminating:

"On the basis of present estimates of the wheat harvest, Germany needs about 25,000,000 bushels of foreign wheat, but as the rains are still continuing, the amount to be imported may be as high as 36,000,000. It is believed that a great part will be from the United States, as it is doubtful whether Canada, Russia, and Argentina will grant the same credit terms as the United States."

The farm board, peddling wheat the taxpayers of the United States bought and carry, can afford to offer credit that Canada and Russia and Argentina cannot meet, terms that the wheat traders of the United States cannot meet. What does the farm board care for money? It draws from the federal treasury what it wishes and spends it as it pleases. Difference between outgo and income means nothing to the board; let the taxpayers sweat to make up the loss.

Nor is the farm board concerned about restoration of normal conditions. In the campaign for stabilization it is playing the part of the man who rocks the boat.

BENEFICENT BATS.

THE lobby of this building has been the scene of great happenings. A week ago a common, leatherwing bat somehow found its way into this office, located on the thirtieth floor of a building which stands in the midst of a city that is miles across in its least dimension.

The occupants of the office, being city-bred and never having learned to love leatherwing bats, the window was opened and the gentleman was invited to depart. He accepted the invitation, but admiring the architecture of the building, he reëntered—this time locating in a scroll work reproduction of Aesop's fables in the lobby.

There he stayed for several days, sleeping much of the time, but periodically flying around picking up a meal of insects. Those in the lobby kept a bat log and the comings and goings of the gentleman were quickly passed up and down the elevator shafts, and throughout the building by grapevine telegraph. Finally he deserted us, leaving the staff free to get out a daily paper, in which they told of the daily doings of another kind of animal.

The writer wishes to say a word in defense of the leatherwing bat. This animal is not a bird, nor related to any bird except in his ability to fly. He has fur rather than feathers, teeth rather than a bill, and his wings are leather or membranous.

He is the friendliest and most helpful mouse of all the tribe. He does no harm, destroys nothing, and spreads no disease. On the other hand, it has been seriously proposed that communities build "batteries" as their sole method of fighting malaria.

Bats catch mosquitoes and flies. In fact, they are the natural enemy of all flying insects because such insects are the bat's meal ticket. Just how much harm flying insects do to man, his live stock, and his crops no one can estimate.

There are great scientists who say that insects may yet drive man from the face of the earth. Whether this be true or not, all scientists agree that man should encourage all forms of animal life that naturally war on insects. Bats promote our comfort by killing insects and they do something to protect us against insect borne diseases.

We should add that the proposal to use "batteries" as a sole measure of malaria control did not make good, and the best that is now claimed for it is that encouraging bats is an accessory malaria control measure.

The rat and mouse are so brainy that they come into our houses, destroy our property, bring disease, and manage to live in spite of our enmity. Leatherwing bats come in and help us in doing so. Once in they become panic stricken and confused, and act accordingly. We disregard their helplessness, as well as their harmlessness, and turn our energies against them. Could we learn to love bats more and rats less?

PUNISHMENT IS NEEDED.

Miss E. C. writes: My nephew, 3½ years of age, blinks continuously with his eyes, and seems to do so unconsciously. What is the cause? What can be done? Is it serious?

REPLY.

The chances are ninty-nine out of a hundred that this is done intentionally. It is not serious. It is cured by punishment. The punishment should fit the crime. Any treatment that holds the boy in the spotlight makes the disorder worse.

BOTTLE FED BABY.

Mrs. J. H. M. writes: When a 19 month old baby is taken off bottle feedings, and fed from a cup, should the milk still be scalded and fed to the baby warm, or given directly from the milk bottle? I always use certified milk.

REPLY.

A child of that age should not drink from the bottle. There is no need to give the milk warm. Scalding is done to make the milk safe as regards tuberculosis, typhoid, and diarrhea. It is safer to continue scalding it, at least until the weather is cooler.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

ATTENTION "W. J. B."

Chicago, Sept. 13.—[Friend of the People.]—Is paving contemplated of Peterson avenue west of the river, in the neighborhood of Milwaukee avenue? Is there to be a bridge built? W. J. B.

Edward J. Glackin, secretary, board of local improvements, answered the first part of the above inquiry in this column on Sept. 11 by stating that an ordinance for paving Peterson avenue between Menard and Nagle avenues was passed May 15, 1929. Present plans do not contemplate extension of Peterson avenue beyond Caldwell avenue. Plans are complete for paving Caldwell avenue from Cicero to Touhy with a 40 foot pavement. The bridge over the Chicago river north of Touhy, on the Caldwell avenue extension, has not as yet definite plans, due to alignment being unsettled. Plans are complete and awaiting approval of the state highway department for a 44 foot standard bridge, replacing the present 24 foot bridge over the north shore channel of the Chicago river, between Kedzie and Lincoln avenues on Peterson avenue.

PAYMENTS UNDER LEASE.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If the lessor accepts less for his premises than the lease calls for, is the lease void? 2. If the lease is valid can the lessor sue his tenant for the difference—that is, what he pays and what the lease calls for? A. M. S.

1. No.

2. It is a general rule that where the amount due is not in dispute the payment of less than the full amount due will not operate as a discharge of the full amount.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL CONVEYANCE.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—How does the survivor convey property held in joint tenancy? Property was held jointly by husband and wife—the wife surviving. Does she convey as "widow" or as "surviving joint tenant," or how? Is it necessary to file a copy of death certificate of deceased to prove sole ownership by survivor? G. C.

We would suggest that she convey as widow and that a death certificate be furnished, but if you are the present owner you should comply with the reasonable desires of a prospective grantee.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE GOVERNMENT is worried over proving "intent" in the making of a gallon of wine out of a wine brick, no matter how much kick it has. Of course, if they actually catch you down in the cellar stirring the stuff, when the directions beg you piteously not to stir, then "intent" might be proved. But the wine could be stirred so easily without human agency. Traffic in the street which jars buildings could, of course, agitate the wine just the same as though it were stirred with a spoon. Or jumping around on the floor might have the same effect; or moving the piano around the room; or swinging Indian clubs and making a mistake now and then and giving the tub that holds the young wine a wallop. Mercy, we'd never think of stirring our gallon of wine brick, but, just the same, something may happen to agitate its peaceful surface. And, gee, how we dread it!

SONG TO BE SUNG QUICKLY.

My daughter is six years old today,
My daughter is six years old;
I'll give her a thought, the best to be bought,
And a dream cut in rubies and gold;
And a few of my stars and a slice of the moon—
I've always had more than I need—
And a wood full of dingles, and sixty-bell jingles
To hang on her milk-white steed.
She will ride through town in a glittering gown
With spangles all over her coat
To buy the best cake that the fairies can make
With that storybook coin, a groat.
For not much longer, O innocent love,
And not much longer, O sweet,
The gifts we bring and the songs we sing
Will build you your life complete.
And it's not much use when we've turned you loose
To search your own oysters for pearls,
To weep and moan for a fact well known,
That babies can turn into girls,
Heigh ho!

DOROTHY KISSLING.

GANDHI seems to have taken away one argument that is always used with great effect in our presidential campaigns: the one about a candidate not being able to wear a silk hat and a claw hammer coat just right and not being able in conversation and manner to put up a distinguished front with foreign diplomats. With Gandhi setting a new pace in statesmanship by trotting around London with nothing on but cotton panties, that mighty argument is dead. There isn't anybody that will be put up for the presidency next year who won't have something more in his wardrobe than cotton panties.

Dick: Does tha agrickulture dept. give pest killers to people outside of farmers? That bolweevil of mine is drivin me nertz; last night after me regesterin that I'm all in she says that me an her is goin to tha talkcheesie an see Garbootcha Schtoonk "Poland's Sweetheart" in her new pictcher called "Why did you egg me on." After 3 minutes of tha damn thing I gotta thinkin that if I'da had a sick hen fruit with me tha title cood of been changed to "Why did you egg on me." Seems Stanislaus, tha hero, was a dongola steerer who loves Rosycka but as usual coodn't propose cause these guys dont rate heavy wages. Next we see Stanny sittin on a rock in deep thought playing checkers with his dandruff when his foot happens to kick a book in tha sand an he starts readin. Tha book musta got lost at a A. F. of L. picnic cause Stanny gets tha idea to start a steerers' union an appoint hisself Treas. an bizness agt. Next scene he's dishin out dollar bills just before election, be even steals his mother's wedding ring so's he can buy cigars for tha boys. They assure him he's as good as elected but this must of been before they lit tha ropes cause Jahnke his hated rival for Rosycka's hand was elected by 3 thousand votes. Stanny insists on a recount cause only 122 men was in tha meetin hall. Much disgusted, he figgers some dirdy pool has got to be shot so he takes Rosy out in his dongola on a moonlight night an accidently (on purpose) lets tha oar slip out of his mit. About 2 o'clock, Rosy starts crying, an there drifting further an further, she says something in Polish to tha effect she'd give her kingdom fer a blowed up inner tube, but her wish aint granted. Stanny figures if he can keep her out all night, Jahnke will suspect she's been untrue an ditch her. About ½ past 2 another dongola pulls up an asks if there in trouble, Stanny lights a match an lo and behole tha people in tha other canoe is Jahnke an a swell blonde. Ennyway they get to shore an tha blonde an Stanny are soreazell an beat it leaving Rosy and Jahnke alone on the beach. Rosy asks him what right he's got to be on tha lagoon with a woman an he says he was just making merry, being dumb she don't get it tha way he meant it an she says "You cant try an make Mary and me at tha same time" an checks him out cold. If that's a plot I'll take tha kind they have in graveyards. The B. an C. cried all thru tha picture. When tha news reel showed Pres. Hoover's picture tha house went wild with applause. MOOD.

All night long the foghorns blast a warning—
All night long this thick fog until morning,
Like a heavy curtain thus suspended
Wherein every shape is blurred and blended,
Wherein ship is screened from ship, and ocean
One with sky, and stillness one with motion.

LONDON.—Two messages received in London today made the Balkan field the center of interest in the war and indicated that all the Balkan states may soon be plunged into the conflict. The first message was an announcement from the Berlin war office that German artillery engaged in battle with the Serbians on the Danube at Semendria, 24 miles southeast of Belgrade, and drove the Serbians back, silencing their guns. The second dispatch said that Bulgaria has begun the mobilization of troops made up of residents of Macedonia. The German-Serbian battle indicates that the kaiser has begun the long predicted drive to the assistance of the Turks. Turkey having promised territorial concessions to Bulgaria, it has been reported that the latter nation would not oppose the passage of the Teuton forces to the Turkish frontier. The prediction has been made that these moves would bring Rumania and Greece into the war on the side of the allies.

TRINIDAD, Colo.—With his identity unknown to most of the persons he talked to, John D. Rockefeller Jr. began learning by persistent questioning just what the residents of the various coal camps owned and controlled by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company think of the administration of that corporation, reflecting as it does the Rockefeller policy. Mr. Rockefeller said that he came to Colorado to see and hear for himself the conditions that exist. With his arrival there were persistent rumors that before his departure he may be served with legal process charging him with murder in connection with the deaths of many persons during the recent mine strikes.

RICHMOND, Va.—John Armstrong Chanler, the divorced husband of Amelie Rives, Princess Troubetzkoy, who months ago escaped from the Bloomingdale Insane asylum at White Plains, N. Y., has again taken his place in the world as one returned from the dead, and, backed by the best legal talent, will make a fight to have his sanity acknowledged and to secure possession of his property. Mr. Chanler was committed to the Bloomingdale asylum on March 13, 1897. He escaped in November, 1900. Efforts to locate him failed. On July 19 last a neatly dressed stranger arrived in Lynchburg and registered at the Arlington hotel as "John Chilton, North Carolina." Since then he has been in communication with United States Senator John W. Daniel, to whom he confided his secret. In addition, Mr. Chanler has secured the services of Augustus Van Wyck of New York and eminent lawyers of Virginia.

ELBERON, N. J.—Post-mortem examination of the body of President Garfield was made in the presence of and with the assistance of Drs. Hamilton, Agnew, Bliss, Woodward, Barnes, and Andrew H. Smith of Elberon by Dr. D. S. Lamb of the Army Medical museum of Washington. It was found that the assassin's bullet, after fracturing the right eleventh rib, passed through the spinal column in front of the spinal canal, fracturing the body of the first lumbar vertebra and lodging just below the pancreas, about two inches to the left of the spine. It had become completely encysted. The immediate cause of death was secondary hemorrhage from one of the arteries along the track of the ball.

President Chester A. Arthur arrived here in the afternoon. He was met at the train by Attorney General MacVeagh, Secretaries Windom, Hunt, and Kirkwood, and Postmaster General James. He was accompanied here by Secretary Blaine. With Mr. MacVeagh and Gen. Grant he went at once to Francklyn cottage, where President Garfield died. The interview of President Arthur with Mrs. Garfield is described in cabinet circles as very touching. Mrs. Garfield received this message from Queen Victoria of Great Britain: "Words cannot express the deep sympathy I feel with you. May God support and comfort you as he alone can."

DUCKS.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 16.—As an example of official idiocy—or is it ignorance or greed?—can anything compare with the latest national conservation measure as laid down for Illinois?

It has been proposed to curtail the shooting of ducks during the present season because ducks are unusually scarce. This is unfortunately a fact and evidence supporting this contention has been seen by every real sportsman. Those who have the interests of the sport for the future at heart will agree that some measures should be taken to prevent or at least decrease the killing of water fowl until the unusual natural conditions which have been largely responsible for their decrease have changed for the better and given the birds a chance to come back.

There has been some talk of closing the season entirely this year. From the standpoint of conservation that would have been the thing to do, but unfortunately interests more concerned with the immediate commercial exploitation of our duck hunting have succeeded in perpetrating an outrage that will go a long way toward erasing our waning wild fowl supply.

A glance at a map will make the situation plain to any one. Indiana, to the east of us, has an open season on wild fowl beginning Oct. 16. On the west side of us Iowa opens its season Oct. 20, Illinois opens Nov. 1.

Wild fowl going south will be unmolested in Illinois until Nov. 1 and will congregate along the Illinois river marshes in fancied security. At the season's opening they will be slaughtered by the thousands by the so-called hunters who never hunt but simply pot these baited birds.

The hunters of northern Illinois will have to watch this and like it, as the flight of wild fowl is practically over in northern Illinois by Nov. 1.

In other words, to conserve our duck supply the federal commission has simply made a funnel of Illinois to expedite the passage of unfrightened wild fowl into the gigantic orgy of slaughter that takes place under commercial supervision along the Illinois river every year.

AT SEA.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—M. F. C. inquires if any one saw the cross behind the moon on the night of Aug. 30. Yes, the cross was seen on the high seas two days out of Cherbourg from the S.S. Leviathan. We had an exceptionally smooth sea, and the cross appeared behind the moon about midnight. The ends of the cross were a pale pink.

Upon inquiring the next morning as to whether or not it had any particular significance, we were told that it was probably due to some atmospheric disturbance. A. MARGARET FIEDLER.

SOME DISCERNMENT.

Moline, Ill., Sept. 14.—For THE TRIBUNE to offer the advice it did to the holders of idle wealth in its editorial on the 3 per cent bond issue took a certain amount of courage as well as some discernment. Owners of inactive capital should be made to realize the truth of the recent warning of the president of the Baltimore and Ohio that private capitalism and our present social plan are on trial, and judgment by the final tribunal of mankind may be adverse, making way for changes whose ultimate result none may safely predict. Lowered buying power is not the cause but the effect of business depression. You put your finger on the cause when you cited idle, hidden capital as blamable for widespread unemployment.

If the government is compelled by a sense of self-preservation, as well as of humanity, to step into the breach and make labor employing investments, taxation must accompany the issuance of bonds for the purpose. If this involves the further seizure of property and income by higher and higher levies to be laid out in a wider field of government enterprise, it will only prove the logic of unfolding events in this era of change.

It is not beyond possibility under our present government to uncover for levy those securities of which billions go untaxed; to increase income rates in the higher brackets, and above all to seize large estates passing from ancestor to progeny by taking 100 instead of 20 per cent. When this is done to decentralize the power of wealth and give employment to the people, inheritors will finally understand that getting ready made fortunes from the previous generation is not a matter of natural law but of Roman statutes filtered through the laws of England as an indulgence of government to family vanity.

I, for one, hope that you will persevere in such prodding of the holders of idle money as to awaken them to their responsibility and get their wealth into employment creating channels. As it now stands, this element, that will be most disastrously affected by a sweeping change in our industrial and social system, is inviting such change in utter blindness to impending dangers.

SEEN THROUGH A SCREEN.

Bryan, O., Sept. 17.—M. F. C. reports seeing a cross back of the moon, heard of one previous to the world war, and wonders. There was also one before the Spanish-American war; before McKinley's assassination; before Woodrow Wilson's death; just previous to the Hoover landslide—in fact, there is one any time that the moon is viewed through a screen, if the moon is bright enough.

35 SLEUTHS HUNT FRANTICALLY FOR YACHT SLAYERS

Seek "Old Man in Canoe" as Key to Mystery.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The search for a solution of the ten day old mystery of the murder of Benjamin F. Collings and the subsequent happenings in the ruffled waters of Long Island sound branched in two sharply diverging directions here today.

One band of hunters combed the beaches, woods, and villages along both shores of the sound in a hunt for a white haired paranoiac with a streak of perversion, believed to be the "old man of the canoe" who brought tragedy to the yacht Penguin. Another squad of Suffolk sleuths, aided by the celebrated Felix Di Martini who gained fame as the man who failed to solve the Hall-Mills case a few years ago in New Jersey, swept down on the placid Sunday afternoon yachts of Brooklyn and Manhattan. They were questioning half a dozen amateur yachtsmen and boatmen known to have been anchored in the coves and inlets around Oyster bay on the night of Sept. 9.

Many Sleuths, Many Theories.

In all 35 detectives sought frantically tonight to solve the Collings case. They were working on almost as many theories. Meanwhile District Attorney Alexander Blue of Suffolk county turned up again at Huntington, L. I. He moved in a mysterious manner, divulged he was working with new material, and rode away in a motor car.

The old fashioned town of Huntington, L. I., is going about its business with a tilted nose, snubbing detectives and newspaper sleuths alike. The gentlemen of the press, each with his or her private theory, have begun fighting among themselves and a small riot took place early today in the hotel in which they are quartered. After the fracas it was revealed they were trying to settle a couple of conflicting theories.

Second Canoe Adds to Puzzle.

One of the features of the Collings case—and a feature that has caused the operatives a lot of trouble—is the fact that all evidence comes in pairs. First there were "two pirates," then it became evident that undoubtedly two men were drowned in the sound on the night of the crime. Next a two yacht named Penguin bobbed up to further complicate matters. There were two duffle bags produced in the stories when one duffle bag became to small to possibly hold all the things it was said to have contained. Now it develops there were two canoes.

A gnarled old sailor, named Capt. Bill Bangs, reported a second canoe. It was a red canoe, he said, and was the property of the Penguin.

Those who hold the theory Collings was slain by persons already aboard his yacht, point out that the red canoe had would change the entire mystery. The canoe in which the two pirates ferried Mrs. Collings across the sound after kidnaping her from her 5 year old baby, Barbara, heretofore has been described as blue in color.

The detectives were investigating every derelict canoe in lower Long Island sound today.

It was learned this afternoon that the investigators have not entirely given up the idea that bootleggers might have played a part in the Penguin crime.

Judge William A. Kelly, counsel for the Collings family, denounced a published story that Mrs. Collings had confessed to her father, Norman P. Cullin, pianist, that her husband drank heavily and was disagreeable when under the influence of liquor.

UNION STRIFE IS BLAMED FOR HOME BOMBING

Strife among members of the Electrical Workers' union was blamed yesterday by Chief of Detectives Norton for the early morning bombing of the home of William F. Cleary, 6240 North Campbell avenue, financial secretary of the union. The small black powder bomb caused damage estimated at $100.

The blast was believed to be a warning gesture to Cleary, who had recently been questioned in connection with the slaying of Mortimer Enright, chief electrician for the school board and a leading member of the union, whose body was found near Hinsdale on Sept. 8. Cleary, his wife, Patricia, and her sister, Miss Adele Movinle, were aroused from their sleep by the explosion.

Cleary, questioned by Chief of Detectives Norton, said he knew of no reason for the bombing. Michael Boyle, business agent of the union, was also questioned. Cleary is said to be one of the estimators of the so-called electrical survey bureau, which is alleged to dictate bids on electrical work in the city. Charges of graft in connection with the survey bureau are under investigation by the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office.

DAIRY FARMERS SHOW GAIN IN PRICE ADVANCE

Find Selves Better Off than Others.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Dairy and poultry farmers in the midwest states are in a much stronger economic position than the wheat and cotton producers as a result of the gradual rise of between 30 and 40 per cent in dairy and poultry prices since the record low point last May.

Extra grades of butter were selling for cash at 30 cents in Chicago when the market closed last week as compared with 21 cents on May 11 and 26 to 27 cents last winter. The cries heard last summer when poultry farmers could get but 10 and 15 cents a dozen for eggs have been silenced during August and September.

Eggs Comparatively High.

Eggs now are bringing more in comparison to other farm prices than any corn belt product save butter, and fresh poultry is selling at a premium over all meats. And the poultry business means some 60 million dollars yearly cash income to Illinois farmers alone.

"We consider the dairy industry in a most favorable position in comparison to other industries at this time," said W. F. Jensen, secretary of the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers. "There is no overproduction of dairy products this summer and fall, and the consumption of butter, cheese, and milk products has kept up—to the surprise of farmers and manufacturers—at a high point considering conditions."

Farmers obtain a higher percentage of the consumer's food dollar in dairy and poultry products, than in any other agricultural commodity, and this, combined with the fact that payments are in cash, insure producer benefits in every market advance.

Midwest Production Not Cut.

C. L. Pier, marketing authority for the bureau of farm economics in Chicago, believes the chief cause of the rise in prices has been curtailment of production in the drought areas of Iowa, Minnesota, the Dakotas and a section of Wisconsin, where dairy production is normally the highest in the nation. He quotes several authorities to show that no material curtailing of production has occurred in the middle west states east of the Mississippi.

While dairy and poultry prices are still a few points under 1930 levels, the cost of feed and labor have dropped even more, authorities interviewed yesterday said.

One buyer of large quantities of farm products in Chicago said he was "agreeably surprised" in talking with dairy farmers to find them satisfied with their lot on the basis of milk at $1.15 per hundred pounds while oats was plentiful at 13 cents a bushel. Last year at this time the same farmers were paid $1.70 a hundred for milk with oats at 40 cents, and other feeds in proportionate cost, he said.

FAMILY OF SIX KILLED AS TRAIN HITS THEIR AUTO

Delano, Cal., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Six members of a family were killed when a Southern Pacific train struck the automobile in which they were returning from a dance 12 miles east of Delano today. The dead were.

William E. Youngblood, 39, formerly of Henryette, Okla.; Mrs. Laura Ellen Youngblood, 35, his wife, and their children, Raymond Youngblood, 17; William Youngblood, 15; Harold Youngblood, 15, and Ellen Youngblood, 8.

Auto Hits Truck; Child Killed.

Litchfield, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The 4 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kirkwood of Centerville, Ia., died in St. Francis hospital today and the mother and a 3 year old son were seriously injured when their car collided with a truck on the state road near Staunton. An inquest verdict held the driver of the truck for manslaughter.

ARREST MADE IN ALIEN SMUGGLER SUSPECT ESCAPE

Brooklyn Man Seized on Conspiracy Charge.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Federal secret service agents investigating the activities of the international ring that has been smuggling aliens into this country arrested Morris Renkoff, a real estate dealer of Brooklyn, today on a charge of conspiracy in aiding Umberto Bianchi, Rumanian physician and lawyer, to escape from Governor's island. Additional arrests were expected.

The arrest of Renkoff followed the questioning of Corporal Alfred G. Bral of the disciplinary barracks on the island, who confessed to having accepted a bribe of $400,000 to permit Bianchi to escape last Friday.

Promised Beautiful Bride.

Bral told detectives that with the money he received for Bianchi's escape he was to buy his discharge from the army. He made arrangements to go to Paris, where he "was to be introduced to a beautiful 17 year old Rumanian girl with blue eyes and long blonde tresses." It was planned for him to marry the girl, he said, and then pose as a beneficiary of his wealthy wife's dowry.

Bianchi, said by the government agents to be one of the ringleaders in the alien smuggling plot, was brought from Sing Sing, where he was serving a sentence from three to six years for forgery, to the island six weks ago, where he was being interrogated regarding the activities and identities of the smugglers.

Faces 30 Year Term.

Corporal Bral, who is to be court martialed as well as tried in the federal courts for his participation in Bianchi's escape, faces a maximum penalty of 30 years' imprisonment.

He was brought to the federal building from the disciplinary barracks, where he is now a prisoner, and talked freely with the detectives and to Murray W. Garsson, special assistant secretary of labor, who is in charge of the investigation.

As a result of Bral's detailed story regarding the escape of Bianchi a dozen arrests in the course of the next few days were predicted. The federal grand jury, which meets Tuesday to take up the alien smuggling case, also will have its official attention directed to the Bianchi escape, and indictments in connection with this phase are anticipated.

Gets $3,000 in Cash.

The investigators admit the story Bral told is one of the strangest they ever heard. Their credulity was stretched, they admitted, when Bral, with an excellent army record of more than fifteen years and decorations for bravery in the world war, said he was given $3,000 in cash, a letter of credit for $400,000, which he mailed to the Bank of France in Paris to be placed to his credit, for permitting Bianchi to escape. He was quoted as stating he was offered as much more after Bianchi made his successful getaway.

The detectives declared that Bral admitted he obtained for Bianchi a suit of clothes and a wig which were used to effect the escape. The corporal was quoted as having said that Bianchi left Governor's island on a government boat.

Mr. Garson announced today that every available agency of the government will be used to recapture Bianchi and arrest every one connected with his escape.

DREDGE WORKER DROWNS.

Maurice Coll, 40 years old, 221 Whiting street, an employé on a dredge at the Montrose avenue fill off Lincoln park, fell into the water and was drowned yesterday.

CITY SPEEDS TRAFFIC BY INSTALLATION OF NEW CONTROL LIGHTS

Under its $500,000 program for the quickening of traffic through the improvement of control lights, the city is proceeding rapidly with the installation of the progressive or "wave" type of circuits, according to Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer. Work is in progress on controls at 59 busy intersections in various parts of the city.

Mr. Sorenson explained that the progressive system is so timed that the lights in a given stretch of street change successively rather than simultaneously. There are adaptions for varying circumstances, but the idea is to permit a motorist continuous progress over the greatest possible distance without penalizing cross traffic with long waits.

In order to get the maximum benefit of the arrangement, Mr. Sorenson said, a motorist must maintain a speed in accord with the timing of the lights. Signs with instructions as to speed are to be installed.

"Eventually we hope to get all of the principal traffic lanes on a progressive or 'wave' basis," Mr. Sorenson went on. "Experience here and in other cities has taught us that traffic can be greatly speeded up by eliminating much of the time lost facing red lights. The new system is safer as well as faster, because a motorist progresses at a reasonable rate of speed knowing that he will not have to stop unless he drives recklessly and exceeds that speed."

COMPLAINANT IN JAIL FOUR DAYS; HE WONDERS WHY

Paul Polis, 20 years old, 3742 South Paulina street, who appeared last Wednesday night at the detective bureau as a complaining witness against an alleged confidence man, completed his fourth day in jail yesterday on the orders of Chief of Detectives John Norton. The man he accused is out on bond.

No charge was placed against Polis, and apparently the only basis for holding him was an accusation made by the man whose arrest he caused, Chester Dudzinski, alias Griecziak, 30 years old, 1515 Wabansia avenue. When confronted by his accuser Dudzinski told Chief Norton, "Aw, that fellow's a burglar himself."

Chief Norton asserted yesterday that Polis had asked that he be kept at the bureau. "He said he liked it here," Norton said.

"Like it? I should say not," Polis said when that remark was reported to him. "I never asked to be locked up. Dudzinski got $1,200 from me, money I had saved up by working three years for the Western Electric company. He told me after I was laid off two months ago that he would get me a job as a deputy sheriff if I would put up the $1,200 for a bond.

"I had only $3 left when they arrested him and lock me up, too. The first couple of days it wasn't so bad, because I could send out for food. But I ran out of money and I can't eat this grub here. All you get is bread and bologna and coffee that's like dishwater. I haven't had anything to eat for 24 hours."

Dudzinski, who accused him of being a burglar to Chief Norton, had been arrested before as a confidence man. Two other alleged victims, M. Glowalki, 4614 South Homan avenue, and K. Parker, 3838 Parnell avenue, signed complaints against him after he had been arrested on Polis' complaint. He posted bond Saturday on all three charges.

LOST! 20 Lbs. Of FAT In 3 Weeks

Well Known Lansing, Michigan, Woman Jubilant—Regains Health and Vivaciousness. Feels, Oh, So Light and Full of Pep.

Suppose you were way overweight for your height—165 lbs.—and every time you looked in a mirror it showed you with a double chin, heavy arms and legs, large hips and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, very nervous and irritable.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the dilemma of Miss Iva Root, of Lansing, Mich. She read about Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, the one safe, natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing waste from the intestines and removing retained moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell the story:

"Talk all you please about fat people being good-natured. I wasn't when I weighed 165 pounds—20 pounds too much and I'm only 26. Everybody thought me a grouch. Really, I was sick with acid, gassy indigestion, and constipation. I bloated terribly after meals. But for a long time I could find no relief.

Then I read a Bonkora ad. Three bottles took off 20 pounds surplus weight and rid me of my indigestion, too."

You may not lose 20 pounds in three weeks. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages" as shown in this picture. For the next week, before meals, take a little Bankora, the new Battle Creek treatment, in half a glass of water. No need to starve. Eat as much as you want. The biz secret is selecting for each meal the proper combination of foods that do not clog the system and turn to fat. An almost endless choice of appealing dishes showing you how to select the correct combination of foods you probably like best furnished free.

Bonkora, the safe and effective method in preface—recently perfected by a skilled chemist—contains only the choicest and most efficacious medicaments of Nature. NO thyroid or other drug that may jeopardize your health.

Simply get a bottle of Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, with free list of anti-fat food combinations at Walgreen's today—unhealthy fat will quickly disappear and with it bloat, gas, and other stomach ills. You'll feel younger: rest, you'll look younger, with those bright eyes and that clear skin and stunning, youthful figure which only perfect health can impart.

Big bottle of Bonkora only 98c at all Walgreen and Economical Drug Stores.

A SAMPLE OF RED PROPAGANDA BY 'HIGH PAY' GORKI

Russian Writer Defends 8 U. S. Negro Rapists.

Maxim Gorki is the only Russian author permitted to enter and leave soviet Russia as he wishes. He is the highest paid writer in Russia and spends his winters in Capri, Italy. The following article was published by him in the Moscow Izvestia under the headline "Capitalists' Terror Against the Negro Workmen in America." I have translated it literally, for it is an excellent specimen of the type of propaganda being published in the soviet press. It shows why the Russian workers think the bread lines in America are far longer than those in Russia.—DONALD DAY, Riga, Latvia, Correspondent of The Tribune.

BY MAXIM GORKI.

The capitalists and their faithful servants, the Social Democrats and Fascists, the Churchills and Kautzkis, old men, half mad as they view the present social catastrophe; youth whose ambition is to become a successful parasite; "rascals of the pen and scoundrels of the press"; all this rotten crowd formed by the capitalistic system, are accusing the bolsheviks of the U. S. S. R. that they are trying to destroy "culture." The bourgeois press has received its instructions from its masters to "fight against the bolsheviks, against communism, and for culture."

MAXIM GORKI. [A. P. Photo.]

Yes, the capitalists have something to fight for! Their "culture" is a row of institutions, acting freely, whose aim is to protect and justify the unlimited might of the parasitic minority over the laboring majority—peasants and workers.

Insists Police Kill Workers.

Their culture is the school where lies are told, the church where lies are told, the parliament where lies are told, the press which lies and calumniates, and the police which have the right to kill the workers. Their culture has increased so much that it has developed a daily fight with the workmen, who protest against being robbed, who do not want to be poor, who protest that their wives lose their health and are old women at thirty, that their children die of hunger and their daughters earn a piece of bread by street walking, and who do not wish that criminals should be born from the honest laboring class through unemployment.

The results of culture in bourgeoise countries are street battles between the police and workers, an increasing number of suicides owing to hunger, the development of petty thefts caused by unemployment and prostitution. This is not exaggerated, for the bourgoise press is full of these things. Cultured capitalism lives at perpetual war with the working class, and it is becoming more bloody day by day. The minority fights for the right to rob the majority. This is the real situation in all countries beyond the boundaries of the U. S. S. R.

It is a war of the rich against the poor and hungry, who are trying to organize themselves for the last decisive fight (a world revolution). This war is killing the best leaders of the working class in order to weaken it, placing them in prisons, sentencing to death innocent people, such as Sacco and Vancetti.

Refers to Negro Trial.

At present in the town of Scottsboro, in America, a drama is unfolding itself similar to the case of the two Italians who, after being sentenced to death, sat for seven years in prison awaiting the day they were to sit in the electric chair. The humanitarians of Europe protested against this case. The laboring class also protested, but this did not cause a single split in the wooden faces of the American millionaires.

In Scottsboro, Ala., there have been sentenced to death eight young Negroes. They are also innocent. They were accidentally captured by the police and did not even know each other, but still they were sentenced to death. This is done because the Negro masses, more and more, are being attracted to the revolutionary movement and are "solidarizing" with the white laboring masses. They are taking an active part in the fight against American imperialism. The bourgeoisie are afraid the rebellion is increasing among 30,000,000 Negro workers and peasants. They are taking all possible measures to liquidate the growing fighting forces of the Negroes. Against them is arrayed the white terror.

The Camp Hill Events.

This is clearly seen from the bloody events in Camp Hill, Ala. This incident strengthened the campaign of the working classes of the entire world, not only against the lynching of the eight youths but also for the protection of the Negro masses in the United States.

The Negro farmers in Tallapoosa county, Ala., this year formed their own organization. It is of a combative character, and takes an active part in the campaign in Scottsboro. Two weeks ago it gathered its members in a church to protest against the events in Scottsboro. The land owners mobilized 400 policemen and armed Fascists and then attacked the church. The leader of the organization was injured, and when the attackers learned he was still alive they surrounded his home and killed him at a moment when the doctor was treating his wounds.

In the hunt for other leaders many Negro huts were searched and four Negroes were taken into a forest, where they were lynched. Fifty-five Negroes were arrested and accused of murder. Five workers were accused of attempting to murder at the trial and the sheriff was injured when he attacked the heroes.

In the prison of Harlan, the center of the coal mining region of east Kentucky, a source of wealth for the richest corporations of the country, which bring hunger, poverty and death to their miners and families, about 100 miners have been thrown into dark prison cells. Many are accused of murder and the death sentence awaits them.

Charges Police Attacked Miners.

Three months ago the miners called a strike in an attempt to improve their living conditions. The governor ordered the police to attack them. The owners of the mines sent armed Fasciati against them, as well as sheriffs and police. Heavy ammunition and bombs were used to suppress the strike. As a result, 31 persons were killed—18 miners and 13 Fasciati soldiers. The miners obtained three cannon and attacked the grocery store of the company, taking food for their starving families. Now 18 miners are awaiting the death sentence, 50 have been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, and 16 miner's homes have been burned to the ground. The eviction of the miners from their homes is still continuing.

The American section of the M. O. P. R. [soviet government's international aid for imprisoned revolutionists] has awakened international interest in the Scottsboro trial. For the first time since the American civil war the merciless exploitation of the Negro working masses by the ruling classes of the United States is being published throughout the world. In soviet Russia, England, France, Australia, Cuba, Austria, Germany and many other countries workers are passing resolutions to free the eight Negro boys in Scottsborough. Thousands of demonstrators gathered before the American consulates in Germany and Cuba. Such persons as Gorki, Dreiser, Einstein and others are participating in this campaign.

Urges Greater Agitation.

The eight Negro boys are suffering in the Scottsboro prison thinking about the electric chair and listening to the words of the guards that their day is approaching. It is necessary to strengthen the agitation throughout the world. Every meeting, demonstration and paper must protest against the white terror, which American capitalism is using to suffocate the growing excitement among the Negro masses of the United States. The proletariat of the entire world protests against the execution of their brothers. But the capitalists cannot be humane!

The proletariat must protest against these murders, but they must realize that capitalism cannot avoid murder, and their best leaders will be killed. The capitalists chase after their dollars which are worth more to them than a human life.

The capitalists will not personally go and wage war against the U. S. S. R. If they decide to fight they will send to the fields of death their workmen and peasants against workmen and peasants who have destroyed capitalism in their own country.

Claude Russell, Deaf Mute, Ordained Baptist Minister

Services last night at the La Salle Avenue Baptist church at 1219 North La Salle street marked the ordination to the ministry of Claude Russell, a deaf mute, of 623 Madison street. Russell believes himself to be the first man unable to hear or speak to become an evangelist. His particular field of service will be among those similarly afflicted. Last night, reading the Bible which he held in the palm of one hand, Russell with the other translated the Scripture into the sign language for the dozen or more deaf mutes in the audience.

Hamilton as Business Man Seems All Hero

New Biography Depicts Great Federalist.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Alexander Hamilton, First American Business Man," by Robert Irving Warshow. [Greenberg.] Published today.

THE author of this latest of the biographies of Alexander Hamilton says in his preface, "Alexander Hamilton has been blessed with many biographers, and every important detail of his activities that is likely ever to be unearthed has probably already been revealed. An author can not properly pretend to present general facts that are new to the historical student. But in the distribution of emphasis, it seems to the present writer, there is room for contribution to be made."

The emphasis on Alexander Hamilton as a business man is the choice of Mr. Warshow. "In the existing biographies of Hamilton," he says, "there is little emphasis on this portion of Hamilton's activities, yet it was as financier and business man that our first secretary of the treasury proved his immortality. For as a man he was not noble; as a politician he was not an eminent success; as a statesman, apart from financial measures, he was not superior. But as a business man, not in all his period was any man to touch him, nor in all the years of American history can a figure dwarf him in this, his natural field."

It is as a business man and as a financier that the author looks upon his hero and, you might suspect, finds him very good. Mr. Warshow's analysis of Hamilton's business genius is of such a degree of excellence as to name "Alexander Hamilton" to be the month's selection of the Business Book league.

I must confess that to a nonbusiness person like a literary editor "Alexander Hamilton" doesn't seem in the vaguest sense a business book. It seems a biography with less emphasis than usual put upon the more intimate personal relationships of the hero, and with a good deal of interesting material about the first stock exchange manipulators, the beginnings of the extremely complicated system of national finance (complicated to a layman, at least) and the general making of a new government in which Hamilton had a heavy, though a deft hand.

The same Hamilton that we have known from Gertrude Atherton's "The Conqueror" to Claude Bowers' "Jefferson and Hamilton" is in Mr. Warshow's biography, except that his version of the causes of the famous duel with Aaron Burr differ from Mrs. Atherton's.

"An unverified account of Hamilton's last evening before the duel, as reported by Gertrude Atherton," he writes, "mentions a visit from the notorious Eliza Croix, better known as Madame Jumel. Her version includes a vow of eternal love and an appeal to avert hostilities at the last moment. Still another version ascribes the duel to a struggle between Hamilton and Burr for her affection. This interpretation probably was based on Burr's marriage to Madame Jumel many years later, when both were old and 'should have known better.' But the actual cause of the duel can not be ascribed to any such romantic incitement. It was bound to come, for it was grounded on an instinctive hostility between the two disappointed politicians, a hostility aggravated by their continual friction as political and personal rivals. At that time the final expression could be found only in a duel and the inevitable happened. It is surprising only that the deep seated antagonism, so publicly acclaimed, did not sooner reach the issue to which gentlemen of the period appealed as their court of last resort."

This author deals with Hamilton's married life in a short chapter. "The story of Hamilton's life en famille" he writes, "can be told in a few lines, for never, even from the very beginning, was his wife a force or factor in his accomplishments." Hamilton's affair with Mrs. Reynolds achieves a larger chapter, for it came near to wrecking Hamilton politically and caused the amazing apologia which contains one of the most astonishing documents in history. In it Hamilton confessed to a moral iniquity to clear himself of charges of monetary guilt in his political life.

About Hamilton's financial genius as first secretary of the treasury the author writes: "In less than six years in office Hamilton had created the complete fiscal administration of a country. Adamant in his principles, autocratic in his methods, he had pressed forward with the genius of the great business executive. Such results almost always carry by-products which lead to doubtful situations. His remorseless drive, his indomitable will to complete the structure, had led Hamilton to override political technicality and dispense arbitrarily with official red tape. His enemies made the most of it. To protect public information from use by others was his duty, and his indiscretion in permitting leaks may be termed dereliction by hostile politicians. But looking back over the years at the most magnificent financial structure ever conceived and executed by any one man, the petty deviations seem so trivial as hardly to warrant discussion at this distance."

The author quotes a rival, the successor of Hamilton as secretary of the treasury, Albert Gallatin, who said, "All secretaries of the treasury of the United States, since the first, enjoyed a sinecure, the genius and labors of Hamilton having created and arranged everything that was requisite and necessary for the successful operation of the department."

And a letter from the present secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, he says, "testifies to the unusual circumstance that in all important particulars, Hamilton's routine, as originated by him in a period vastly different from ours, still remains operative, despite radical changes in the conduct of other offices."

Good morning!

Once upon a time there was a play by Edward Sheldon called "Salvation Nell." Now there's a picture adaptation of the play. I don't know anything about the former, but the later is n. s. h.

The story, staged in pre-war New York of 1912, tells about a poor working girl who gives her heart to a lazy lout who does her wrong in more ways than shall here be enumerated. Jail gets him and the army [Salvation] gets her—to a patter of betrayal, manslaughter, bank robbery, and—reform!

Helen Chandler can certainly be the perfect door mat. Ralph Graves is convincing as the six foot mess she adores. Some good "bit" playing is done by Sally O'Neil, Charlotte Walker and De Witt Jennings.

Though it has its moments, "Salvation Nell" drags terribly. It goes on and on and on—until you want to yelp.

Episcopal Group Urges Faith Healing with Medical Help

Denver, Colo., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A joint commission of the Protestant Episcopal church, after nine years' study of the problem of Christian healing, recommended to the general convention of the church here today that those who practice such healing in the church operate in coöperation with the medical profession.

Its report created a new lively issue for the convention, already grappling with disarmament, remarriage of divorced persons, birth control, and other disputed questions.

The disarmament debate became more active today. Col. G. W. Stuart, chief of staff of the 103d division, organized reserve corps, suggested to delegates they will find the Ten Commandments more effective for peace than casting aside of weapons.

The Christian healing commission pointed out in its report that, while the church must teach that spiritual healing is an integral part of the gospel of Christ and part of the pastoral office, it must not teach or use any methods tending to lead people to believe it is the only, or even the primary, element of that gospel.

"No sober minded man," the report recites, "can dispute what materia medica has done for humanity to alleviate the suffering caused by disease and accidents and the practical eradication of certain diseases.

"We may believe that this progress in medical science has been due to certain illumination of the spirit of God. The church will not fail to give due credit to the medical profession for its noble work done for poor suffering humanity."

The primary stress of a constructive movement, the commission states, must be placed on "health" and not on healing. By stressing health, the church must have an effective message to the sick as it now has for the sinful.

Pupil Failures Reduced 50% in City's Schools

Bogan Reports Saving of $862,000 a Year.

Scholastic failures among Chicago public school children have been reduced by nearly half during the last ten years, according to figures made public by Supt. William J. Bogan. The elimination of these failures results, he said, in an actual saving to taxpayers of $862,000 a year.

Whereas in 1921 one child in 12 failed, the present rate of failure is only one in 20, according to James E. McDade, assistant superintendent, who compiled the figures. Last year 10,230 students were promoted who would have failed in 1921, he said.

"This advantage to the children and to the taxpayers," said Supt. Bogan, has been accomplished through close attention to the best developments in modern educational methods. In the last few years great changes have been made, with excellent results, in the teaching of the basic subject of reading. Arithmetic, too, has received particular attention.

"Only in the first grade have we failed to show an appreciable decrease in failures, but we are attacking that problem harder than ever this year. In this, parents can be of invaluable aid by seeing that their children enroll promptly and attend school regularly."

In an address to the public school principals at their first meeting of the term Supt. Bogan expressed a hope for a good year despite the current financial handicap of the school system. He decried as false economy suggestions that night schools, continuation schools and other public agencies of education be discontinued.

"Public education not so long ago was a charity handed down by the rich," he said. "Now it has become the most precious heritage of the masses, a heritage which no social group or government can eliminate without destroying the foundations of society itself."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A FARCE on the subject of illegitimacy, bearing the title of "In the Best of Families," began an engagement at the Apollo theater last Saturday night.

Q.—Professor, what is a farce? A.—In the technical meaning of the word as used in the theater, a farce is a comedy that has gone crazy.

Q.—And does "In the Best of Families" go crazy? A.—Well, yes, perhaps, in a manner of speaking; but the trouble with it is that it doesn't go crazy enough.

Perhaps the authors of this play thought that the subject of illegitimacy is so essentially comic that they did not need to exert themselves after they had introduced their foundling into a Long Island home. The finger of suspicion, they seem to have told themselves, will write our play for us.

All of the men in the house—the father, the three sons, and even the old butler—will be regarded as capable of the paternity of the infant that was left on their doorstep. Each, in turn, will be accused by the jealous and evil-minded women of the establishment; there will be charges and countercharges, denials and half-confessions. The women will go frantic, and some of them will keel over from shock while the others are running for smelling salts—and won't that be fun?

I beg to differ. In the first place, illegitimacy is not a comic subject. In the second place, no play ever wrote itself, and to set its plot on its legs and make it go with an animated motion requires much more ingenuity than the authors of "In the Best of Families" brought to their task. In the third place, and finally, the suspicions and accusations out of which "In the Best of Families" is spun do not prove to be fun. Being repetitions of the situation with which the play began, they rapidly achieve monotony and then slide downhill into boredom.

Three acts of dialogue carrying double meanings about the genesis of a baby found in a basket. That tells the full story of "In the Best of Families." Its humor is strained and leering; and its wit has that lightness of touch usually associated with the operations of a pile driver. The third act contains a passage of innuendo so flagrant that every line is a gasper.

The première was flawed by inaccuracy of memory in some quarters; but the cast appears capable of an alert performance. Burford Hampden, who was the whinnying little soldier in "Lysistrata," appears as an amiable rake; Donald Campbell, who figured in "The Ninth Guest" last winter, acts an angry father; and Minnie Stanley strives to be the life of the party as a maiden aunt with an indecent imagination. Marian Warring-Manley swoops into the third act, after the play has added a new wrinkle to its dull surface, and walks out with a hit to her credit. She is an abundant blond whose skill and figure should arouse jealousy in the ample bosom of Mae West.

"In the Best of Families" will stay at the Apollo only two weeks. "Billy Rose's Revue" will follow, on Oct. 4.

"The Third Little Show," with Beatrice Lillie and Ernest Truex, is booked to begin an engagement at the Great Northern theater Oct. 5. This arrangement places six premières on Chicago's stage calendar for that week.

Cooking Utensils Subject of Field Museum Lectures

A series of guide-lecture tours for the general public will begin today at the Field Museum of Natural History. The first lecture will be on "Food Dishes and Household Utensils," at 11 a. m. At 3 p. m. a lecture on "Apes and Monkeys" has been scheduled. At the same hours on Wednesday the subjects will be "Toltecs, Aztecs and Mayas" and "Furbearers." On Friday the subjects will be "Egypt" and "Crystals and Gems."

Chicago Rate of Typhoid Low Record

Best of Large Cities, Says Bundesen Report.

With only 64 cases and 8 deaths from typhoid fever so far in 1931, according to Health Commissioner Bundesen, Chicago now enjoys the best record for this disease of any city having a population of one million or more.

The number of cases and deaths have been fewer than in any previous year. In the corresponding period of 1928, the next lowest year, there were 74 cases and 9 deaths. For the entire year of 1930 the disease caused only 20 deaths.

From his observations on these figures Dr. Bundesen draws two conclusions. First, that public health work pays big returns on the financial investment; second, that human life, in a large measure, is purchasable so far as certain communicable diseases are concerned.

"Forty years ago when Chicago's population was less than one and a half millions there were 1,997 deaths from typhoid fever," said Dr. Bundesen. "On the basis of the present population, had the old rate continued, there would be more than four thousand human lives sacrificed each year now, instead of twenty.

"This annual saving of four thousand lives from this one disease alone emphasizes the great value of preventive public health work.

"While the value of human life is not easily computed by the simple laws of mathematics, it is true that the majority of typhoid deaths occur in adult life at the very time these citizens are at the most productive period of life, and it seems conservative to place a value of at least $5,000 on each life lost from typhoid. On that basis an annual saving of 4,000 lives has a monetary value of $20,000,000 a year, a sum far in excess of the total official expenditure for public health in Chicago.

"The citizens of Chicago are fortunate in having a safe water supply, a safe milk supply, sewage disposal and control of cases and carriers by the health department so adequate that Chicago today enjoys the enviable position of having the best typhoid fever record of any of the large cities having a million population or more."

Men's Hats Going Eugenie, Too, with a Touch of Spain

Maurice Solinski of Paris arrived here yesterday with his wife, Mrs. Suzanne Solinski. He was wearing the last word in hats for men—an adaptation of the tall, flat crowned headgear worn by men in the days of the second empire, when Empress Eugenie's styles permeated the continent.

Although Solinski's creation sounds radical it differs only slightly from current styles in men's hats in the United States, due to the fact, he explained, that fashions for men cannot be altered quickly or extremely. He calls the hat the Bolero, because the general form is that of the flat, broad brimmed black hat worn in Spain years ago.

The style is to appear in the United States next spring.

Shirts in Paris, Solinski said, now have a wider collar opening and ties with large knots are worn—unstarched shirts are the mode in summer and very small starched shirt fronts and collars are worn in winter.

ROME RECALLS 61 YEARS AGO WHEN NATION WAS REUNITED

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 20.—(AP)—A new peace today marked the sixty-first anniversary of the fall of Rome before Italian arms in the campaign for the unification of Italy with its subsequent 58-year breach between the church and the state during which the popes were "prisoners in the Vatican."

Today Pope Pius XI. and Premier Mussolini had strengthened the new agreement under the Lateran treaty and the concordat by their accord actuated on Sept. 2 defining more clearly the scope of religious and civil authority.

The Italian army entered Rome on Sept. 20, 1870. This is the first year that the date has not been celebrated. In deference to the church, and as a symbol of the restoration of peace, Il Duce abolished it as a national holiday.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

A Glance at New Science Course at U. of Chicago

Tracing Man's Progress as Biology Sees It.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"An animal is something that happens."

"Science accepts the theory that all life is related and that existing forms have evolved from older and simpler forms through long periods of time. It also holds that man, like all other animals, is the product of evolution, and that his body presents many evidences of this development."

These are fragments of the teaching in the syllabus of the biological sciences just published at the University of Chicago for the use of the students who are entering this week upon the new plan of general education which is being watched with much interest throughout the country.

It was produced by 13 members of the faculty during the summer, and, with the addition of a four volume edition of "The Science of Life," by Wells, Huxley, and Wells, and seven other readings, constitutes the whole course. The syllabus is edited by Merle C. Coulter, assistant professor of botany, with the coöperation of the following: Warder C. Allee, zoölogy; Anton J. Carlson, physiology; Fay-Cooper Cole, anthropology; Lester R. Dragstedt, surgery; Alfred Emerson, zoölogy; Ralph W. Gerard, physiology; N. Paul Hudson, hygiene and bacteriology; Carl R. Moore, zoölogy; Horatio H. Newman, zoölogy and embryology; Alfred S. Romer, vertebrate paleontology; Harold A. Swenson, psychology, and H. Gideon Wells, pathology.

While many of its statements may be subject to attack by religious fundamentalists and special creationists, it is not intended as any contribution to the literature of this old controversy. It is the latest word of science on these subjects, that is all; and it is explained in the introduction that "the great objective validity of science depends on its rigorous adherence to the facts of nature in preference to beliefs or dogma based on any human authority."

Science is most accurate, it is explained, when dealing with large groups or units. The text goes on:

"In dealing with an individual, however, whether it be the electron in the physicist's hand, the radium atom in the chemist's, the cell or organism in the biologist's, much greater uncertainty exists in our knowledge."

It is this very uncertainty, raised to a principle by Heisenberg in Germany, that has led to suggestions by another member of the Chicago faculty, Prof. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize winner, which have been of great comfort to those who postulate a greater intelligence guiding humanity.

The distinction between living and non-living breaks down at a certain level, it is stated in the syllabus, which continues:

"For centuries the problems associated with organization seemed so insoluble and so elusive that men postulated unknown and unknowable controlling forces, so-called vital forces, to 'explain' them. With the development of knowledge we have still plenty of unknown but less that seems unknowable, and most biologists today are convinced that there is no real gap or any new force involved in the transition from non-living to living."

The book explains the variety and relationship of living organisms, the dynamics of these organisms, and animals in relation to their environment. The evidence regarding man's development is gathered from all these fields.

"Man," it is stated, "is one of the primates, a group including also the lemurs, monkeys and apes. . . . The human body bears its history indelibly stamped upon it. Many of its parts have been profoundly altered during the long history of vertebrate development; many structures have completely changed their functions. Gill supports have become jaws, and then accessory organs of hearing; gill pouches have become glands of internal secretion; a balancing organ has become the human hand; a receptor for smell has become the seat of our highest mental faculties.

"Our bodies are not the result of straightforward designing of the best possible machinery for our purposes, but in many respects seem to be such a patchwork that it is almost a wonder that we function at all. . . .

"When we follow the human embryo through its development we find that at first it closely parallels the other animals but that it shares its later stages with only the higher primates. At the time of birth it is surprisingly like the young of the anthropoids, and even in adult life the differences between man and the anthropoids are differences of degree and not of kind. Blood tests likewise testify to the fact that these forms are closely related.

"This leads to the assumption that man and the anthropoids probably had a common ancestry and that if we can trace them back in time we hope to find evidences of a common precursor, and also that we may expect to find remains of human beings which are much more anthropoid than any of the existing races. . . .

"The important differences seem to be related to the fact that man has become a successful, erect-walking ground dweller, and that his brain development has continued far beyond the ape stage. In correlation with the erect posture, the toes of the foot have shortened, sole and heel expanded for support, while the arms are shorter and the hand a still more versatile grasping organ. The tooth row and the long face of the ape have shortened; chin and nose have developed. The greatest change is the brain, with an enormous growth of the cerebrum, so that the brain capacity is more than double that of the highest anthropoids."

"He doesn't want me to be a GOOD MOTHER!"

Because Wallace seemed to resent the time and attention she gave to the baby, Irma thought he wasn't a devoted father. What should she do?

HOOFERS.

Don Philippe de Rodriquez saw the banners as he stepped from the train. "Hell," he commented to himself, "another one of those damn conventions. The Exalted Order of American Eagles. Can you feature that?"

He stood for a moment gazing with hostile eye upon posters whose red, white, and blue lettering shouted, "Welcome, American Eagles. Thrace is glad to see you."

A shining porter hurried toward him. "Take your bag, sir?"

Don Philippe tightened his hold upon his suitcase handle. "No, run along," he said. "Hey, no, wait a minute. When does this convention start?"

"It started today, I think, sir."

"Today!" Don Philippe uttered a few of his favorite expletives.

He looked around for Tommy and Irma. They were at the curb. He saw them in silhouette as they stood gazing disconsolately ahead of them, uncertain of their next move. They, too, held their suitcases and each stood with one shoulder lowered by the weight.

Don Philippe joined them. "Well," he said, "this is great. A convention. I guess we'll sleep in the park tonight."

The sight of their weary shoulders and dejected faces somehow cheered him. He had forgotten at first that Tommy and Irma would have to endure with him whatever hardships the night offered. It made it much pleasanter to know that this was true.

Irma switched her suitcase from her right hand to her left. The palm of the right was red and tingling. Along with other necessities there was a 6 pound electric iron in that suitcase.

"I won't sleep in the park," she said firmly.

Don Philippe laughed. "You will if every bed in Thrace is taken."

"I won't."

"Say, you think hotel clerks are going to do handsprings when they see you and usher you right to the bridal suite, don't you? They see pretty faces too often to get excited."

"If I don't get a room here—and I mean a room, not just a bed—I'm going back to New York tonight."

"Aw, say, Irma, you can't do that." Tommy stared with stricken eyes at her.

She did not reply. He was not the one she had intended to frighten.

Philippe smiled reassuringly. "I'll say she can't, Tommy. The office'd see that she didn't get much more work if she pulled a trick like that on me."

"You're awfully smart, aren't you, bringing the office into the conversation. Well, smarty, I can talk office, too. You're the owner of the act, aren't you? You're the manager, aren't you? Do you know that you're supposed to have rooms reserved for Tommy and me? Do you know that we're not supposed to have to hot-foot around at all hours and in all weather? You're supposed to write ahead to a hotel that we can afford and reserve us rooms."

"O, yeh?" When cornered there is no reply that acquits one with more dignity and nonchalance, Philippe repeated it. "O, yeh? Well, we might as well start walking."

They started walking. Don Philippe de Rodriquez and company never used taxies. On the rare occasions when the hotel was a mile or more from the center of town there was always an available trolley. The salaries of Tommy and Irma did not permit of promiscuous use of cabs and the don was too tight-fisted to hail one for a scant five blocks.

They walked on. Neither man offered to take Irma's suitcase. It did not occur to them nor to Irma. There is no sex in trouping, except for recreation.

With three blocks behind them Philippe spoke again. "This is a good little town," he said. "I was here before."

Nobody seemed to care and another silence fell which lasted till they entered the lobby of the hotel. It was a bright, pleasant enough little lobby, indicative of a clean, comfortable, second rate hotel. Philippe strode to the desk, followed by his company. The clerk looked at them, smiling sadly.

"Not a thing," he said. "I've got ten beds in one room. We're jammed to the doors."

Philippe threw his cigaret down and stamped on it peevishly. "What's going to become of us?" he asked.

The clerk said, "I'll call some other hotels for you so you won't have to march around. I'm afraid everything is pretty well filled though."

"Don't call that gyp joint, the Bartrum. None of us want to go over two fish a day."

"O," said the clerk coldly, "I thought you were more interested in getting set than in anything else. Let's see, there's the Mandeville, but," he lowered his voice discreetly, "I wouldn't recommend that for the lady."

"Don't mind me; I work in this act," Irma sighed. She was tired.

"I don't really like to suggest it," the clerk protested.

But in the end he called the Mandeville and the Mandeville hadn't an empty bed.

"Say," Philippe demanded, "why the hell didn't you hold rooms for us actors? We're steady. Every week people from the theater live here and you get your damn conventions once in a blue moon, but there's no space for the poor actors when the Eagles come galumphing into town."

The clerk said that the gentleman was quite right and that he would call the Dean house. The Dean house was crowded. So were the Merton and the La Paris. But wait, the La Paris could accommodate one. Just one.

"Gee, that's great. Thanks, fellow." Philippe picked up his suitcase. "Good night, folks," he said to Tommy and Irma. "I hope you get set. See you at the theater tomorrow." He was gone then.

Irma and Tommy watched him swing jauntily through the revolving door. Irma turned to the clerk then. "Do you know of any rooming houses?" she asked, dully.

He shook his head. "That's all the hotels, too," he said. "Gee, I wish I could fix you up, Miss." He gazed resentfully at the revolving door. "That's a great guy," he remarked.

"Why, that's Don Philippe de Rodriquez," said Irma. She had a feeling that the clerk had an ace in the hole. If pleasant conversation could force him to show it she was willing to try. Perhaps he had a bed that he would deed over for the night without any strings attached to the transaction.

"Where did he get that name?"

"O, we do a dancing act. Spanish dancing. You know, castanets and tambourines and the big stiff all dolled up like a Christmas tree. His name is Phil Hennessey, but we must be Spanish."

"Sure." The clerk turned to Tommy. "You a dancer, too?"

"No, I play the piano. I add tone to the act."

The clerk said nothing. Tommy was a faded little fellow well into his thirties. Perhaps he was a good pianist. Surely he could add nothing in the way of appearance, even if the act needed it. The clerk was willing to admit that it didn't. Here was a gorgeous chunk of woman and the big bozo was a swell looking guy.

Irma seemed to be following his thoughts. "Phil is handsome on the stage," she said.

As a matter of fact, carefully made up and in the flattering, romantic costume of Spain, Philippe looked much like the late Valentino. Only when Irma leaned wearily against the desk of a second rate hotel in Thrace Valentino was not the late Valentino. It was 1923 and "Blood and Sand" was delighting movie fans the world over.

"I never saw a handsome guy yet who was decent. Take my wife's sister now, she married a fellow who's a ringer for a Greek god and he——"

"Say, fellow," Irma interrupted. "Have you got a bed"

"What? O, a bed. Sure I have a bed. The day clerk is sleeping in it. I get it at quarter of six. But this guy Helen married is about 6 feet tall and—"

Irma sighed as her hope faded. There was no bed here for her, but there was a story and she had to listen. It grew very involved and confused as it went along. The story came at last to an obvious and trite conclusion. The handsome brother-in-law had turned out to be a flat tire after all the family had done for him. Irma and Tommy said good night swiftly lest there be a sequel. They withdrew to chairs near the door and well out of sight of the clerk, who, unable to give them beds was quite willing to entertain them through the long hours.

"What time is it, Tommy?"

"A quarter past ten."

"O, lord, is that all? I thought it was about two, I'm so sleepy."

"That's because you have no bed," Tommy said gloomily. "If you had one you wouldn't be sleepy. You'd probably be yelling because there was nothing to do but get into it."

"Yeh, I guess that's right." Irma stared at the toes of her shoes and yawned. A plump, red faced gentleman wearing the insignia of the Eagles passed them. He looked at Irma. She looked back at him with eyes suddenly cold and challenging. The Eagle looked away. He knew from experience that they weren't faking when they looked at you that way.

Movie Gossip Fresh from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—On the heels of Universal's announcement raising salaries to the point from which they were pruned last spring, come figures showing that 7,513 extras—more than twice the average number—held jobs in various studios last week. The movie business is beginning to pick up after more than a year of slack business.

Sasu Pitts and Thelma Todd have been doing so well in their co-starring short reel comedies for Hal Roach that Sasu and possibly Miss Todd also are going into stage appearances. At the same time that film jobs began to pick up stage jobs did the same, and many, like Buddy Rogers, Bessie Love, and May Murray, have found they can make more money trouping the country than they can by staying here and working in films.

Feminine Hollywood is consumed with curiosity about Maria Muller, the Bohemian girl whom Charlie Chaplin is to bring here next month. It was a joke on Chaplin's part when they named the girl "Mary Reeve," the joke being on Al Reeve, Charlie's studio manager and old time chum, who worked in the same stage sketch, "Night in a London Music Hall," in which the comedian came to this country.

Charlie probably will make a leading woman of the young Czech girl, they expect here, as he did the other girls in whom he became interested—Edna Purviance, Mildred Harris, Lita Grey, Merna Kennedy, and Georgia Hale.

It seems that Marlene Dietrich is not likely to return to Europe after all. Paramount has announced that she accepted a new contract and she will stay here to make "Shanghai Express," under Director Joe Sternberg, after which one and possibly two more American films will follow.

Word has been received that Renee Adoree will return to Hollywood from a Prescott, Ariz., tuberculosis sanitarium by Thanksgiving day. She has been in the institution for nearly two years.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Hoover remained at the camp on the Rapidan tonight and is expected to stay there until the President returns from Detroit.

The Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debuchi and their children have returned to the embassy from their summer cottage in the Blue Ridge mountains. They will remain at the embassy until they leave for the Pacific coast to sail for home.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy McMaster, daughter of the senator from South Dakota, and Mrs. William Henry McMaster, to Lieut. William Knowles Pottinger, U. S. M. C., took place yesterday afternoon in St. Alban's church, the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating. A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents, after which the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip, to be at home in Philadelphia later at 1018 South 48th street.

The assistant secretary of the treasury and Mrs. A. A. Ballantine have taken the house of Mrs. Joseph Noell at 1710 Massachusetts avenue, of which they will take possession Oct. 1.

Baby Clothing.

"Can you get me some clothing for a new baby? We have one, and as my husband hasn't had a job for a year and a half I cannot buy any. I am also in need of sheets and would appreciate it if you could get me these, too. Mrs. L. S."

The tiny garments your baby has outgrown would be gratefully received in this family, where they haven't had the means to prepare for the coming of their infant. Can you help with bedding, too?

New Club Is Open to Public at Barrington

BY THALIA.

MEMBERS of the Barrington Hills Country club have been so curious and interested to see the inside of the new clubhouse at the formal opening tea yesterday that it was unusually festive and gay. A bright buzz of congratulatory remarks was heard all afternoon as the membership inspected the new appointments and decorations. And, of course, there was much praise for the decorating committee, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp and Mrs. Evan Shields, who have shouldered the responsibility of all the planning.

The president, James E. MacMurray, and Mrs. MacMurray received during the afternoon, and the young members of the board of directors poured at the tea tables. These included Miss Pauline Seipp, Miss Polly Ann Miss Elizabeth Hart, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Harts; Miss Barbara Bateman, Miss Virginia Cardwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roane Cardwell; Miss Betty Marshall and Miss Sally Hallberg.

The new building is similar to the one that burned down, but it is somewhat larger and has a more convenient and effective arrangement of rooms. Both exterior and interior are distinctly Georgian. The structure is of whitewashed brick, with a slate roof and black window shades, one of the bright ideas, giving a smart and unusual effect.

From the entrance hall there is a view through the clubhouse over the terrace and the woods beyond. The living room, card room, and a center room, which has a skylight over it, have the same drapes and wall treatment, because they can be made into one large room by virtue of an ingenious curtain arrangement.

The drapes are of tan and cream chintz in a Georgian flower bouquet pattern, and the rugs are green. The furniture, much of it Duncan Phyffe, was carefully selected, and the whole effect is tasteful and comfortable. The lovely dining room, extending across the whole building, is papered in white with a green vine and foliage pattern that is delightfully cool and enhances the outdoor aspect. There is, besides, an entertaining little modern room reserved for the "ladies' lemonade club." It's in pastel colors, with modernistic panels depicting the various events at the club. It is planned to use the club in the winter as well as in the summer. There was a stag dinner party on Saturday night, and the next regular affair to be held will be a dinner dance next Saturday evening.

Isn't it a strange sensation to come upon a well-known and familiar name in a novel? In "A White Bird Flying," a new book by Bess Streeter Aldrich, there is a chapter and more about "Arbor Lodge Homestead," in Nebraska, the residence of the late J. Sterling Morton, which was given to the state of Nebraska by their oldest son, Joy Morton, in 1932. There is a lengthy description of the homestead which was erected in 1855 by Mr. Morton and his wife, the former Carolyn Joy, who came from Missouri. Mr. Morton was the first secretary of agriculture and originated Arbor day.

The mansion has been twice remodeled and has 52 rooms. Reference is made to a "dwarfed spruce tree with a stone collar around the base," and a character in the book remarks, "It's the tree Mrs. Morton brought from Colorado in a tomato can over 50 years ago." An inscription tablet on the homestead says, "Together they lived thereon up to June 29, 1881, when the light went out."

Nuptials—Mrs. Columbus Healy departed for New York City on Friday night to meet her mother, Mrs. Edward J. Partridge, landing from a European trip and a cruise to the North Cape. . . . . Mrs. Warren W. Fairbanks and her daughter, Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, have returned to Indianapolis after a stay at Harbor Point, Mich. The Fairbankses received word recently of the death of Count Giovanni Visconti de Modrone of Milan, father of Count Ruggero, to whom Miss Fairbanks was married in June. . . . Evanston women interested in the Girl Scouts will open troops of Girl Scouts will start a house to house canvass for funds today. Mrs. Elbert Clark is chairman of the committee in charge of the drive and Mrs. Bligh Grassett Turner. Some of the active workers are Mrs. Lon C. Hill Jr., Mrs. Albert Lee, Mrs. Frederick Hurlbutt, Mrs. William S. Elliott, Mrs. Roland Wolcott, and Mrs. Robert Hammond. The Evanston Girl Scouts' community committee, which was organized in 1926, has seen the organization increase from 26 to 250 members, and from 1 to 8 troops.

Lake Geneva houses are being closed up for the winter as the season nears its close. Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Crane II., who are moving to town today, had a large house party of guests over the week-end, including the Otto Lehmanns, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ford, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Netcher [Constance Talmadge]. The Cranes are sailing next week for a brief business trip to Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Sangston Hetzer and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beaton, who have been occupying the Hetzer house, are also coming to Lake Chicago today

School department—Ethel Johnston, Ann Wacker, Nancy Morse, Dorothy Hamilton, and Ellen Wacker, all of whom are to go to Miss Master's school at Dobbs Ferry, will have an extra fortnight's vacation because the school opening has been postponed from Sept. 22 to Oct. 6, due to the infantile paralysis epidemic. . . . Mrs. Julia Le Roy Kramer, who returned last week with her parents from their summer place at Harbor Springs, Mich., will leave soon for her last year at the Wheeler school at Providence, R. I., before making her debut next fall. . . . Charles Hulburd, the De Hulburds' son, will enter Hotchkiss in Connecticut this week.

Two Room Apartment Is Easier on Married Life Than a Studio

BY DORIS BLAKE.

An October bride-to-be was the reason for the apartment hunting expedition. One of the reasons! The other, though he may not figure so prominently at the wedding, still is a pretty important reason in an apartment hunting expedition.

Plans for a large wedding and a good sized apartment had to be abandoned, as many other plans for expenditure have had to be within the last year, and for the same reason. The girl, in her eagerness to coöperate on the new economy plan, looked to a one room apartment as the likely answer to the rent problem.

There was the room, with a quite modern kitchenette arrangement hidden back of a door in the small foyer. There was the bath, very good looking, indeed, though inclined to be small. There were the in-a-door bed arrangement and two fair sized closets. The rent, to be exact, was $67.50. The apartment building bore a good address. Its lobby was impressive and there were certain service features that appealed.

It so happened that next on the house hunting list was one place featuring studio rooms at a lesser price. There we trailed. The first studio room shown, like the other featuring kitchenette and bath and service features, was in a state of obviously hurried leavetaking.

"Yes," the renting agent explained, "they were in here only four months. They were only married that long. She was a nice little thing and he was such a nice boy, it was just a shame they couldn't make a go of it.

"But I guess," added the agent, who was a better sympathizer than a renting agent, "it's a tough job trying to stay married in a one room apartment."

To make a long story short, the bride-to-be repeated that remark on the way down in the elevator. She was quiet for a while afterward. Finally she said: "I won't take the chance. That place with the two rooms isn't so nice. The apartment isn't up to date. The address isn't so good. But I'm not going to make it a tough job trying to stay married."

And she won't have as tough a job staying married where there's an extra room in which one can get away from the other when the urge to be alone is felt.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Too Reticent.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy very much, but I never show it. Sometimes he asks me, but I always change the subject. Should I tell him? CUTIE."

Why do you hesitate to let the young man know you enjoy his companionship, "Cutie?" If you don't, he'll find a girl who offers him more encouragement.

Beret and Bonnet Boast Smart French Headlines

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Basque berets are being put aside with summer sports clothes as the fashionable world comes back to Paris, and another kind of beret that looks a lot more like a Scotch tam is being worn with suits and street clothes. It is sketched for you, today, and is signed by Agnes. It comes in felt or velvet, as you will, and is worn perched so far over on the right side of the head that it would surely go humpty-dumpty if it weren't for the felt band that ties it on around the left side of the head.

The beret dips over the right side of the forehead and two little quills are stuck in at this side. All of the left side of the hair and most of the back shows. It is extremely chic to wear with the Napoleon haircut, shown in the sketch, short, straight, and brushed forward in raggedy edges around the face.

At the other extreme from the beret and just as chic is the bonnet that suggests the poke bonnet of ancient history, 1860. Suzanne Talbot, who loves to modernize old-fashioned millinery, makes this bonnet, sketched, front and side view, out of velvet jersey, something brand new in hat materials, in a dark brown color. The stuff is ribbed so that it looks tucked, as shown in the sketch. For trimming, Talbot uses mercury wings, in shades of brown and orange, which are placed across the back and base of the crown.

These are the two latest shapes to invade the millinery styles of France, and they are being taken up rapidly by chic women.

Wise Parent Refrains from Correcting Her Child Before Others

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Do you believe in husbands and wives quarreling in public?

Do you believe in their arguing about each other's conduct or in one calling the other down before relatives or friends?

Perhaps you'll think such points so obvious that it's silly to ask questions about them and sillier to answer them. You respect each other too much to do things like that, and what you have to say to each other of an intimate or personal nature you say when you're alone.

Yet, do you try to show your children that much consideration? I won't wait for the answer. Probably you do, but—many people don't. They will discuss, explain, argue, make an issue of things, scold and even punish their children before people. On some occasions the audience may be other children, on others it may be grown-ups who are friends or acquaintances. At still other times the audience may be merely made up of other members of the family. Many parents are either too thoughtless or too insensitive to realize what a mistake all this is.

They think that refraining on principle before outsiders is right, but they are quite willing to settle things with members of the family looking on—and taking part. This is hard on a child and often unproductive of results. One mother I know said, "When some one of the family looking on says, 'I'd MAKE him do it,' I simply rebel. I won't make him do it. I do deal with him, but NOT when I have an audience."

For those who wish to gain a keener insight into the nature or management of children we have two leaflets. Either will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. One is called "Short Child Management, Reading References," and the other "An Informal Study Plan for Parents."

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

MEGARES SAYS ADIOS.

Megares must have known what a short shrift was before him, but he was as gracefully graceless, as impudently raffish as ever he had been when he held all the high cards.

Hadley felt an odd unreasonable wave of admiration for the man. He was a villain, beyond doubt. But he had the great redeeming virtue of courage.

"So you are the murderer Megares. Very well. You will be tried at once," Gonzales said.

The outlaw lifted his eyebrows. "Why waste time, since I am to be shot in any case?"

"Or hanged," Gonzales added harshly.

The captured man did not bat an eye. "I shall be just as dead whether you hang me or shoot me."

The trial took place in the same room in which Jack and Lee had been condemned. It was summary. Gonzales disregarded the criminal record of the man and tried him solely on the charge of having instigated rebellion against the government. Several of his men had been captured and there were no lack of witnesses. The verdict was reached on the first poll of votes.

In pronouncing the death sentence Gonzales dwelt on the nefarious career of the prisoner. "You deserve to be hanged and not shot," he said. "But Miss Reynolds and Mr. Hadley, whom you condemned to face a firing squad, have pleaded with me for you to save you from this ignominy. As soon as possible you will be shot against the same wall where Mr. Hadley was to have stood."

Megares turned to Hadley. "No hard feelings. I played for high stakes and I have lost. No apologies. No regrets. I leave you the lady to console for my untimely end. Will you come to the little affair where I am to be guest of honor?"

"I think not," Jack said.

"As a favor to me?"

"Very well," the other agreed reluctantly.

The outlaw grinned hardily. He borrowed a cigaret from a soldier, lit it, and signified by a nod that he was ready.

He wore the khaki breeches, the leather puttees, and the pith helmet of a Mexican officer. The insignia had been cut from the helmet. His military blouse had been replaced by a dark civilian reefer jacket which was buttoned and belted. He walked out of the room as lightly as though he were going to a tennis court to play a set.

The moon was up now and a silvery light filled the court across which the condemned man moved. In a few hours lizards would climb up and down the wall against which Megares took his stand, but he would not be there to see them. He declined to have his eyes bandaged.

"Can I take any message you wish sent to any one?" Jack asked.

"No messages. If you get a chance will you tell the world how you saw a brave man die?"

"I will," Jack said fervently.

The officer in command was a little nervous. Megares suggested that since it was not very light the firing squad stand closer. The men moved forward.

The officer raised his sword and the soldiers took aim.

"Adios!" Megares called in a clear, steady voice.

The smile had gone, but there was no fear in the face. The bandit leaned forward, shoulders squared.

The sword swept down and the rifles cracked. Megares reeled and fell.

Jack went back into the house to report to Lee.

"I heard the shots," she said, her face almost colorless. "It's over, isn't it?"

"Yes. He may have been a villain, but he was the bravest man I have ever seen." His voice was low and shaken.

She shuddered. "It came so near being you. I can't forget that. Thank God. Thank God."

He took her in his arms and smiled. It was rather a wan smile, for the reflection of what he had just seen was still in his face.

"Yes," he assented. "He has gone, but I am here to love and be loved. We are both safe from his vengeance, and yet . . . I'll never see a man walk more gallantly to death."

"I know one who would have gone as bravely," she thought, but did not say.

Captain Gonzales came into the room. "My uncle heard just before I left camp that the rebels in the north have been disastrously defeated. The insurrection is crushed. All is well," he said.

Lee disengaged herself from the arms of her lover, but she looked into his eyes and repeated the concluding words of the officer.

"All is well, Jack."

He understood that the message was a personal one to him. All was well with them. There was an open road ahead for the golden gate of happiness.

Yes, all was well.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

GIRL'S DRESS.

This little frock is an advanced idea for fall, showing how effectively contrast may be used. A wrapover side closing effect is a smart detail and the sleeves may be long or short. Any of the heavier wash materials or crêpe de chine, challis or one of the sheer wools will make up well.

The pattern, 3272, comes in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material with 1 yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Dash of Interest Can Make Beautiful Girl Even More Attractive

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you can't be beautiful—be interesting!

Take that for your 1931-'32 motto! It will serve you longer, of course, but a year ahead preparation will do for our purposes. For yours, I mean!

As beauty is spread before us these days, that "interesting" look marks up your score appreciably. No doubt it is because we're growing tired of the standardization which in seasons past has marked so many of our women. If you can give us beauty with a new, bright note to it, you're welcomed with a cheer.

We were talking about this the other day. How ineffective is just prettiness! A recent Hollywood visitor reported a distaste for the standardized blond heads, and figures all of the same size and proportion. Not the leading movie lights were referred to, but rather the extras, the girls with small parts, and the great army of hangers on, filling in jobs here and there while they wait.

And thus the leading girls of the screen were gone into as evidence of a new beauty demand with "interesting" the adjective most preferred and most applicable. Perhaps we're getting away from the original meaning of beauty. Or, perhaps it has just grown "broadminded," along with the manners and morals of our age. Anyway, you yourself can run over the headliners of the screen and check up on that "interesting looking" feature and see if it isn't important.

Then see what you can do for yourself! See where you can begin to make a more individual looking creature out of what you have! See if you've been overlooking a good bet in clinging to an old hair style, to a passé line of hat or dress, to a brand of makeup that isn't becoming, but which you are used to.

I can't tell you what to do. But you can tell yourself. And if ever you had the material to work with, it is this season, with all the new lines and styles sponsored by fashion. Go to it, sisters, and try on that "interesting" look!

Food Talk.

From the standpoint of cookery the housewife should have a knowledge of the composition of eggs, so that she may obtain the best results from them in the manifold ways she uses them. Roughly speaking, eggs have composition of 75 per cent water, 12 per cent protein, 12 per cent fat, and 1 per cent vitamins and minerals.

A practical example of the correct use of eggs in cakes is shown in the answer to a letter written by Mrs. R. F. C., who asks: "Why do we add cream of tartar to the angel food cake and lemon juice to the sponge cake?"

Cream of tartar added to the stiff egg whites of an angel food improves the texture of the cake and tends to lessen the shrinkage during the latter half of the baking. It also provides for a whiter color.

In a sponge cake the addition of lemon juice, which is a citric acid, accelerates the coagulation of the egg protein. When eggs are cooked for too long a period of time, either a custard or cake form, the result is a tough, hard, and dry product.

It is wise to remember that angel food and sponge cakes should be carefully baked, and should be immediately placed in the oven after being mixed. Use a slow oven [275 degrees Fahrenheit] and after thirty minutes raise the temperature of the oven slightly [to about 325 degrees] and finish baking. The average angel food and sponge cake require an hour's baking.

FRIED CARROTS AND APPLES.

6 medium sized carrots.
6 tart apples.
2 tablespoons of fat.
1 tablespoon of sugar.
¼ teaspoon of salt.

Scrape the carrots and cut them lengthwise into thin slices. Pare the apples, core, and cut into slices about a fourth of an inch thick. Place a single layer of the apples and carrots in a large skillet with the fat. Cover tightly and cook until well browned; turn, and brown on the other side. Just before the cooking is finished, sprinkle with the sugar and salt. Serve on a hot platter—first a layer of carrots, then a layer of apples, so the two can be lifted together.

SPARE RIBS WITH SAUERKRAUT.

Sprinkle a whole spare rib piece, or two smaller pieces, so that one part can fit over the other in a roasting pan. Brown the ribs on each side in a frying pan, using a little pork fat. Season with a pinch of salt. Place one-half the kraut in a roasting pan, then a layer of meat. Repeat.

This will make two layers of kraut and two of meat. Cover with boiling water. Bake, closely covered, in a slow oven [300 degrees Fahrenheit] about two hours.

Now! We Want to Make Your Teeth 3 Shades Whiter in 3 Days

LOOK at your teeth. What do you see? Ugliness? Stain? Discoloration that is not pleasant to look at? Science has discovered a simple technique that quickly removes all off-color, cleans teeth dazzling white—3 shades whiter in 3 days—and helps to keep away decay.

This technique, while having 2 to 3 times the cleansing power of old-fashioned methods, does what no ordinary toothpaste can do. It rids the mouth of millions of germs that sweep in with every breath and cause most tooth and gum troubles. That's the reason it makes teeth so clean and white—even teeth that have been yellow for years!

Just start brushing your teeth with this new technique—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush, twice a day. Instantly you'll discover a difference. For when Kolynos enters the mouth it becomes an active, exhilarating foam that cleans out every pit, fissure and crevice and leaves the mouth refreshed.

According to tests this amazing Kolynos foam kills 190 million germs in the first 15 seconds and inhibits their growth for 3 full hours. It washes away ugly tartar and yellow, and stimulates the gum tissue.

Thus, easily and quickly teeth are cleaned right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel without injury. They are kept sound Start using this Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. In just 3 days you'll see how foolish it is to have dull, yellow teeth. Teeth will look whiter—3 shades whiter. Gums will feel firmer. Your mouth will feel clean and refreshed. Buy a tube of Kolynos.

SENATORS SHUT WHITE SOX IN CELLAR, 4-3, 6-4

Caraway Is Charged with Defeats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—The Washington club today continued the process of clinching the cellar championship of the American league and carried Pat Caraway with them in the final stretch. Caraway entered the last game with the Senators in time to be charged with a 4 to 3 defeat and again went in as a relief pitcher in the second contest to lose again, 6 to 4.

Caraway's failure brought the Chicagoans' losing streak up to eight games and enabled him to come within one game of the league record for the most defeats in one season. Bob Groom of Washington established that doubtful record in 1909, suffering 26 defeats while winning six games. The Washington southpaw has pitched ten victories.

Ever Brings Defeat.

Despite his two setbacks, Caraway was not a poor pitcher today. The Senators' winning run in the ninth inning of the first game was unearned. Appling booted a grounder, and after the next two men had been retired a two base hit broke up the game in which Vic Frasier had carried a lead for eight innings.

Following Garland in the fourth inning of the second game, Caraway held the Senators hitless until the seventh, when three hits broke a tie and enabled the elongated Pat that there was Santa Claus. The Sox then took the next turn at bat and the game was called because of darkness.

Today's performances eliminated whatever hopes the White Sox had of equaling last year's showing when they won 81 games. Six contests remain, two here tomorrow and Tuesday, and four in St. Louis. Their standing to date is 55 won and 92 lost.

Cellar Seems Certain.

The Comiskey club seems almost certain to finish in last place. Unless they regain their composure here and run hard down the Browns in the final series of the season they will finish in the cellar. Only two Chicago teams have wound up in last place, the Sox of 1924 and the Cubs of 1925.

FIRST GAME

Frasier received his first jolt in the second inning of the first game. Combs walked and was forced by Rigney, who raced to third when Berger's pop fly dropped behind second base for a single. Appling and Schulte then got their signals crossed on Bolton's easy fly, the ball falling for a single, and Kuhel scored. After Crowder had flied out, Myer singled to center, scoring Bluege.

The Sox made their first impression on Crowder's pitching in the fifth and scored two runs. Kerr's walk, Grube's double and Frasier's infield out sent Kerr across the plate. Blue kept the rally going with a single that scored Grube.

Subsequent happenings indicated the Chicagoans were going places. Sullivan hit a single and Jolley was passed to fill the bases. But Fothergill and Watwood both popped out.

Senators Regain Lead.

Washington regained the lead in the fourth. A pass to Rice, Manush's single and Gill's fly made the score 3 to 2. That prevailed until the ninth when the Sox put over the tying run on Kerr's single and Blue's triple.

Frasier having been removed for pinch Hitter Fonseca in the ninth, Grabowy made his brief appearance but was to bring him defeat No. 24. Myer opened the Senator ninth with a grounder to Appling, who fumbled. The next two batters were easy for Grabowy, but Gill doubled to right, scoring Myer.

SECOND GAME

Young Garland was given a one run lead in the first inning of the second game. Blue walked, went to second on Sullivan's single, and scored while Fonseca was forcing Sullivan. The recruit pitcher from the Texas league defended his slim margin until the fourth, but before that inning

DOUBLE VICTORY PUTS 3D PLACE MONEY IN BAG

Malone, Warneke Winning Pitchers.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs might as well start making estimates on third place money from the world series pot. They just about assured themselves of that share of the post-season plunder when they riddled their old enemies, the Giants, yesterday in a double header before 47,000, who almost pushed out the brick walls of Wrigley field. There were other thousands awaiting entrance when the gates were closed. The scores—16 to 6 and 7 to 6—tell vividly enough just what the battles were like.

The first battle, in which Pat Malone staggered through to his 15th win, was ridiculous at the very start and never became anything different. Carl Hubbell, one of McGraw's choicest pitchers, who had been groomed for the occasion, couldn't survive one inning, and before Chaplin could induce the Cubs to ease up seven of them had clattered across the plate. After that it was just a case of more runs, more pitchers struggling helplessly against the tide of base hits, and the Giants, as a team, playing like a collection of one legged athletes.

Dozen Two Base Hits.

Among the happenings which made up the funny 16 to 6 battle were a dozen two baggers equally divided. The Cubs, however, had the edge in this respect. Three of these doubles were lusty clouts along the base lines, whereas all of the Giants' six sailed into the overflow. Showing the pace in this attack was Gabby Hartnett, who with a pair of two baggers and two singles, earned a diamond ring which a delegation of Catholic Order of Foresters presented to him between games.

After their 16 to 6 romp the Cubs evidently went into the second game with the firm idea of proving that when it came to blundering they could give the Giants lessons. The first thing they did was to kick home four runs on the youthful Lon Warneke, and they kept on causing him annoyance right to the finish, but to compensate for the offense they repeatedly rushed to his aid when he was on the ropes. Further than that, they batted Roy Parmalee hard enough to get back more than the number of runs they gave away.

FIRST GAME

Before the Cubs could turn loose their seven run blast in the opening inning of the first game, the Giants had picked up a tally off Malone on two doubles into the overflow. Then the big parade started on a pass to Herman with one out. He stole second and Cuyler's single scored him. On a hit and run, Bell singled to right, Cuyler dashing to third. The crippled Lindstrom booted Barton's grounder and Cuyler scored. D. Taylor's Texas league single filled the bases.

Blair shot a single to right, Bell and Barton counting, Taylor going to third, and Blair to second when Allen let the ball roll through his hands. Chaplin relieved Hubbell and Hartnett doubled into the crowd to score the two runners and Gabby registered the seventh run of the assault on a hit by English.

Cubs Pile 'Em Up.

The Cubs kept the merry-go-round spinning in the second with four more hits, but only two scored because of a double play. Bell opened with a single and was swept up along with Barton on the latter's hopper to Terry. Then D. Taylor doubled into the crowd in right center and counted on Blair's two base bagger along the right field line. Blair ran home on Hartnett's double past third.

Three Giants scored in the third. Gilbert English, a newcomer from Durham, N. C., batted for Chaplin, and Malone fanned him. Allen doubled and he hiked home when Leach did the same. Terry's single scored Leach and Terry scored a moment later on a two bagger by Jackson.

Make Malone's Lead Safer.

The Cubs continued their fun in the fourth at the expense of Pianetta. O'Farrell made a bad throw to first on Bell's tap, and singles by Taylor and Hartnett followed to score two runs. The fifth was even more violent. English beat out a bunt, Herman doubled to score him and Cuyler walked. Barton's double past first base, D. Taylor's single and a one baser by Blair added four more. Pianetta had to get help from Berly to end the inning.

Double plays and other fielding contributions kept Malone from rough handling for several innings, but he couldn't get past the seventh without a couple of Giants scoring. Leach and Leslie singled with one out and Fullis fanned. Hunnefield filled the bases by bouncing a hard drive off Malone's shins. Berly's single to center drove two of them home with the last runs.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs did a good job of looking terrible as fielders in the second inning of the evening engagement, and the Giants profited to the extent of four unearned runs. For a starter Vergez doubled to left. The next two batters were set down and the third, Parmalee, should have been, but Cuy-

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Sixteen years ago this month 33 reported for the opening football practice at Notre Dame. They passed the ball, kicked it, gossiped and clowned until 2:30 o'clock when the coaches appeared.

Head Coach Jesse Harper wore street clothes with the exception of a dark sweater coat and cleated shoes. Assistant Coach Knute Rockne, whose only claim to fame was his work at end two seasons previous, was in football uniform over which he wore a white sweater with the then fashionable roll collar.

A photographer asked the coaches to pose. He was the only camera man on the grounds. The pictures were intended for a South Bend newspaper, but the editors after mature deliberation decided the cost of the cuts was prohibitive.

In an adjoining column appear the pictures which were taken that afternoon. They were made by Chet Grant, a sports writer who doubled as a photographer.

So the opening practice at Notre Dame in 1915 passed off with a half column story in the local papers.

That was the setup shortly before Harper turned over the gridiron destiny of the school to Rockne. How different the picture when he returned last week to carry on where his star pupil left off.

There were 115 out for the first workout of the 1931 campaign. Three times that number will be kicking the ball around the campus before the season is much farther along. Staff men from nearly every important picture service in America were on the grounds to record the maneuvers of last year's national champions. Motion picture men with sound apparatus were outside and inside the practice field. Writers from a score of newspapers turned out columns of copy.

Harper posed for the camera men, spoke his piece for the sound recorders, talked to interviewers, smoked his pipe and looked over the boys.

He was the only link between 1915 and 1931.

In 1915 he was athletic director and head football coach. Today he is athletic director. The more strenuous assignment of developing winning teams has been turned over to Heartly Anderson, who probably never had heard of Notre Dame until Harper put it on the sports map with that victory over the Army in 1913.

Harper is through with coaching. The 1931 Notre Dame squad will be handled entirely by Anderson and his assistants.

"I'll be out there looking on," Harper said recently, "but the coaching of the team will be in Anderson's hands. I may have a suggestion to make now and then and he can take it or leave it as he sees fit.

"Anderson doesn't need my help to teach football. He is the best line coach in America, bar none, and his knowledge of back field play will be established before the season is far along. If all the Notre Dame men who are now coaching college football were lined up before me to make a choice, I would pick Hunk. That's right from the heart.

"Two or three defeats this season will not change my opinion of Anderson's ability. Nobody expects him to go through the schedule he faces undefeated. I doubt if there is any other coach who could. If Notre Dame wins seven of its nine games I'll call the season a grand success. Hunk will have a team that will be typically Notre Dame. What more can anyone ask?"

Harper made it plain that all Notre Dame's games, with the possible exception of the Army, will be played on a home and home basis hereafter. And Notre Dame's home is the new stadium on the campus. Harper intends to adhere to the policy Rockne established of keeping out of Chicago unless to play Northwestern or the University of Chicago.

"If there were another stadium in South Bend we would regard it as unethical for Northwestern or Chicago to play there against Stanford or the Army on the same day we were having a big game on our home field. It works both ways," he concluded.

CARDINALS BEAT PULLMANS, 31-0, IN LOCAL DEBUT

Malloy and Holmer Lead Victors' Attack.

Les Malloy, former Loyola university full back, who recently joined the galaxy of college stars in the professional football field, helped to make a success of the Cardinals' 1931 Chicago debut yesterday as they trimped over the Pullman Panthers, 31 to 0, at Normal park, in a nonleague contest.

Malloy did not toil very long, nor did Walter Holmer, who was acquired from the Chicago Bears, and Willis Glasgow, formerly of Portsmouth, O., mainly because of the unusual warm weather. But before leaving Malloy scored on a plunge and later raced around left end for 40 yards to a touchdown.

Nevers on Bench.

Capt. Ernie Nevers, who is playing his third season with the Cardinals and who participated in the first game with the Chicago Mills last week, spent the day on the bench. He will be used in the opening National Professional league game with Portsmouth Wednesday.

The Cardinals found little trouble in crashing the weak Pullman line, piling up 18 first downs, while the Cardinal line held the Panthers to only two first downs, both being completed in the second half.

Panthers Hold Once.

Only once did the Panther defense hold the Cardinals. In the fourth quarter, the Cardinals with the ball on the 2 yard line failed in four attempts to carry it over.

Gene Rose replaced Malloy just before the close of the first quarter and on two attempts gained 15 yards. In the second period, immediately after the kickoff, Rose hurled a 30 yard pass to Creighton, Cardinal left end, for the third touchdown.

Another pass by Rose was caught by Mahoney on the 10 yard line. Rose carried the ball to the 2 yard line. Then Boyd went through center for the touchdown. Rose's pass to Hilpert was completed for the extra point.

Holmer's Score Stopped.

Holmer again appeared in the Cardinal lineup after the intermission and eventually carried the ball to the 2 yard line, but the Panther line held and the Cardinals failed to score.

The last Cardinal touchdown was scored late in the last quarter, when the Panthers gained possession of the ball on their own 2 yard line. Gallivan attempted to punt, but the kick was blocked and the ball rolled into the end zone where Diehl, Cardinal left guard, fell on it. The lineup:

CARDINALS [31].		PANTHERS [0].
Creighton	L. E.	Nolan
Williams	L. T.	Sterns
Diehl	L. G.	Ryan
Erickson	C.	Elbert
Kiesling	R. G.	Pavlock

Kassell	R. E.	Govier
Hill	Q. B.	Folz
Holmer	L. H.	Gallivan
Glasgow	R. H.	Ring
Malloy	F. B.	Lawless

Touchdowns—Malloy [2], Creighton, Boyd, Diehl. Points after touchdowns—Hilpert. Substitutions—Tinsley for Williams, Shaw for Kiesling, Boyd for Glasgow, Rose for Malloy, Fisk for Lawless, Handler for Diehl, Vesser for Kassell, Bunis for Vainowski, Farogher for Sterns, McMally for Erickson, Hilpert for Hill, Slater for Cobb, Mahoney for Holmer, Rogge for Creighton, Sordon for Tinsley, Holmer for Mahoney, Slater for Sordon.

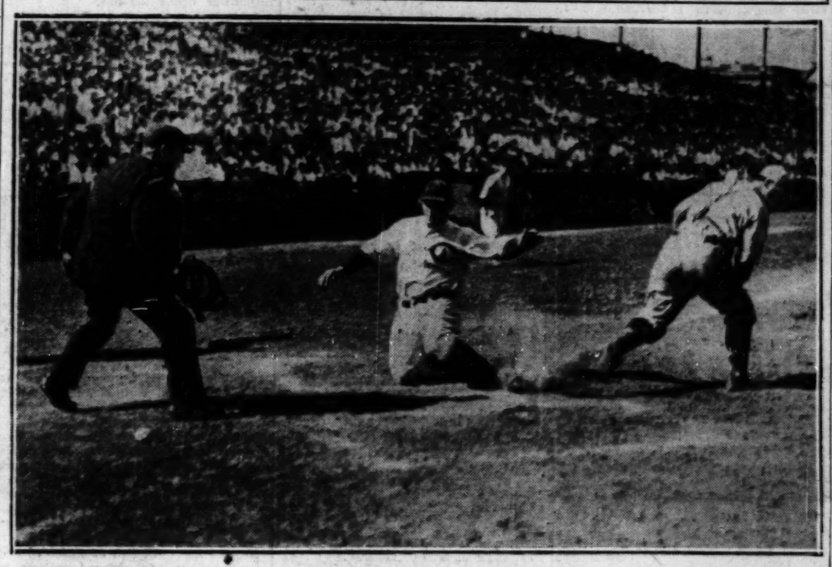
Referee—Meyer Morris [Chicago]. Umpire—Charles Hadlock [Iowa]. Head linesman—Edward Fendt [Chicago].

GIANTS WIN, 32 TO 0

East Orange, N. J., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The New York Giants, professional football team, inaugurated its 1931 season with a 32 to 0 victory over the Orange A. C. here today. The visitors scored in every period and twice in the fourth.

The most sensational run was made by Chris Cagle, former Army star, who ran the second kick off of the game back 60 yards. Gutousky, former Oklahoma university player, suffered a broken ankle when three Orange players tackled him near the side lines after a long run.

A SLIDE THAT WASN'T NECESSARY



Vin Barton slides into the plate with a Cub run in the fifth inning of the first game. He could have come in standing up, for the ball went past Catcher O'Farrell of the Giants. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CANCEL RACE; SO CUSTOMERS BURN THE GRANDSTAND

Wapakoneta, O., Sept. 20.—(AP)—The grandstand and judges' stand were fired and destroyed at the half mile automobile race track at New Bremen, near here, late today when many of the estimated 8,000 patrons rioted after the menagement refused to refund admission fees following cancellation of a scheduled race.

Dr. Leonard Schmidt, track operator, estimated damage at $20,000 The disturbance started when the purse of a 25 mile race was cut. The drivers declined to race and the program was cancelled.

Patrons swarmed the field and during the milling, gasoline was poured over the judges' stand and ignited. Before that blaze was extinguished another broke out in the grandstand.

SPARKY ADAMS SPRAINS ANKLE IN FIELD MEET

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Sparky Adams, third baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, sprained his left ankle today while participating in a track and field meet which preceded the St. Louis-Brooklyn game. He suffered the injury while taking part in a base circling contest. Previously he had won a bunting and running event.

Adams was unable to play today and probably will be out several days. The injury, however, was not regarded as serious enough to interfere with his playing in the world series.

Cardinal players won four of the five events in the field meet. Ernie Orsatti won the base-circling contest in 14.5 seconds. Adams was first in the event for bunting and running to first base, being timed at 3 4-5 seconds. Gus Mancuso captured the accurate throwing contest for catchers. The only Brooklyn victory was scored by Van Mungo in the 75-yard dash for regulars in 8.2 seconds.

Michigan Normal Tackle Dies of Football Injury

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Wayne A. Merrifield of Ann Arbor, 200 pound tackle on the Michigan State Normal college team at Ypsilanti, died this morning of injuries received yesterday in a scrimmage. He was blocked while going down under a punt. He is survived by his parents and three sisters.

PACKERS SWEEP ASIDE BROOKLYN ELEVEN 32 TO 6

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The Green Bay Packers, twice national professional football champions, today trounced the Brooklyn Dodgers, 32 to 6. The Brooklyn defense was swept back to its goal posts by five touchdown marches.

After a scoreless first quarter, Lewellen broke through left tackle for the first Packer touchdown. Grove missed the try for the extra point. Soon after the next kickoff Fitzgibbon, Green Bay quarter back, tossed a pass to Dilweg, who raced 55 yards to another touchdown. Saunders was unable to connect for the point, and the half ended with Green Bay holding a 12 to 0 advantage.

Bruder Passes to Gantenbein.

The Packers opened the second half with a whirlwind attack. McCrary made a first down in two spinner plays, and then Hank Bruder passed to Gantenbein, who scampered 23 yards for another score. Woodin kicked the extra point.

The champions' fourth touchdown came soon after Nash downed Grove's punt on the Brooklyn nine yard line. Mizell of the Dodgers attempted to throw a pass from behind his goal line, but Woodin, Packer guard, intercepted and stepped over the line. Woodin added the extra point and the Packers were leading 26 to 0.

Late in the third quarter Peters' pass was intercepted by Gantenbein, who brought the ball to the Brooklyn 23 yard line. McCrary gained 14 yards and Herber went through the line for the last Green Bay touchdown.

Brooklyn Breaks Through.

Brooklyn scored late in the contest. Texas Vance returned a kickoff 57 yards, and Peters and Scalzi did some running and passing to place the ball in scoring territory. Vance then skirted left end for a touchdown. Peters missed the goal. Lineup:

GREEN BAY [32].		BROOKLYN [6].
Radick	L. E.	Stramello
Jannison	L. T.	Lubratovich
Woodin	L. G.	Gilson
Don Carlos	C.	Buitman
Bowdoin	R. G.	Fulton
Perry	R. T.	Mooney
Gantenbein	R. E.	Abruzzino
Grove	Q. B.	Yablok
Engleman	L. H.	Thomason
Wilson	R. H.	Vance
Molenda	F. B.	McBride

Touchdowns—Lewellen, Dilweg, Gantenbein, Woodin. Herber, Vance.

Points after touchdowns—Woodin [2].

Substitutions—Packers: Dunn for Grove; Darling for Don Carlos; Bruder for Wilson; Saunders for Molenda; Michalske for Woodin; Lewellen for Bruder; Dilweg for Gantenbein; Stahlman for Perry; Nash for Radick; Sleight for Jannison; Blood for Engelman; Herber for Blood; Comstock for Bowdoin; McCrary for Molenda; Davenport for Lewellen; Earle for Don Carlos; Johnson for Molenda. Brooklyn: Watkins for Lubratovich; Meixner for Buitman; Tomaine for Abruzzino; Scalzi for Yablok; Mizell for McBride; Wagner for Stramello; Nemecek for Tomaine; Nemecek for Stramello; Hanson for Bowser; Jonas for Gilson; Peters for Vance.

Rhem Grows Virtuous; He's Never Kidnaped Any More

[This is the sixth of a series of sketches on the St. Louis Cardinals.]

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Lous, Mo., Sept. 20.—Flint Rhem didn't do well in the world series last year, but that was, perhaps, due to his horrible kidnaping experience in New York on Sept. 16, 1930.

Lovers of fair play have not forgotten how foul gangsters seized Flint on the eve of an important Brooklyn game which he was to have pitched and, bundling him to their den, took demijohns from under their black capes, and forced him to quaff therefrom again and again until, greatly against his will and to his utter consternation, he became so soused that he was unable to perform his scheduled pitching chores.

This event naturally recalled the time in 1926 that Rhem went around with Grover Alexander and that Grover might not be tempted to go astray repeatedly snatched and consumed spiritous liquors that had been set before old Alex.

There Hasn't Been a Single Kidnaping All This Season.

The foregoing happenings scarcely need repeating at this time, for this year Flint has been a good boy. Only once has he failed to show up at the Cardinal hotel, and on this occasion he showed up a little tardy but with the story that he had been to see a specialist who had been so busy with his house trade that he didn't get around to keep his office hours until the stroke of midnight.

As many observers know, many ball players when in their cups become obsessed with the idea that they should slap down a baseball writer or two, a mysterious and unfortunate whimsy, since ball writers are the salt of the earth and never take a swig of booze themselves.

Flint Rhem in his highest spirit never has sought to sock a journalist, except once last year, when he threatened to whip two pious journalists, one of whom has served the nation well as a snooper in Chicago's journalistic field and in the realm of Mr. Capone. Rhem's belligerence is excused, at least by this author, on the ground that Rhem challenged the two pious gents because he heard they had ganged on a third journalist. And even so, no blows were struck by Mr. Rhem.

For the most part Mr. Rhem is a southern gentleman [from Rhems, S. C.], who scarcely has deserved the vicious innuendo that grew out of his harrowing kidnaping experience and the prior efforts to keep liquor from Mr. Alexander.

Old Pete Alexander Still Is Flint's All-Time Hero.

Friends of Flint say they do not believe he ever will lose another tussle with John Barleycorn. They give some credit to his own good judgment, but most of it to Mrs. Rhem, a very fine southern girl who was once a school teacher and endowed by her former profession in the arts of patience and gentle encouragement.

Rhem's best year was in 1926, when he contributed 20 victories to St. Louis' first National league pennant. His most ardent reminiscence is the one of Alexander going in in the seventh inning of the last game of the 1926 world series with the bases full and striking out Tony Lazzeri. That feat established Alex as Flint's all-time hero in all walks of fame.

Rhem spends his winters in South Carolina hunting and fishing and keeping on the lookout for kidnapers. He is an ardent sportsman the year around, and even enjoys whippet racing.

FIGHTER IS SHOT DURING QUARREL WITH WATCHMAN

Herbie Schaeffer, 27 years old, 4509 Oakenwald avenue, well known featherweight boxer, was shot and possibly fatally wounded early this morning by a watchman with whom he had an altercation in front of a saloon at 2222 Indiana avenue. According to the watchman, Benjamin Cash, 60 years old, 4231 Lake Park avenue, he accosted Schaeffer and James Donovan, 357 East 24th street, because of their suspicious actions. They took his club away from him and began beating him, he said, when he drew his pistol and fired, striking Schaeffer in the chest. The fighter was taken to the People's hospital, where his condition was said to be serious. Donovan was arrested.

IT'S THE OWNER WHO SPECULATES MOST IN RACING

Take the Waggoners and Liberty Limited.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Folks who wager a few dollars on a steed are not the only speculators connected with the turf. Neither are the fellows—the plungers—who bet a couple of thousands on the same contest.

The person who pays thirty, or or forty, or fifty thousand dollars for a young thoroughbred that has never raced takes the biggest gamble. He is the real speculator.

In Liberty Limited the Waggoners of Texas—the veteran W. T. and his sons—have probably suffered the most severe blow of anybody connected with racing this year.

They bought the young race horse, a blue blooded son of Sir Gallahad III.-Dare Say, for $35,000 a little more than a year ago. From the day they got him the Texas people had visions of him becoming one of the great horses of his time. And while more backward than most of the colts of his age, he gave promise of eventually making good every hope held out for him.

Third Once Again.

Liberty Limited was a fast finishing third in the rich Post and Paddock stakes at Arlington. The best 2 year olds in the east and west had come together in it. He had a lot of hard luck or he would have won, many people thought. Again he was third in the $10,000 Hawthorne Juvenile handicap. More hard luck at the start, a lot of crowding, or he would have won, his race indicated.

Then came a 2 year old autumn stake at Lincoln Fields. But it was the same old story—Liberty Limited third, going great guns at the end, but the six furlongs was too short for him. Hygro and Burning Blaze had led him home.

His next engagement was the Dearborn handicap of last Saturday. Hygro and Burning Blaze, which previously had been whipping Liberty Limited, had moved away from Chicago. The distance for the Dearborn had been stretched to seven furlongs, more to the liking of a promising route runner like Liberty Limited. He came up to within an hour of the contest a heavy favorite. The race seemed to be at his mercy.

May Never Race Again.

But Liberty Limited, on which the Waggoners had speculated a purchase price of $35,000, never got to the post. He developed a lameness which bordered on on a complete breakdown. Reports have it he may never race again.

Folks like the Waggoners who make such investments seem to me to be the real plungers of the horse tracks. Yet maybe they wager against pretty good odds after all. For Liberty Limited, with no aches or pains or bruises about him and a champion of the turf, would be a million dollar race horse.

The Lincoln Fields season enters into its final week today with the Mount Greenwood purse at three-quarters of a mile as the feature. It brings together a number of fast sprinters, with High Tom, a recent arrival from New York, likely to rule as the favorite. He hails from Tony Pelleteri's stable, and Tony's horses have performed nobly in Chicago all season.

Sell Charity Tickets Today.

The sale of tickets for the Charity day racing program on Thursday opens in Chicago this morning and at the general offices of the Lincoln Fields Jockey club at Crete. Racing Secretary Shelly is arranging one of the most attractive programs of the Lincoln Fields season as the Charity day attraction. There will likely be a race on the program that will engage several of the candidates for the $10,000 Marquette handicap, the final stake of the year at Lincoln Fields, which will be run on Saturday afternoon.

Maryland to Offer Million in Turf Prizes

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Thoroughbreds from the best racing stables of the nation will begin the fall campaign on Maryland's tracks tomorrow, with approximately $1,000,000 at stake during the 60 days they will run.

Three $20,000 stakes will furnish the big incentive at the 12 day meeting here. The first of these is the Potomac handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, with all the best three year olds of the east, including Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand, nominated.

Juvenile Handicap Saturday.

Juveniles also will have a chance at $20,000 on Saturday in the Eastern Shore handicap at six furlongs. The Havre de Grace cup, for three year olds and up, at a mile and an eighth, is scheduled for the closing day of the meet, with the name of Twenty Grand again among the probable starters.

Following the close of the track here, the horses will move to Laurel Park for a 24 day campaign with more than $100,000 in stakes alone offered. From there they will shift to Pimlico where the fall day meeting is headed by the $40,000 Futurity, the $25,000 Riggs and several $10,000 stakes.

Bowie, if present stake values are maintained, will offer the $30,000 Southern Maryland, and at least three $10,000 stakes, during its 12 day stand.

Get Extra Days for Meets.

All of the tracks have an extra day for their fall meets this year, due to the "charity days," inaugurated during the spring.

Each track donated its proceeds for one day, and the state remitted its $6,000 daily tax. Already at Havre de Grace, Pimlico and Bowie, $73,000 has been realized.

Hanley Seeks Man Who Can Catch Passes

Northwestern's football team starts its second week of practice today with two paramount objectives—that of perfecting line play and continuing further experiments in quest of a player who can catch forward passes.

These two weaknesses stood forth in Saturday's game with the freshmen. Coach Dick Hanley stated in no uncertain terms that he expects a decided improvement from his linemen, principally the tackles, or a number of changes will be made in personnel.

Hanley subjected all of his linemen to considerable criticism on their showing Saturday, holding they failed to charge effectively and were guilty of numerous other laxities.

In an effort to increase competition for the tackle positions Hanley contemplates shifting Mil Frober, husky sophomore center from Lindblom, to tackle.

Obviously the Wildcat forward passing attack must be greatly improved. Against the freshmen only three passes were completed out of twenty attempts. Pug Rentner appears to be passing just as effectively, but there are no receivers.

KIPKE ORDERS SCRIMMAGE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Michigan's second week of football practice will open tomorrow with Coach Harry Kipke sending a first string lineup against one of little less strength in the first official scrimmage of the year. Weather permitting, the contest will take place in the big stadium.

Hewitt and Williamson will be the ends; Auer and Samuels, tackles; LaJeunesse and Hozer, guards; Morrison, center; Newman, quarter back; Everhardus and Fay, half backs, and Capt. Hudson, full back. Men ranking just below this group are Jack Heston, De Baker and Schmidt, half backs; Tessmer and Westover, quarter backs; Petoskey and Daniels, ends; Cantrill, tackle; Kowalik, guard, and Bernard, center.

Kipke has a wealth of material and consequently has ordered scrimmage for Wednesday and Saturday also, to definitely determine who shall be used in the opening games against Mount Pleasant and Ypsilanti Teachers, Oct. 3. Kipke is well pleased with the showing of John Kowalik of Chicago, a guard; Goldsmith, last year's second string full back and now a tackle; Westover, quarter back, and Renner, half back. The performances Saturday of Schmidt at full back and De Baker at half also brought comment, though they served to complicate the back field situation.

OHIO PONDERS LINE

Columbus, O., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Coach Sam Willaman will spend the greater part of his time this week in an effort to build up the Ohio State line.

With only the tackles filled to any degree of satisfaction, the first string center Ehrensberger ineligible, and the regular freshman center of last year, Pete Delich, injured, the line presents a real problem.

End material is plentiful but unconditioned while the guards are scarce. Back field material is plentiful and Willaman can count on at least two back fields of the same caliber. The varsity squad was swelled to 94 players yesterday.

Six games have been announced by the athletic department for the reserve eleven, including Michigan State normal at Ypsilanti; Michigan, Akron, Illinois, and three games with the freshman eleven.

CHATT BREAKS WORLD MARK IN CASTING MEET

Howard Chatt broke the world record for the ⅝ ounce bait distance event yesterday in the Illinois Casting club's annual tournament at Washington park with a toss of 347 feet. The former record of 344 feet was set by C. P. Cuens of San Francisco at the national tournament here on Aug. 20.

In three casts Chatt had an average of 344 feet to win first place. E. G. Delaungy was second with an average of 279 feet and a best cast of 304 feet, and C. H. Donaldson was third with an average of 241 feet and a best cast of 258 feet. Other results:

⅝ OUNCE ACCURACY—Won by A. G. Schyman, 92 per cent; Howard Chatt, 91 per cent, second; Harry Dunegan, 90 per cent, third.

⅝ OUNCE ACCURACY—Won by Howard Chatt, 96 per cent; Stanley Bjork, 94 per cent, second; W. G. Kromphardt, 94 per cent, third.

OLYMPIA FIELDS FOUR LOSES, 4-1, TO ARTILLERY

The 124th field artillery polo team, with every player scoring, defeated Olympia Fields, 4 to 1, yesterday on the latter's field. Bell, playing at No. 2, scored the losers' only goal in the second chukker. Lineup:

124th F. A. [4].		Olympia Fields [1].
McNulty	No. 1	Hammond
Mura	No. 2	Bell
Rice	No. 3	Schuh
Everett	No. 4	Sammond

Score by chukkers:

124th F. A.	0	2	1	1	4
Olympia Fields	0	1	0	0	1

Goals—Mura, McNulty, Rice, Everett, Bell.

Graduation Ruins North Section's Hopes for Crown

[This is the second of two articles on football prospects in the Chicago Catholic High School league.]

The loss of many veterans at the leading schools has shattered the north section's hopes of retaining the Chicago Catholic High School league championship. But the work of new players in practice games indicates the ultimate south section victor will find dogged competition in the title final with the north division defender.

Loyola, 1930 league champion, was one of the hardest hit by graduation, losing the back field and practically all linemen who won letters last year. Only three letter men were among the line candidates who reported to Coach Len Sachs, Capt. Ray Melchione, Jim Shortall and Bud Healy.

Two Veterans at St. Philip.

Loyola's back field this season will have Emil Matz and Vincent Daley, who led the attack against Senn last Saturday when Loyola scored a 13 to 6 victory. Griff Healy is one of the outstanding candidates for the full back position. Bill Corrigan will probably play quarter back.

St. Philip, second place winner last year, has only two veterans, Capt. Phil Mahoney and Joe Serritella, available. McMann, Trumphis, Gagliardo and Kennealy have attracted Coach Marvin Adams' attention and probably will be given regular positions.

"Of course, with our stars of last year's team, Mustani, McNabb, Kelly and Mancini, gone, this season's squad will not be as strong as last year's," Coach Adams said, "but the team appeared pretty good when it defeated St. Ignatius last week."

De Paul Weakened.

Coach Walter McGovern, who is starting his fourth season at De Paul academy, 1928 and 1929 champion, is building this season's team around four letter men. They are Capt. Jimmy Harrison, John Viatrak, tackle; Don Refram, full back, and Red Holmes, quarter back.

Lawrence McHugh, left guard, and Edward Cain, right half back, were the only regulars to report to Coach Paddy Driscoll at St. Mel. New players include Donald Allen, end; Tom Doyle, left half back; Tom Plunkett, full back, and Emment Joyce, tackle.

"Two of the seven veterans from last year's team will play in the back field," said Coach John Downs of St. Patrick. "The letter men who will play in the line this year are Frank Powers, Edward Hayes, Ray Adams, Bill Asher and George Austin."

Gloming Starts Fourth Year.

Blum, Hammon and Scholle, three of the outstanding players on last year's team, have reported to Coach Jack Montroy at St. Michael. This will be St. Michael's second year of competition in the league.

At Weber, which entered the league in 1929, seven regulars of last season's team were among the candidates who reported to Coach John Reritha. They include Climeg, Jowef, Klodgen, and Kanavy.

YALE GRIDDERS FACE SCRIMMAGE IN DOUBLE DRILLS

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Yale football candidates face the most strenuous practice week of the season. Extensive double daily drills have been ordered by Head Coach Mal Stevens, at least two scrimmages are expected and daily sessions in physically exacting breaking through drills are planned.

The fall term of the university will not open until Oct. 1, and the double practice program will be continued three days next week. The veteran wingman, John Lindenberg, whose leg was wrenched, will report this week.

Capt. Albie Booth, it was announced tonight, will get into the scrimmage in two or three days. Although he underwent a slight operation two weeks ago, he has taken light practice since the squad reported.

Start Chicago Softball Title Series Next Week

The first two contests for the Greater Chicago Softball league championship will be staged next Sunday at Logan Square park, Kedzie and Elston avenues. The first game will bring together the Goodmans and the Hannin-Did-Its. The Schillers, Albany Park champions, will face the Boltons in the second game.

PANA BLUES LOSE, 5-4.

Pana, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Kincaid defeated the Pana Blues of the Hard Roads league here this afternoon, 5 to 4.

RECORD ENTRY IS RECEIVED FOR A. A. U. TOURNEY

Entries in the Central A. A.U. track and field championships to be held at Ogden park next Saturday close tomorrow. The entry list is one of the largest on record.

Among the latest to enter are Homer Hawley and John Land of the I. A. C., both in the three mile run. Frank Teschner of the Schwaben Athletic club has entered the javelin throw and Don Smalley of the I. A. C. is an entry in the 16 pound hammer throw. Ralph Metcalf, national junior 100 yard dash champion, will compete in his specialty.

CARL STOCKHOLM TO HEAD PATROL FOR BIKE RACE

Carl Stockholm, six day bike rider, has organized a road patrol of professional riders who will handle the Elgin-Chicago bicycle race next Sunday. The Charles V. Barrett A. C. is conducting the race in which more than 100 wheelmen will pedal.

A force of city, state and county police will guard the course. The race will start from Lords park in Elgin and finish at 22d and Robey.

Favored to win are Henry Vertenten, a former state champion; Gregory Flatow, runnerup in the national amateur championship last year, and Bobby Thomas, national champion.

Lukats to Be Back in Game Within Week

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Nick Lukats, fullback hope from Froebel high in Gary, Ind., who was injured in yesterday's scrimmage, will be back in uniform and ready to play by the end of the week, team physicians announced today.

He was the seventh fullback lost to the Notre Dame squad. Coaches Heartly Anderson and Jack Chevigny are contemplating moving some one back from the line or making over some reserve half back to pinch hit for Lukats in case he is not in condition to play by Oct. 3 against Indiana.

Candidates Lack Experience.

Steve Banas, former rival of Lukats from Catholic Central of Hammond, Ind., probably will be moved to the varsity this week. Banas showed well in early workouts. Andy Grundeman, of Merrill, Wis., and Jimmy Leonard of Fredericktown, Pa., two sophomores, both looked impressive in yesterday's scrimmage, but clearly showed lack of experience.

The fullback trouble began last fall when Joe Savoldi withdrew from school. Larry Mullins was injured and unable to play in the last games of the season. He was graduated last June with Al Howard and Paul [Bucky] O'Connor, the sensation of the Southern California game.

Hanley Passes Up School.

Dan Hanley, sophomore, who was rushed into the last four games of the 1930 season, did not return to school and Fred Staab, fourth string man last year, lost 40 pounds during a summer illness and was unable to continue his studies.

Coach Chevigny, who is handling the backs, thought he was fairly well fixed at fullback, but if Lukats does not come around as expected he will have only one good man, Banas, as Steve has had no varsity experience.

The Rockne Memorial field Lukats benefit game at the Stadium next Saturday may uncover some new material, but there is no one really outstanding at this time.

Walberg Would Be Violinist —if He Could Play a Violin

(This is the eighth of a series of articles about the Philadelphia Athletics.)

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—The defendant in this case gives his name as George Walberg and states that people began to call him Rube at a tender age merely because he was left handed. For a time in the last decade there were laws in some states providing that all left handers must be called Rube in honor of the most famous left handed left hander of them all, Rube Waddell. In some states now, similar laws decree that all athletes by the name of Walter must be called Sir Walter, and all athletes named Harry, Light Horse Harry.

The defendant has been a professional since he returned to Seattle from a cruise to New York as a deck hand on a cargo boat in 1921.

He further states:

"I did not like the sea and as this feeling seemed to be mutual I decided to be a ball player. Either that or a violinist. But I did not know how to play the violin. In fact, I did not know how to play ball, but it might surprise you to hear how many ball players get by who do not know how to play ball. Possibly a lot of nonviolinists get by at the violin, but let's not get into any arguments.

Well, You Can See What Kind of League That Is.

"I got a job as pitcher with a semi-pro team in Seattle, and the first thing the manager said to me was, 'Why, that is not the way to stand on the rubber.' I said, 'I've got a new way to stand on the rubber.' But I didn't even know the thing that pitchers stand on was made of rubber. I always thought it was marble.

"The fellows we had to meet in our little league weren't ball players, either, so I was able to hold my own, and after a while a man came over from the Portland club of the Coast league and offered me a job. I figured that the Portland club must be a pretty terrible club if they thought I could help them, but any change would be a rise, so I went.

"I do not wish to knock anybody's league, but I won so many games in 1923 that the Portland club sold me to the Giants for $30,000, with the understanding that if McGraw didn't like me he could send me back and get a $20,000 refund.

"I thought he was going to give me a trial, anyway, but McGraw was busy that spring and everybody had a lot of money, anyway, so he took one look and started to ship me back. Only fancy! Ten thousand dollars a look, and here you sit gawking at me by the hour free of charge.

Mack Buys Him, So He Pitches for Milwaukee.

"They were good salesmen out in Portland, and when McGraw put me in the crate and called the expressman they sent a wire to Connie Mack saying 'You can have Walberg for $20,000, sight unseen, no refunds, no exchanges.'

"As I say, money was very loose that year, so Mr. Mack told a boy to wrap up $20,000 and send it out to Portland.

"When I reported to the Athletics Connie said, 'Why, that isn't the way to stand on the rubber.' By this time I was getting tired of this kind of criticism, so I said, 'All right. How do you want me to stand on the rubber?' At least I knew the damn thing was rubber by now. Connie sent a fellow out to show me how to stand, but this fellow said, 'It will be more important for you to develop a good seat than a good stance, because I don't think you are going to pitch much ball around here.'

"And, sure enough, I pitched my ball in Milwaukee that year. But in 1925, going through some papers, Connie discovered that he still owned a left hander named Walberg out in Milwaukee and called me back.

"I am a better than fair pitcher now. Sometimes I don't win, but sometimes I don't lose, and generally I just go along minding my own business, which is a lot more than I can say for some reporters who go around asking people the story of their lives.

"No, I'm a rotten golfer. But I can belt them off the tee. One day in Florida I hit three drives for an average of 320 yards. Yes, I read books. O, just reading books such as novels and philosophy and the Encyclopedia Britannica. You won't put that down. You can't spell it."

He's Not Left Handed, Mentally, Mack Says.

Connie Mack, the employer and a friend of the foregoing, states that he is not mentally left handed.

"I mean," Mr. Mack states, "not goofy. He doesn't save tin foil or bottle caps, he doesn't keep guinea pigs in his room or sing into a jug as Waddell, the original Rube, did.

"In fact, his worst trouble is that he is nervous and sensitive. Most of the time he can be as good as he thinks he is but he doesn't think he is very good. A little conceit wouldn't hurt Rube. He is a thoughtful, quiet fellow; always thinking."

Several years ago to cure the Rube of his nervousness Mr. Mack advised him to cut down his quota of cigars. He was smoking about ten a day. So Rube switched to five cigars, twice as big.

Cubs Defeat Giants Twice Before 47,000

ler muffed a short fly. Verges scored on the error. Allen singled to right, and a pass to Leach loaded the bags. Terry bounced to Herman, who fumbled, letting both Parmalee and Allen score. Then Fullis singled to move Leach over the plate.

As proof that they couldn't be easily discouraged, the Cubs bounced back with five in their half of the second. Bell doubled to right and stopped at third on Barton's single, which bounced off first base. A wild pitch sent Bell home. D. Taylor was thrown out, but Blair, Hartnett and Warneke came through with singles. This trio of hits added two more. After English had fanned, Herman walked, loading the bases. Cuyler's two bagger past Terry scored the fourth and fifth runs.

Giants Get One; Cubs, Two.

A pass to Fullis, a wild pitch and Jackson's single gave the Giants a tying run in the fourth, but the Cubs again went them one better in the home portion. Hartnett led off with a walk. Warneke struck out, but English doubled to the crowd in right, Hartnett pulling up at third. Herman delivered a fly ball into Allen's hands and Hartnett scored after the catch. Then Cuyler singled over short and English dashed home, putting the Cubs in front, 7 to 5.

Warneke let half of his two run lead escape in the sixth when Terry hit a two-bagger to left and scored on a single by Jackson. Warneke did not have any more trouble until the eighth. Then he encountered a large portion of it, but escaped without being scored on. Allen walked and Leach forced him. Terry singled on a ball which had so much spin on it that it jumped to one side as Warneke was about to grab it. Fullis was thrown out by Herman and Jackson walked, filling the bases. In this critical situation Warneke pulled himself out by his own bootstraps. He fanned Verges.

Bob Smith and possibly Freddy Fitzsimmons will get together this afternoon in the final of the year between the two teams. Then the Cubs will rest until Saturday when they open the final two game series with the Pirates.

GLEDHILL WINS MATCH AGAINST CHAMPION VINES

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, intercollegiate singles champion, defeated Ellsworth Vines, national men's singles champion, 6-4, in a one set exhibition match preliminary to the fifth annual Pacific southwest tennis tournament, here tomorrow.

George Lott, Philadelphia, and Mrs. L. A. Harper, Oakland, defeated George Hughes, English cup player, and Edith Cross of San Francisco, 5-7, 6-2, 8-6, in another exhibition.

Hunters to Use 20 Gauge Guns Again This Winter

BY BOB BECKER.

That the 20 gauge shotgun will be used this fall with as much popularity as ever was indicated by gun experts with whom we talked at Vandalia, O., during the championship trap shooting contests staged by the Amateur Trapshooting association in August.

At this great sporting event which brings the shotgun experts together from all over the country we visited the display tents of a number of gun manufacturers. Here under canvas you could look over all kinds of shooting irons from beautiful engraved little .410 gauge doubles to repeaters, over and under guns and light easily handled 20 gauge doubles with either single or double triggers.

The twenty gauge shotgun has been riding on a wave of popularity that has won thousands of ardent boosters for it. Today one can buy this gauge in either a double or repeating type of gun, so many sportsmen are turning to this light, easily handled weapon for both upland game birds and waterfowl shooting.

There is only one trouble with the over enthusiastic 20 gauge user. He is apt to claim too much for his gun and attempt too much with it. The twenty will do a lot. It has high velocity in shot charges and when the shot reach their mark they will drop the bird with the same ease that a 12 will.

However, the hunter must keep in mind that there are many more shot pellets in a 12 gauge shell than are found in a 20 gauge shell. Therefore, in long range shooting you have a mighty thin pattern when using a twenty and that means reduced efficiency. In other words, the twenty will do at 25 yards what the average 12 gauge can handle at 45 yards. It is not the nearest approach to the "all around" gun which many hunters are always looking for.

Gill, who walked, scored on a triple by Cronin. Kuhel singled Cronin across and then Bluege singled and Spencer walked to fill the bases. That was all for Garland and before Caraway could retire the side a pass and Rice's fly brought in two more runs and a total of four for the inning.

Singles by Kerr, Grube and Blue gave the Sox a run in the fifth. Then in the sixth they tied the score with two runs. Fothergill dropped a Texas leaguer in center and scored on similar hits by Appling and Kerr. Appling reached the plate on Catcher Spencer's wild throw to third.

That Unlucky Seventh.

Then misfortune in the form of defeat No. 25 descended upon Caraway. Myer opened the Senator seventh with a single. Rice sacrificed and Manush singled to score Myer. Cronin stepped in with a double off the left field wall, scoring Manush.

Two Washington recruits were largely responsible for the Sox setbacks, Johnny Gill, who served an apprenticeship with the Baltimore Orioles, supplied the finishing wallop in the opening game and Monte Weaver, a former professor at the University of Virginia, pitched the second game for Washington.

SEVEN CHICAGO GOLFERS TO PLAY IN WOMEN'S MEET

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The withdrawal of Mrs. Melvin Jones, Lincolnshire, and Mrs. A. E. Sheill, Glen Oak, leaves only seven Chicago entries for the qualifying round tomorrow of the 35th women's national golf championship at Buffalo Country club.

Miss Virginia Van Wie, Beverly; Miss June Beebe, Olympia Fields; Jane Weiller, Vernon Ridge; Jean Armstrong, Indian Hill; Mildred Hackl, Midlothian; Mrs. E. T. Nicholas Jr., Lincolnshire, and Mrs. John W. Taylor, Evanston, represent Chicago.

As usual, Miss Van Wie rested the day before the tournament; Jane Weiller concentrated on her putting; June played holes here and there which had bothered her in practice; Mrs. Nicholas practiced short approaches. Jean Armstrong arrived yesterday but did not play over the course. Miss Taylor and Mildred Hackl practiced for a short time.

Mrs. Edward Mayo, formerly of Beverly Country club, now of Monterey, Delmonte, Cal., scored a hole in one in a practice round yesterday as she was touring the course with Mrs. Guy Riegel, Spokane, Wash. She used a spoon on the 155 yard 12th, a water hole, her ball landing 15 feet from the cup and rolling up against the pin.

Mills Defeat Squares, 7-5, Then Lose, 5-3

The Logan Squares and the Mills of the Chicago semi-pro league again divided a double header at Mills stadium yesterday. The Mills scored two runs in the seventh inning to win the first game, 7 to 5, but Jim Vaughn held them in the second contest and the Squares won, 3 to 2. Scores:

LONGCHAMPS, France, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Mme. Diana Esmond's Pearl Cap today won the Prix Cermeille for 3 year old fillies run over a course of 2,400 meters. Brulette was second and J. E. Widener's Confidence third. Pearl Cap, paying 8 to 5, earned $4,000 for her owner.

GRIFFITH MUST BEAT SCHAAF OR FORGET CROWN

It's Do or Die for Our Tuffy Wednesday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tuffy Griffith's future depends largely on the result of his ten round fight Wednesday night with Ernie Schaaf at the Chicago Stadium. No prophetic sense is needed to realize that the young Chicago heavyweight must win from Schaaf or resign himself to mediocrity.

Since 1929, when Griffith called attention by whipping Leo Lomski (he lost later in a return match), by defeating Johnny Risko twice and Paulino the Basque, he has been midway between first and second rank. Griffith has had more than average success. He has earned a moderate fortune. But he never has gained serious consideration as a contender for the heavyweight championship.

Tuffy Missed Big Chance.

Tuffy failed last year when he had his best opportunity, a match with Young Stribling. Stribling won and while Griffith stayed the ten rounds quite easily, his feat did not increase his popularity. Stribling, by virtue of this victory and his knockouts of Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott, finally received a bout with Max Schmeling. Had Griffith beaten Stribling he might have had that title opportunity.

There are those who insist Griffith is a minor leaguer. They have accused him of picking opponents he believed he could whip. Perhaps he has. Certainly he has taken no unnecessary risks. And we don't know why he should, since safe and sane boxing has been amply remunerative.

Gets Another Chance.

Twenty-five thousand dollars for whipping King Levinsky certainly should be a record of some kind. And Griffith's defeats sometimes have profited him. Tuffy made quite a sizeable sum from his return match with Jack Gagnon after the sailor had won their first battle by a knockout.

But the time has come when Griffith must make his spurt or complete his ring career against hasbeens and youngsters. Whether ambition or resignation motivates, Chicago will profit.

Griffith is making his play at the right time. Schaaf, with the exception perhaps of Charlie Retzlaff, whose loss to Joe Sekyra checked a long string of victories, is the outstanding heavyweight at this time. This is true despite Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, who fight in New York Oct. 1, for Schaaf has youth and a punch which label him championship material.

Tuffy Will Try.

Consequently, Griffith is making a good business play by fighting Schaaf. Whether it means an end to his career depends, of course, on how Griffith performs Wednesday night. And if Tuffy can outpoint the Boston heavyweight, he's on the upgrade again and must be given consideration by the winner of the Sharkey-Carnera bout.

You may be certain that Griffith will not toss away these opportunities without a struggle. In condition, Tuffy can box for 30 minutes without letup. He might be given an excellent chance to win on points except that Schaaf can box as well as hit. Schaaf has beaten Tommy Loughran on points and that is proof of his dexterity.

With Griffith on the spot, and with Schaaf facing his most agile opponent, Chicago should see a feature heavyweight fight. It is a fitting premiere for the Stadium and, judging by the advance sale, it is so regarded by the customers.

DEMPSEY ENTERS DIVORCE ARENA AT RENO TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Reno, Nev., Sept. 20.—Jack Dempsey, after more than a year of preparatory legal shadow boxing, will enter the divorce arena here tomorrow for the final round of his prolonged marital conflict with Estelle Taylor of the movies. But it will be only a quiet exhibition bout for the former world heavyweight champion, it having been previously arranged by the legal seconds of both principals for Estelle to default.

"The divorce suit will proceed as per schedule in the matter of a default decree from Dempsey's wife, Estelle Taylor, here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock," Dempsey's attorney, R. E. Burns, said tonight. "Concerning newspaper interviews attributed to Estelle in Cincinnati regarding this divorce decree we have nothing to say."

Press dispatches from Cincinnati on Friday quoted Estelle's manager as saying she would file an answer to Dempsey's complaint to prevent his getting a default decree.

Immediately after the termination of tomorrow's court action Jack will leave for Midas in the Nevada foothills, where he will work in the mines to get his hands in first class shape. The former champion, trying to stage a ring comeback, weighs 193 pounds and seems to be in good physical condition.

U. S. EXPENDING OVER A BILLION TO AID JOBLESS

About Half Allocated to Nine States.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—More than one billion, five hundred million dollars will have been expended by the federal government on projects which have helped to combat unemployment by the end of the current fiscal year, the White House announced today. These funds have been expended and are being spent on public lands and buildings, construction work including the operations of the corps of engineers, repairs and maintenance of public property and public roads.

THEODORE JOSLIN. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

According to the White House figures, which were released for publication by Theodore G. Joslin, secretary to the President, a total of $787,587,000 will be expended during the current calendar year. Expenditures last year were $452,301,000 while expenditures during the next calendar year are expected to exceed 750 millions. Funds already allocated for the first half of the next calendar year amount to 373 millions.

Goal Over Billion and Half.

The White House statement announces that "the total expenditures of the government in aid to unemployment since the depression began [omitting drought relief] will by the end of the present fiscal year aggregate over one billion, 550 million dollars."

One of the unusual features of the table is that more funds are being expended in the District of Columbia than in any one of the states. The figure spent and allocated for spending in the District is 133 millions, of which an excess of $90,000,000 is being ex-

New York Gets Most.

The expenditures made and to be made in the first nine states, after the District of Columbia, are in round numbers: New York, 100 millions; Virginia, $97,000,000; California, $85,000,000; Pennsylvania, $38,000,000; New Jersey, $77,000,000; Missouri, $69,000,000; Texas, $64,000,000; Massachusetts, $63,000,000, and Illinois, $61,000,000. The total for the nine states and the District of Columbia is 634 millions. Eliminating Illinois the total is 773 millions, approximately one-half the total.

The District of Columbia, New York, Virginia, New Jersey, California and Pennsylvania have been allocated the most funds for the current calendar year. Illinois is ninth on the list with expenditures of $28,152,000.

Expenditures in Illinois are given as $20,000,000 for buildings and land; $850,000 for other construction; $13,600,000 by the engineer corps; $7,500,000 on repairs and maintenance, and $18,000,000 on roads. The sum of $13,621,000 was expended in 1930; $28,152,000 is being expended this calendar year and $18,902,000 is allocated for expenditure the first half of next year.

Father and 2 Sons Stabbed as They Try to Stop Brawl

William Pestine, 55 years old, 1111 South Richmond street, and his two sons, Morton, 24 years old, and Arnold, 27 years old, both of the same address, were stabbed last night when they attempted to separate four intoxicated men engaged in a quarrel in a vacant lot near the Pestine home. The Pestines were taken to the Mount Sinai hospital. Their wounds were not serious. The four combatants escaped.

34 JUDGES BACK ON BENCH TODAY AFTER VACATIONS

Calendars Filled in All Courts.

The county's Circuit and Superior courts will swing into full stride today when 34 judges return to the county building after a vacation period of two months. At the same time the slackened business in the county and probate courts is expected to return to normal proportions.

The opening of the courts finds the calendars of all branches filled with almost a record number of cases. The number of suits filed presages crowded calls for the returning judges. The number of foreclosures filed during the summer has exceeded that of any other similar period in the history of the courts here.

In the Circuit and Superior courts only four judges were sitting at any one time during the vacation period to care for emergency matters. They said that more cases were disposed of during the period than usually were herd during the regular court session.

Brothers Chief Justice.

Judge William V. Brothers begins his term as chief justice of the Circuit court. Under him are Judges Stanley H. Klarkowski, head of the chancery division, and John R. Caverly, head of the common law division. In the chancery division are Judges Joseph Burke, Michael Feinberg, Philip Finnegan, and Daniel P. Trude, and in the law division, Judges David M. Brothers, H. Sterling Pomeroy, William V. Brothers, Martin H. Finneran, Thomas J. Lynch, Craig A. Hood, D. J. Normoyle, Thomas Taylor Jr., and Charles A. Shuey.

Judge Harry A. Lewis is chief justice of the Superior court. Judge Denis E. Sullivan is head of the chancery division, and Judge Walter P. Steffen is head of the law division. Other judges and their divisions are: Chancery, Robert E. Gentzel, William J. Lindsay, Harry B. Miller, and Joseph Sabath; law, Marcus Kavanagh, Worth E. Caylor, William J. Fulton, John P. McGoorty, Peter H. Schwaba, M. L. McKinley, Paul McWilliams, Charles A. Williams, Joseph H. Fitch, S. Murray Clark, E. I. Frankhauser, John J. Sullivan, James S. Baldwin, Joseph B. David, and Ross C. Hall.

Van Keuren Aids Jarecki.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki will be assisted by Judge J. G. Van Keuren.

Probate Judge Henry Horner has as his assistants James H. Poage, Joseph L. Lisack, Nuncio J. Bonnelli, Oscar S. Caplan, John P. Carey, and George B. Weiss.

Thomas H. Symington, 62, Baltimore Capitalist, Dead

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Thomas H. Symington, 62, Baltimore capitalist, died here Saturday night of cerebral arterio-sclerosis. He was striken Friday while en route with his family to attend the international polo matches at Westbury. Symington was president of T. H. Symington & Son, railroad equipment firm, and principal owner of the Gibson Island company.

U. S. MOBILIZES ITS FORCES FOR CAPONE INCOME TAX TRIAL

The trials of Christian P. Paschen, building commissioner under the former city hall régime, on the charge of income tax evasion and of Ralph Capone for alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, probably will be deferred to permit the government to concentrate attention on the income tax trial on Oct. 6 of Al Capone, gang boss.

CHRIS PASCHEN.

Ralph, older brother of Al, is scheduled to go on trial on the liquor charges tomorrow, but Assistant United States District Attorney Victor La Rue, who will handle the presentation of the evidence in the case, intimated yesterday that it appeared likely the trial will not go forward until the prosecution of Al Capone for tax evasion is concluded.

Verification of the government's plan to concentrate its efforts on ridding Chicago of Al Capone came from District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson.

"In order that nothing be left undone in preparation for Al Capone's trial, all other matters, including the prosecution of Christian Paschen, may be deferred," the district attorney declared.

A date for the trial of Paschen is to be set tomorrow.

FRANKLIN PARK GETS ITSELF IN A POLICE MIXUP

Franklin Park, a village of 3,000 population, just north of Maywood, was involved in a struggle last night over efforts to oust two-thirds of its police force of three men. The dispute is a virtual counterpart of the fight in Brookfield, where two rival police forces, one championed by the village president and the other by the village trustees, are patrolling Brookfield streets.

The members of the Franklin Park force under fire are Chief Ralph Gohrsch and Policeman Robert Lescher. Their dismissal is demanded by Trustees James Neudil, George Barry, Walter Inda, John Killoran, and P. K. Eriksen. Village President John Kroll wants to retain them.

The complaint against Chief Gohrsch and Policeman Lescher is that "they aren't doing anything." According to Edward A. Funk, village clerk, the policemen were ordered recently to clean out a bootleg clique which has been selling booze to school children, and failed to do so.

Efforts to oust Gohrsch and Lescher will be resumed at a meeting of the Franklin Park board tonight. At the same time the Brookfield board will convene to settle its own police problem. The situation in Brookfield arises from the appointment of Nicholas Ferdinand as chief by Village President James Mansfield in place of Chief Edward J. O'Connor. O'Connor is being supported by trustees who deny Mansfield's right to oust him.

A. D. Roberts, Dean of U.S. Editors in Havana, Dies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 20.—A. D. Roberts, dean of American newspapermen in Havana, died today. As a printer Roberts worked on the first issue of a newspaper ever published in Miami. At 65 he was the editor and owner of the Havana Evening News, Havana's pioneer American newspaper which is well known to Cubans and the American colony, and also to the old timers in Miami.

Roberts was born in Indiana. He is survived by his wife, Inez; his son, Joe Leroy, and a daughter, Mrs. S. Reade, Larchmont, N. Y. He will be buried tomorrow afternoon, with burial following in Oak Ridge cemetery.

HIT EMPLOYERS' STAND AS HELP TO LOAN SHARKS

Borrowers Fear for Their Jobs.

An indifferent attitude on the part of many employers was blamed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorneys Donald Thompson and Edwin Duffey of the racket bureau for a large part of the harvest reaped by unscrupulous loan sharks.

"Several large companies practically aid unlicensed loan brokers," Prosecutor Thompson said. "By firing an employé as soon as a wage assignment is placed against his salary the company forces him to accede to demands of unscrupulous loan sharks through fear of losing his position. Many assignments are illegal and many are unjust. But the average company refuses to protect its men by investigating."

Refuse to Appear in Court.

Investigation of one loan company, charged with exacting interest of approximately 600 per cent on short term small loans, has come to a standstill. Complainants against the company refused to appear in court for fear of losing their jobs if their employers learned they had borrowed on their wages.

Through the endeavors of Prosecutors Duffey and Thompson several companies have offered coöperation in the fight against loan sharks. A large railroad express company, which has had a rule of dismissal when a wage assignment is served on the company, has stated it will investigate assignments and ignore those illegaly served. Full coöperation of the company was promised in cases where its own employés are have been snared by unlicensed brokers.

Employers Fight Sharks.

Alarmed by the rapidly increasing number of such assignments, a few companies, upon their own initative, have sought to end the assignment evil. Notable among these is Armour & Co.

The large employers of Chicago are willing to take reasonable measures to protect their employés against unjustified wage assignments," said Walter C. Kirk of the Armour law department. "However, it imposes a tremendous burden on employers to make defenses for their employés. Armour & Co. was served with two thousand assignments in one year at the Chicago plant alone.

"A careful survey shows that a large percentage of these assignments were given unknowingly by the employés when they signed notes that confessed judgment and assigned wages."

Workers Sign Contract.

In an attempt to defeat the loan sharks the company had all emloyés sign a contract not to assign their wages, their position being contingent upon signing the contract. Notice was then served on all credit houses, loan brokers and others, who had in the past obtained assignments against Armour employés.

Several assignments were served against the company and a judgment was obtained by one of the credit companies. A Municipal court ruling upheld the judgment, despite the contract between the employee and the company. The case was appealed through the Appellate and to the state Supreme court, which upheld the original ruling.

The remedy for the situation must come through legislation restricting the giving or taking of wage assignments, in the opinion of Mr. Kirk.

BABY SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

John Thomas Weise, 6 month old son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Weise, 301 Northwood road, Riverside, was smothered to death yesterday when he became entangled in a blanket in his carriage.

SOLDIER FRIEND OF LINCOLN, 100 YEARS OLD, DIES

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Col. Edwin A. Parrott, a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln and one of the group who sat on the platform at Gettysburg when Lincoln delivered his famous address, died this morning at his home here. He was Princeton's oldest resident and would have been 101 on Nov. 30.

Col. Parrott at the time of his death was the oldest living alumnus of Ohio Wesleyan university, or Delaware college, as it was known when he was graduated in 1849. He was a former speaker of the Ohio house of assembly, having served in this capacity during 1866-'67. During the civil war he was provost marshal general for Ohio.

Col. Parrott was born at Dayton, O., in 1830.

HIT BY STREET CAR, DIES.

Oscar Lindgren, 58 years old, 3005 East 79th street, a painter, died yesterday in the Chicago hospital of injuries received a few hours before when he was struck by a street car at 41st street and Cottage Grove avenue.

ADOLPH STEINER DEAD; CAME TO CITY IN SAILBOAT

Adolph Steiner, a civil war veteran, died of a heart attack yesterday in his home in West Center street, Park Ridge. He was 92 years old, and a pioneer resident of the community.

Mr. Steiner and his brother, Gustav, came to Chicago as a child in 1843 from Strasbourg, Alsace, their voyage being in a sailboat which carried them not only across the ocean but through the great lakes to Chicago. The brothers later moved to Park Ridge. During the war Mr. Steiner served with company D of the 58th Illinois volunteers.

Funeral services will be held in his home at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

IF SHARES RISE, GRAIN EXPECTED TO DO LIKEWISE

See China Offering Hope for Wheat.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Constructive efforts on the part of the grain trade were successful in advancing prices during a good part of the week, the cash wheat, and especially the September, being surprisingly strong, with premiums advanced, and absence of pressure.

In the closing days demoralization in the securities market on selling by brokers and large investors, combined with a break in cotton to the lowest in thirty years, brought a liquidating movement and a decline with the close around the lowest of the week.

Grain traders have the impression that were the securities market to find its liquidation and react sharply from the greatest depression known in the history of the stock market, that commodities would come in for more attention, and a fair advance in prices might be secured. It is argued by many men in the grain trade that in past periods of depression speculation has always come into the commodity markets, especially wheat, when all other interests were depressed.

At present the farm board is said to be the stumbling block as its wheat holdings are so large that foreigners refuse to buy our surplus grain in volume.

China May Buy Heavily.

Should China take 140,000,000 bu of wheat, as indicated by cables from abroad late in the week, the whole wheat situation in the United States, and possibly Canada and importing Europe would be decidedly changed for the better. The farm board is understood to have sold 100,000,000 bu of wheat in all positions since its selling campaign started.

Cash premiums have hardened for several weeks, although showing signs of easing at the close. Movement from the country is the lightest in years, primary receipts last week were 8,907,000 bu, the smallest for the period in more than five years. Holders in the northwest and southwest are confident of their ability to get better prices later, and also that there is little probability of a decline below the present low level.

Take More Wheat.

Millers and exporters took more wheat last week and increases in the visible supply which have been on for months have reached the maximum, and a decrease of 1,819,000 bu in the total visible was made in the previous week, the first reduction of the season. This creates the impression that supplies from now on will gradually decrease.

September wheat in Chicago moved up to practically even with the December, with the close on September at 46½c, compared with 48⅜@48⅝c for December. March finished at 51¾c and May, 52@52¾c. As compared with a week ago, September gained ⅝c and other deliveries lost 1@1¼c. Prices for the week follow:

Mystery in September Corn.

What corn traders would like to know is what the attitude of leading holders of September contracts will be during the remaining ten days of this month. Deliveries so far in September have been only 114,000 bu. Holders of cash corn are said to have sold about half of the 8,000,000 bu of corn taken on in July. Country holders of corn sold more grain to arrive recently, but the volume was not heavy.

With favorable weather the next two months corn traders look for an early movement of the new crop, but should wet weather prevail, new corn will not be in position for marketing. There were sales of new No. 4 yellow corn Saturday, shipment from the country by Dec. 15, at equal to 5c under Chicago December track here. This returns the farmer around 20@25c bu, which is too low.

At the close September corn was 1c lower and other months ½c lower than a week ago. September closed at 61¾c; December, 37⅛@37¼c; March, 38⅞@39c, and May, 41¼@41⅝. Prices for the week follow:

Heavy Oats Scarce.

Heavy oats are scarce and command around 2@3c above September. Light oats are not wanted to any extent. Speculators who bought on recent breaks took profits on the strong spots, or liquidated on the closing weakness. Movement from the farms in this season is the lightest in years. Sees Russian Sugar Threat Likely to Fail

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—Threats by the soviet government that it will "dump" between 700,000 and 800,000 tons of sugar into the market next year at any price at which it is taken, are declared to be almost impossible of fulfillment due to physical barriers by F. A. Monroe Jr., president of the Cuba company and Compania Cubana in a statement just issued.

Mr. Monroe, who is an engineer and who was in charge of the actual construction of a large part of the United States and English beet sugar plants, prior to taking his present positions, declared that in order to have that much sugar for export Russia will have to accomplish in one year an economic development as great as was accomplished by the United States, with unlimited credit and instituted by wartime pressure, in ten years, and more than England and Ireland have been able to accomplish in seven years.

Hear Dumping Plans.

Mr. Monroe's statement was inspired by reports from Europe received during the week that the delegates to the international sugar council at their meeting in Paris had learned from "an unquestioned source" that the Moscow economic officials plan to sell abroad during the season of 1932-33 between 700,000 and 800,000 tons of sugar at any price they can obtain.

"The report continued to say that although there appeared to be considerable doubt concerning the accuracy of the figure," said Mr. Monroe, "the problem is none the less a serious one for the council. It would seem that the concern attributed to the council would, if it existed, be somewhat premature, since it has to do with merely a plan which has little likelihood to be carried out. Russia has, for some years past, announced each year its intention of exporting large quantities of sugar. So far these exports have not materialized and in several years there has been a net importation into Russia. There are no limits to what the soviet officials may plan, but what they can accomplish in sugar production has certain physical limitations.

Soviet Production.

"J. Adamowitsch, president of the Sojus Sacchar, is quoted to the effect that the soviet produced from the crop of 1930-'31 1,786,800 tons of sugar as compared with the highest pre-war production of 1,705,000 tons. To have accomplished this would have required the restoration or the utilization to the fullest possible extent their entire pre-war manufacturing capacity. There is little authentic evidence that Russia has added substantially to her sugar factory a capacity and it was admitted that their equipment and personnel were taxed to the utmost during the last crop."

Largest Synchronous Condenser to Be Used Here

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company has received an order from the Commonwealth Edison company for the largest synchronous condenser ever sold. Westinghouse engineers said the condenser would have 50 per cent more capacity than any now in use.

Lackawanna Places 3,000 Ton Steel Rail Order

The Lackawana railroad has placed an order for 3,000 tons of 130 pound steel rail with the Bethlehem Steel company to be rolled at its Lackawana plant in Buffalo the week of Oct. 19. The order is in addition to one for 7,500 tons already laid this year.

General Foods Earnings on Level with 1930 Period

PHONE CONCERN 1932 PROSPECTS ARE ANALYZED

A. T. & T. Expected to Hold $9 Dividend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—The ability of the American Telephone and Telegraph company to pay some $168,000,000 in dividends next year, at the current rate of $9 a share, depends to an important degree upon the manner in which the associated telephone companies of the Bell system are able to continue to show increased net earnings despite declining gross revenues.

This year, it is estimated, dividends of about $163,500,000 will be earned by a margin which may be $4,000,000 or more, after omitting anything further on Western Electric holdings this year.

The parent company of the Bell system has never drawn to the fullest extent possible on the surplus earnings of the associated telephone companies. The twenty-one associated operating companies at the close of 1930 had an aggregate surplus, exclusive of appropriated surplus, of $215,695,000, in which the equity of the American Telephone and Telegraph company was $202,792,000. The earnings statements of the twenty-one companies show an aggregate surplus after dividends of $18,234,000 for 1930, in which the parent company's equity was $16,717,000.

Has Foreign Equities.

This takes into account only the twenty-one associated companies, in addition to which American Telephone and Telegraph has equities in foreign operating companies, such as Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Cuban American Telephone and Telegraph company and various corporations whose operations are affiliated with those of the Bell system for manufacture, research, real estate and so forth.

The earned surplus of the Bell system at the close of 1930 was $442,442,228, and the surplus for the year 1930 after dividends on preferred and common stocks of associated companies and American Telephone and Telegraph capital stock was $45,020,763. The system had $64,341,462 cash and bank deposits and $354,774,712 temporary investments, or liquid resources of practically $420,000,000. Accounts receivable of $151,178,536 were alone more than double bills and accounts payable of $74,000,000.

The operating reports made to the interstate commerce commission by twenty of the associated telephone companies for seven months ended July 31 showed declines in gross revenues, but the aggregate net earnings rose 3.44 per cent from $112,841,111 to $116,862,989, as a result of operating economies put into effect.

Receipts from Dividends.

The report of American Telephone and Telegraph company for the first half of 1931 shows that dividends received were $79,214,738, including about $10,325,000 from Western Electric, against $72,254,344 in the first half of 1930, including more than $10,000,000 Western Electric dividends.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company received $13,993,661 interest in the first half of 1931, against $13,403,109 in the 1930 period, and miscellaneous revenue was $771,030, against $757,578.

These various factors thus point to the reasonableness of the opinion of company officials that the $9 dividend will be continuously earned and their belief that it will be paid if earned.

65 Unfavorable Dividend Changes Occur in Week

New York, Sept. 20.—Unfavorable dividend changes last week numbered 65, against 48 in the previous week, says the weekly compilation by Standard Statistics company. Dividends were passed by 34 companies and decreased by 31. Favorable changes numbered 14, compared with 18 in the previous week.

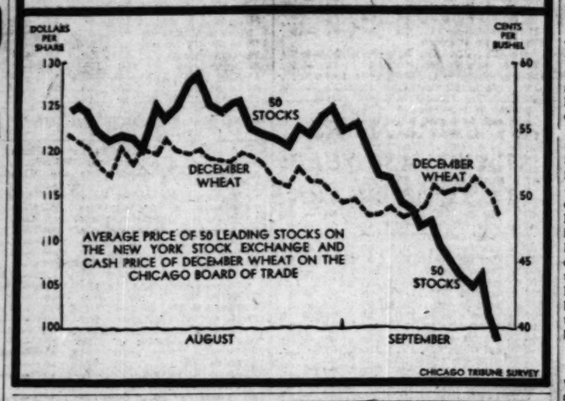
WHEAT HOLDS FIRM WHILE THE STOCK MARKET DROPS SHARPLY



HEAVY SELLING OF UTILITIES IS FEATURE OF CURB

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Heavy selling of the public utility holding company stocks has featured the most recent wave of liquidation on the curb market. These issues had held fairly well during previous sinking spells, but they have led the September decline.

Their break to new lows last week was a conspicuous development of the more active selling. Pressure converged particularly on Electric Bond and Share and, although that issue steadied when reports of the substantial dividend coverage were circulated it was forced down again in the wave of liquidation that struck the market toward the week-end.

Oil stocks eased rather reluctantly during the earlier sessions, but Gulf had a wide decline on Friday.

REESER PREDICTS OIL MARKET UPTURN IS CLOSE AT HAND

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A prediction that an upturn in the oil industry is inevitable and close at hand came today from E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum institute, upon his return from a conference of regulatory bodies of Kansas, Texas, and Oklahoma at Austin, Tex.

Mr. Reeser said the Austin conference completed a proration program for all United States producing areas. He asserted it was one of the most advanced steps that has been taken toward stabilization of the industry.

The meeting in Austin followed a conference at Oklahoma City Sept. 11, when the total allowable flow for the United States was tentatively set at 2,381,000 barrels daily, subject to action of producing states. Reeser said action of the Texas railroad commission Friday in reducing to 185 barrels the daily allowable flow of East Texas wells definitely had dispelled fear within the industry that "the east Texas area would not be permanently controlled."

"Withdrawal of oil from storage has been going on for some time and now is sure to continue until storage stocks reach a level sufficient properly to protect the public's interests," he asserted.

"The commissions of the three states —Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma— have no intention of restricting production with the idea of increasing prices to an unreasonable extent. They believe, however, that prices must go up to a point where operations can be carried out profitably."

Foreign Issues Record New Lows on Bond Market

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The bond market last week provided many significant fluctuations.

The steady pressure of liquidation was the most conspicuous feature of the trading and served to establish new records for activity on Friday and Saturday and day to day record low prices in the loans of all sorts of borrowers.

The effects of this pressure was most apparent in foreign issues. The British 5½s of 1937 sold at the lowest prices in more than eight years on Saturday and four loans of the kingdom of Belgium reached new minimum levels then also. Recurrent declines in the more speculative foreign issues have been one of the characteristics of the bond market this year. Heretofore both the British and Belgian loans have held above par, but the losses last week carried them, except the Belgian 7s of 1955, below that level.

Reasons for Selling.

Consequently the decline in them was symptomatic of the general pressure. The selling was ascribed to concern over the outlook in Great Britain, but that factor alone did not account for the action of the market as a whole.

United States treasury and Liberty issues, for instance, were under intermittent pressure. The treasury 3½s of 1946-'49, which were floated earlier this year, reached a new low level at 100 11-32 on Saturday and the Liberty first 4¼s sold then about one-half point higher than the year's bottom.

Domestic corporate obligations and other foreign issues closed the week generally lower. The decline extended from the most speculative to the ultra gilt edge issues. Some of the selling came from banks, but it seems certain that it originated in a wide variety of places.

Join in Decline.

With the current low levels for money the bond market, especially the better grade obligations, issues of high credit standing normally would be in demand at high prices. Such issues have enjoyed a good demand at premium levels most of this year but, during the last week even they participated in the general decline, which was another indication of urgent liquidation on the part of bondholders.

Under such conditions it was not at all surprising that new offerings continued to be restricted to high grade issues. Of some $77,000,000 of bonds floated, $59,000,000 consisted of state and municipal issues. The most important offering was the $25,000,000 of 3 per cent and $15,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds of the state of New York which were sold at an interest cost to the state of 3.2289 per cent, the lowest rate ever paid on such issues.

CANADIAN PAPER CONCERN REPORTS $2,191,742 INCOME

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The financial statement of the Canadian International Paper company for the first half of 1931 shows a balance, after all deductions, of $326,908, compared with $206,808 in the same period last year. Net revenue, including other income for the 1931 first half, amounted to $2,191,742, against $2,358,745 in the first six months of 1930. The company said the decline in revenue reflected the $5 a ton reduction in newsprint prices, retroactive to Jan. 1, announced in the spring.

JEWEL TEA CO. REPORTS DECLINE IN SALES VOLUME

The Jewel Tea Company, Inc., reports that its sales for four weeks ending Sept. 5, 1931, were $930,519, as compared with $1,099,650 for parallel weeks in 1930, a decrease of 15.38 per cent. The average number of sales routes for parallel weeks in 1931 was 1,323 and in 1930, 1,250. Sales for the first thirty-six weeks of 1931 were $9,481,740.94, as compared with $10,709,254.07 for a like period in 1930, a decrease of 11.46 per cent. For these weeks the average number of routes in 1931 was 1,303 and in 1930, 1,235.

DRESS INDUSTRY REPORTED BRIGHT SPOT IN MARKETS

Activity in the Chicago dress manufacturing industry was the bright spot among local markets during the past week, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Manufacturers of medium priced dresses are working at capacity schedules to fill orders from out of town merchants. Orders, while numerous, are for comparatively small lots. Buyers are demanding speedy delivery. The general aversion of merchants to laying in large stocks of goods is quite evident.

Wholesale merchandise firms were fairly busy, with the demand for winter wearing apparel increasing daily. Retail merchandise also met improved buying as a result of the brief break in the warm weather.

Slight increases in the price of velvet at the mills reflect the current demand for dress materials.

FINANCE MARTS OF WORLD CLOSE WEEK IN GLOOM

Situation in Britain Adds to Unrest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—It will hardly be denied that last week ended on the financial markets in an atmosphere of undiluted gloom. It also ended in the home and foreign bond market with demonstrations which suggested a mood of panic.

To what extent this was caused by actual developments in the news, and how far it reflected a spirit of something like hysteria, is a question on which opinion will doubtless differ. The turn in the London market's situation, expressed in the sudden and heavy requisitions made on the British gold fund by Amsterdam, was certainly not pleasant; neither was the incident of the navy's protest against pay reduction.

But the manner in which these incidents were reflected on yesterday's financial markets may be said to present a picture of all but superstitious fright, in which the collapse and disintegration of everything in the field of international credit, through the operation of occult forces, should be immediately expected.

In a normal and sober state of the financial mind the word would be passed about, when incidents of the sort occur, that this was a moment for calmness and balanced judgment, in which the strong points as well as the weak points of the home and foreign financial situation, of different governments and different enterprises, would be recognized and carefully separated. But the day's performance might have been supposed to indicate that no foreign government and no foreign security are safe. The same exhibition of indiscriminate fright had already been made in the market for our railway bonds.

This is not an agreeable picture, and it is certainly not the kind of demonstration that will help towards repairing the mischief that has already been occasioned in the credit situation. There have been plenty of disturbing and discouraging occurrences in this year of financial unsettlement, calling at times for a stout heart and a clear head to measure judiciously the shifting events of a perplexing period.

See Particular Reasons.

There may be particular reasons why these qualities have been lacking. An eminent French banker, after six months of observation in this country, last week asked the Americans at Paris whether the blackness of despondency among our people does not

WARM WEATHER SLOWS UP BUYING FOR FALL NEEDS

Many Observers Look to Future with Hope.

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—An unseasonably hot spell over much of the country, coming on the heels of an unusually late Labor day, has made the consumer tardy in filling his autumn requirements.

The last week in business and trade has seen no break in the dull monotony of bumping along the bottom of depression, although the steel industry has recovered to the upper level of the 28 to 32 per cent range of operations in which it has fluctuated for several weeks.

Continued unsettlement in the security markets at home and abroad has probably had a poor psychological influence on business, but the stock market's contortions have been growing progressively milder over the two years of deflation, and its woes may be forgotten when it finally settles into a period of protracted quiescence such as may be expected to mark the end of the bear orgy.

Further uncertainty is injected into the outlook with the approach of the new session of congress. Some prominent bankers are frankly concerned over the prospect of large demands upon the treasury.

On the whole, however, many observers regard the business outlook over the remainder of the year with some degree of optimism. Wholesalers are inclined to feel that merchants have not provided for even minimum demands and that hasty reorders of merchandise will appear in some volume before the autumn shopping season wanes.

Several of the lighter lines of manufacturing continue to hold their recent gains, particularly the textiles. There are some signs of a slight letup in the flurry of activity in shoe manufacturing. The hide and leather markets have taken a rather decided dip.

Pickup in Steel.

The pickup in steel making has been largely the result of orders for heavy pipe and structural materials. The number of large construction projects under consideration is encouraging, and despite the low rate of railway revenues, the carriers are beginning to inquire for rails, as this is the usual season of rail buying. Although aggregate purchases of rails this season may be the lowest in several years, any business from the carriers will be gratifying to the steel makers.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended Sept. 5, showed the small decline of about 4,000 cars from its previous week, which was to have been expected, in view of the lower movement toward the end of the week, because of the Labor day weekend. This showing may be construed as favorable in view of the smaller than expected gains in the preceding week.

Automobile Outlook.

The automobile industry continues to mark time pending the introduction of new models around Nov. 1. If new models are to be ready to be placed on the market throughout the country in time for the January show, a fair revival of activity during the last quarter of the year seems assured.

Rather conspicuous weak spots had developed in commodities, with copper touching a new historical low at 7 cents. Recent gains in petroleum have not been well maintained since the renewed production from the east Texas field. There have been some declines in foodstuffs, but dairy products advanced notably.

Business Personals

Miss Mary Travers, assistant cashier of the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, has been elected president of the Association of Chicago Bank Women. Other officers chosen were Miss Rita Y. Carter, manager of the women's department, Peoples Trust and Savings bank, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Krause, manager women's department, University State bank, secretary, and Mrs. Bess Keptig, assistant cashier of the Kenwood State bank, treasurer. These officers will attend the convention of the National Association of American Bank Women, concurrent with the American Bankers' association convention at Atlantic City, Oct. 5-8.

Jack I. Grow, vice president in charge of sales in eastern territory for R. H. Ottman & Co., Inc., has been removed to Chicago offices to take direct charge of wholesale sales in all territories. Mr. Grow supplants Harry Bonner, vice president in charge of wholesale sales in middle western territory, who has retired.

I. S. Bruce, formerly syndicate manager for G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., is now associated with E. H. Ottman & Co.

W. E. Hutton Miller of W. E. Hutton & Co. was elected one of the American Ride and Leather company directors in place of Schuyler Warren, resigned. Other directors were re-elected.

Ralph V. Sollitt, formerly executive vice president in charge of the Chicago office, has been made president of Lord & Thomas and Logan, Inc., advertising agency. Mr. Sollitt succeeds L. Ames Brown, who has resigned. A. E. Aveyard, who is general manager of the Chicago office, has been elected executive vice president and a member of the executive committee.

The Office Managers' club of Chicago, affiliated with the Chicago Association of Credit Men, will open its 1931-32 season Thursday, Sept. 24, with a dinner at the Palmer house.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21.—[
—The American Legion today the President of the United St received him well.

It is true that as Mr. Hoo leaving the platform of the naires' convention hall after delivered a fifteen minute s bellowing voice shouted:

"We want beer."

And soon a chorus of othe took up the call, and as the stood on the edge of the

Hoover Gives No Sig

The President gave no noti demonstration. It had been manifestation of what som have thought was untoward others it was only the good the Legionnaires making the frankly known.

For the rest, the Legion gr
Hoover warmly. He was c the outset by the standing at 16,000 who filled the Olym dium, and for three minute shook with applause, hurrah alone of blank cartridges, and other noises.

The greeting was taken by astute observers as patriotic litical. Soldiers of Americ were greeting the nation's cutive, and in this relation did him homage.

President's Appeal Br

Mr. Hoover made his mess and he dealt with no othe than that which brought after his eleventh hour de carry the problem directly b men of the Legion.

In effect, the President m

There has been a concerted within the Legion to have vention pass a resolution d that veterans be permitted the full amount of their adju pensation certificates, instea half, as at present.

But the President shrewdl making a direct plea. He s not fitting that the Preside United States should plead in a test of patriotism.

He was "pointing out th service in this nation." M said, and he left the choice Legion.

Appeals to Patriotis

The President outlined th plight of the country, and s convinced that the Legion to add no further burden.

Indeed, Mr. Hoover assur
titude that the men of t were strongly opposed to s ditional loans. Although h
Detroit after having first d to appear at the conventio cause he wished to exert al toward preventing the maki
a demand by the veterans, dent astutely praised the this wise:

He spoke of the work of leaders in meeting the une problem, and in providing for the needy in the comi and he accepted the Legio
new aid, and then he said:

"But there is today an until we have won this world depression."

Wins Appeal, Is Indic

wave of applause from t naires, and it now appears tain that the Legion will the demand this year.

The President spoke of t deficit, and said the only fore the government is t economy. Every addition ture, Mr. Hoover said, mu ly be paid, whether by inc ation or by loans.

"Either loans or taxes
